Seventeen New Cases Of West Nile Virus Confirmed

Dr. Eric E. Whitaker, state public health director, announced 17 new West Nile disease cases have been identified in Chicago, suburban Cook and DuPage counties, bringing to 63 the number of cases reported so far this year in the state.

The new cases are two women and two men from Chicago who were hospitalized with West Nile neuroinvasive disease and a Chicago man diagnosed with West Nile fever; from suburban Cook County two women with West Nile disease, one man with West Nile fever and four women and one man with West Nile neuroinvasive disease; and in DuPage County four people with some form of West Nile disease. There have been 25 other cases of West Nile disease this year in suburban Cook County. The state's other cases of West Nile disease have been from Chicago (9), DuPage (5), Kane (5), Peoria (1) and Will County (1).

West Nile Virus is transmitted through the bite of a mosquito that has picked up the virus by feeding on an infected bird. Most people with the virus have no clinical symptoms of illness, but some may become ill three to 14 days after the bite of an infected mosquito.

Anyone who develops symptoms such as high fever, confusion, muscle weakness, severe headaches or stiff neck should see a doctor immediately. These symptoms may indicate meningitis or encephalitis, two potentially life-threatening illnesses. Diagnosis is made through a blood test, but no specific medication exists to treat or cure the disease.

YMCA Adventure Guides Gear Up For Another Season Of Fun

Want to spend quality one-on-one time with your child?

The way to do it is to join the YMCA Adventure Guides. With the start of the school year, the YMCA Adventure Guides are gearing up for another season of fun. The YMCA Adventure Guides offer father/daughter, father/son, and mother children programs. Typically, children range in age from 5 through 10 years.

Nationally, for more than 50 years the YMCA Adventure Guides Program has put into action the YMCA tag line, "We build strong kids, strong families, strong communities."

The program is designed to promote family values and instill a strong bond between parents and their children. The Adventure Guides is a program of the YMCA Network located in Alsip which has provided families with addiction and counseling services, crisis intervention, homeless youth programs and drug and violence prevention programs for 42 years.

The southwest suburban Adventure Guide monthly outings take place during the school year September through June and include fun activities as a bike hike in the forest preserves, a pumpkin hunt in the woods, and a swim and gym.

Each year in the fall and spring the YMCA Adventure Guides host overnight weekends at YMCA residential camps where parents and their sons or daughters spend time at rifle or archery ranges, on climbing walls, and participating in campfire ceremonies.

While the agenda for the father/daughter and the father/son programs are similar, they do offer some different experiences. For example, the father/daughter program has an annual, "Sweetheart Dance," which takes place around Valentine's Day each year. This event is like a prom, with a dinner/dance at the Orland Chateau. The girls go on a "date," with their dads.

Flowers are provided and a photographer takes a photo of each father and daughter in their formal attire.

"My relationship with my children is stronger as a result of the time we spent together in this program," says Tom Gibbons of Palos Park who has been involved in the YMCA Adventure Guides Program since 1995. His children are now 17, 15, 12, and 10 years old. "Some of the best memories of their childhood were from spending time together at outings. My 12 year old is turning 13 soon, which is a little old for some of the activities, but she enjoys the outings so much she doesn't want to quit," Gibbons says.

The southwest suburban father/daughter & father/son groups each have nearly 150 families involved. All events are planned and organized by parents participating in the program. "This program offers not only a great way to spend time with your children but also allows you to meet other parents active in your community," says Gibbons. Gibbons says many fathers he knows have stayed in touch with each other even after their children have left the program, as a result of the friendships they have forged while taking their children to sponsored events.

Interested in learning more? Attend an information meeting on Wed. Sept. 7th from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., at the Glen Maker Legion Hall, 10739 Ridgeland Ave., Chicago Ridge. Those who are unable to make the meeting, should call Mike Sedlak (father/son program) at (708) 214-5400, or Mike Powell (father/daughter program) at (708) 444-0531, or check out the program at www.Adventureguides.info.

State Pension Reforms

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced a series of reforms on Aug. 26th that would significantly change the way in which the state's pension boards conduct their investment business. These reforms are intended to bring more accountability and openness to a system whose business practices have recently been the subject of federal indictments and numerous media reports.

Reforms would eliminate placement agent contingency fees, strengthen ethics rules, create stiffer penalties for fraud and ethical violations against employee pension systems, expand disclosure to identify and eliminate conflicts of interest, and require stricter standards for hiring of investment advisors. Many of these reforms would be the first adopted by the state's pension systems and would align their practices more closely with those of their governmental counterparts. Some reforms would also be the most extensive adopted by any state in the nation.

Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System Sends 150 Officers To Louisiana For Hurricane Assistance

The Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System (ILEAS) coordinated the effort to send 150 law enforcement officers to Louisiana to support local officers. The responding ILEAS group represents 72 law enforcement agencies throughout the State and consists of 150 sworn personnel. Sixty of the officers are specially trained local and state Weapons of Mass Destruction Response Teams consisting of experienced SWAT personnel trained and equipped by ILEAS, Chicago and the State Police.

The officers and deputies were from many sized departments from across the state. They include municipal departments, sheriff's offices, university/college departments, park district police departments, Chicago Police Department, State Police, Secretary of State investigators and Department of Natural Resources - all ILEAS members. Gary Stryker, ILEAS Governing Board President, stated "We were overwhelmed with requests from officers and departments willing to send resources and staff to assist in this most devastating tragedy. It is gratifying to see the enthusiasm of officers and deputies who want to help."

On Friday morning, Sept. 2nd, the State of Louisiana asked for and received aid by invoking the "Emergency Management Assistance Compact (EMAC), an interstate agreement for rendering aid in times of need. EMAC is coordinated through the Illinois Emergency Management Agency. Working closely with the Illinois State Police, ILEAS coordinated the response of the personnel and equipment.

The officers left for Louisiana from the Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield on Saturday, Sept. 3rd at 2:30 p.m., within 24 hours of receiving a request to assist. They arrived Sunday morning and immediately started receiving assignments from Louisiana emergency management officials.

The ILEAS contingent, known as "Task Force Illinois," is presently based in Hammond, Louisiana. The convoy consisted of over 75 vehicles including squad cars, a command post vehicle, two armored cars, seven rescue boats, 4X4 all-terrain vehicles, etc.

ILEAS is presently coordinating the second wave of over 100 officers to respond and relieve the first group. The second wave may also include telecommunications personnel. For further information, contact the ILEAS office at 1-217-328-3800.

For a list of the agencies sending personnel, and photos of the deployment, see the ILEAS website at www.ileas.org and click on the Katrina link on the home page.

Letter To The Editor

U.S. Rep. Bobby L. Rush (D-IL) In Letter To Bush: "Hurricane Katrina Rescue Efforts Is One Of The Greatest Injustices Of My Lifetime"

September 2, 2005

The Honorable George W. Bush,
President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20502

Dear Mr. President

For most of my life, I have fought for justice and equal rights in this country. What I have seen over the past week in the wake of the destruction of Hurricane Katrina qualifies as one of the great injustices of my lifetime and one of the biggest travesties in American history.

I do not say this lightly. Mr. President, I along with millions of other Americans have witnessed on television unspeakable, widespread suffering in Mississippi and (especially) Louisiana that has led to the wholesale denigration and destruction of thousands upon thousands of human lives. I and millions of other Americans have seen 80% of the city of New Orleans submerged in water. We have seen people stranded on their rooftops for days without any rescue, who are dying of starvation, dehydration and exhaustion. We have seen thousands of people literally baking in the hot sun on the highways that are above water. We have seen mothers desperately seeking nourishment for their children - for their infants! - and we have seen the elderly weakly sitting in a daze, simply waiting to die.

Mr. President, we have seen the Superdome and other "refugee" centers - an insulting term - descend into complete anarchy, where people lack basic necessities and are submerged in the stench of filth and raw sewage. Worse they are terrorized by criminals who brazenly prey on them with violence, including rape and murder.

I have heard you and others in your Administration say that we did everything we can and are doing everything we can to save the lives of these innocent souls. I do not believe that this is true. Nothing, anyone says in a press conference in front of cameras will convince me that the richest, most powerful nation in the world is incapable of mobilizing its massive, unprecedented resources to simply deliver food and water to people dying in the streets.

It is impossible for me to believe that we can't deploy sufficient troops to the Superdome and other so-called safe havens to protect people and provide them with basic necessities.

Mr. President, the response to this catastrophe has been completely incompetent at the very best, and unconscionably indifferent at the very worst. There is no good reason why a massive military or national guard effort did not take place sooner to alleviate the death and suffering of the citizens of New Orleans. No one can convince me that we could not have moved a convoy of personnel carriers into the city to evacuate people from the Superdome and the other relief centers. There is no good reason why an armada of helicopters couldn't give food and water to large congregations of people dying in the streets.

It is no coincidence that the vast majority of the people suffering and dying in New Orleans are poor and African American. These are citizens that simply did not have the logistical or financial wherewithal to evacuate New Orleans along with the rest of her citizens. It is my belief that if Hurricane Katrina had left wealthy white citizens in dehumanizing squalor surrounded by flood waters, the federal government would have mobilized swiftly and decisively to rescue and evacuate those people. On top of all of the suffering and death taking place, I am outraged by this blatant display of discrimination.

I hope you will hold everyone in your Administration accountable for the lack of response to this human catastrophe. While nothing will be able to make-up for the inhumanity suffered by the citizens of New Orleans, we must go forward from here and do everything in our power to alleviate their pain. And we must also determine exactly what went wrong and hold accountable those people who had the responsibility to decisively act in a time of crisis.

Sincerely,
s/s Bobby L. Rush
Member of Congress

Biggart Presents Transportation Funds For Lemont

U.S. Representative Judy Biggart (R-13th-IL) attended a meeting of Lemont's Village Board to present a check symbolizing $360,000 in federal transportation funding.

Biggart presented the check after touring downtown Lemont with Village officials. The Village of Lemont will receive $280,000 for improvements to the intersection of McCarthy, Derby and Archer roads. Biggart also presented the village with another $80,000 to begin the process of connecting the I&M Canal and Centennial Trails through construction of a pedestrian bridge.

Additionally, Congresswoman Biggart announced that two other transportation projects in the Lemont area will receive federal funding: $360,000 to the County of Cook for improvements to 127th Street east of Lemont in unincorporated Cook County; and $713,600 to the Illinois Department of Transportation for the resurfacing of 123rd St. from Bell Road to 86th Ave. in Palos Park.

All the projects were included as part of the final Federal Transportation Bill that was passed by Congress on Friday, July 29th.

Hurricane Katrina Recovery & Cleanup

In the aftermath of one of the nation's most devastating hurricanes, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Aug. 30th authorized the Illinois Medical Emergency Response Team to travel to Louisiana to assist in Hurricane Katrina recovery efforts. The governor also directed the Illinois National Guard to stand by to travel to Louisiana should the state request Illinois' assistance.

The state of Louisiana made the request to Illinois Emergency Management Agency (IEMA) officials through the Emergency Management Assistance Compact (EMAC). The compact, which includes 48 states, two territories and the District of Columbia, is a mutual aid agreement and partnership that facilitates states assisting other states during emergencies.

The Illinois Emergency Medical Team consists of 10 highly trained doctors and specialists with clinical experience and field experience who can quickly assist in medical disasters, including setting up on site field hospitals. The IMERT team was assembled in Springfield on Aug. 30th and was deployed to Louisiana on Aug. 31st.

On Monday, Aug. 29th, Hurricane Katrina slammed into the Gulf States with winds in excess of 140 miles per hour, inflicting catastrophic and widespread damage across the region. Katrina, downgraded Tuesday to a tropical storm, shattered buildings, smashed cars and boats, toppled trees and flooded entire communities. It's estimated that nearly 75,000 people are being housed in 240 shelters across the region. Nearly five million homes and businesses in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida are without electricity, according to utility companies serving the region. Risk analysts estimate the storm may cost insurers $26 billion, making Katrina potentially the costliest U.S. natural disaster.

In addition to sending medical personnel to Louisiana, Gov. Blagojevich encouraged Illinois citizens who want to help hurricane victims to donate to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund.

Donations to the Disaster Relief Fund can be made by calling 1(800) HELP NOW or 1(800) 257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions may also be sent to your local American Red Cross chapter or through a secure Internet site at www.redcross.org.

Jesse White Warns Public Of Hurricane Katrina-Related Investment Scams

Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White on Sept. 2nd advised the public to beware of investment scams that may arise in the wake of the widespread devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina.

Many of the scam artists prey upon the public using telephone sales people, advertisements, or Internet postings that tout investment pools or bonds to help hurricane victims. They may also advertise supposed water removal or purification technologies and electricity generating devices. These advertisements should be a red flag for investors.

White also urged investors to watch out for oil and gas scams given the rising price of gas and the prospects of even higher prices following Katrina's destruction of Gulf of Mexico's oil refineries.

The Illinois Securities Dept. is responsible for regulating the securities industry in Illinois, which includes the registration of investment products and those who sell them. The Department can be reached at 1(800) 628-7937.

White suggested a few tips to help investors avoid loss: Hang up on cold callers promoting phony oil and gas investments.

Beware of e-mail or Internet messages discussing small companies with new hurricane-related technologies or products.

Use common sense: if the profits sound too good to be true, it is probably a scam.

Statement From Rev. Michael Boland

As our nation begins to deal with the devastating effects of Hurricane Katrina, Catholic Charities has taken action both locally and nationally in order to aid the victims of this national disaster.

Catholic Charities is working to provide emergency assistance to persons coming to our agency from hurricane-stricken areas. We have also created a Disaster Relief Fund in order to aid Catholic Charities agencies in the areas hardest hit by the hurricane.

These Catholic Charities agencies are preparing to provide emergency assistance to those who come to us in need of food, clothing, shelter, housing and counseling once it is safe to return to those communities hit by the hurricane. Catholic Charities will also provide long-term recovery help to victims, including rental assistance, food vouchers, cash vouchers, counseling, and job placement services.

Donations to Catholic Charities' Disaster Relief Fund can be mailed to: Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago, Disaster Relief Fund, 721 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, IL 60610.

Additional information is available on our web site at www.catholiccharities.net or at www.catholiccharitiesusa.org.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul National Council will be coordinating volunteer efforts to those areas affected by this disaster. Individuals or organizations who are interested in helping in the recovery effort are encouraged to contact the national office at (314) 576-3993. Authorities in areas hardest hit by the hurricane are asking that independent groups of volunteers not travel to these communities unless they are part of an organized effort.

During this time of national disaster, our prayers are with the hurricane victims and their families. While we mourn for the heavy loss of lives and homes, we are thankful for the many people in the city of Chicago who have joined with us in order to help their brothers and sisters in need.

Madigan Urges Caution With Charity Calls For Hurricane Aid

Attorney General Lisa Madigan on Sept. 1st urged Illinoisans to be generous, but careful, in their charitable giving, especially over the Internet, to agencies and organizations involved in relief efforts in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

"This is definitely a time for all of us to help the victims of this disaster. But it's an unfortunate fact that natural disasters like Hurricane Katrina can bring out con artists looking to make money off of tragedy," Madigan said.

Should consumers decide to donate to relief efforts, Madigan said it is always best to donate to reputable relief organizations with which they are familiar. Madigan said consumers can check with her office's Charitable Trust Bureau to make sure an organization to which they are considering donating is properly registered. Madigan stressed that some highly respected charities such as the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army and many religious-affiliated organizations do not appear on the Attorney General's Internet list of registered charities because they are exempt from the office's filing requirements.

Many organizations now feature Web sites to make donating more convenient, however, Madigan said consumers should be on guard for Internet-based scams.

For example, consumers may receive e-mails that they should avoid "phishing" e-mails look similar or try to appear to be from well-known organizations like the Red Cross, but contain links embedded within them that take a donor to a fake site with a scam artist on the other end. After the tsunami disaster last year, Madigan said many donors discovered a number of computer viruses were spread by these phony charity messages.

"We have heard today from the Federal Trade Commission that 'phishing' is already well underway in response to Hurricane Katrina," Madigan said. "Simply put, do not respond to any unsolicited e-mail asking for donations. It is best to go directly to a reputable organization's Web site, or call the organization directly to make your pledge."

Madigan said consumers should keep in mind some tips when considering their donation:

Find out if the solicitor is a paid fundraiser. If so, a portion of the contribution will go toward the solicitor's salary. Illinois law requires paid fundraisers to identify themselves and to name the charity for which they are soliciting.

Request written information. A legitimate charity will not hesitate to provide background on its mission and how donations will be used.

Refuse high-pressure tactics such as a solicitor saying a donor must make his or her decision before hanging up.

Never pay the donation in cash. For security and tax purposes, pay by check.

Keep a record of the donation by making a copy of the check, credit card receipt or confirmation number.

Pay close attention to the name of the charity. Sometimes fraudulent charities confuse donors by using names that sound similar to respected, legitimate charities.

Write the full name of the charity on the check, do not use initials.

Madigan said another resource consumers can consult before giving is the Web site www.give.org/reports/index.asp for a listing and reports from some of the major organizations involved in Hurricane Katrina relief efforts.

More information about charitable giving is available by contacting Madigan's Charitable Trust Bureau at (312) 814-2995 or by going online to Madigan's Web site www.illinoisattorneygeneral.gov and click on "Building Better Charities."

Biggart Reacts To Rehnquist Recent Death

U.S. Rep. Judy Biggart (R-IL-13) issued the following statement on Sept. 4th in reaction to the death of Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist:

"The death of Chief Justice Rehnquist is a terrible loss for our nation. During his 34 years on the bench, Chief Justice Rehnquist crafted so many of the most important opinions that have shaped our world. Throughout his tenure, he served the court with the highest degree of honor and integrity. I have no doubt that history will remember him as one of our nation's greatest legal minds."

"As co-chair of the Congressional Caucus on the Judicial Branch, I had the privilege to meet with the Chief Justice to discuss his thoughts on the relationship between the judicial and congressional branches—a relationship he personally worked to improve in recent years."

"I came away from our meeting even more impressed by his intellect and his deep respect for the distinct, yet interconnected roles of the two branches of government."

"I am hopeful that President Bush and the Senate will act promptly and thoughtfully to nominate and confirm a justice and/or chief justice who demonstrates the high quality of jurisprudence that we have known in Chief Justice Rehnquist for more than three decades."

Beef Up Spending

Just before heading home for summer recess, the Senate Appropriations Committee compiled the fiscal 2006 Senate Agriculture Appropriations Act, totaling more than $100 billion, $597 million more than the president's request. Senate appropriators beefed up the agriculture spending bill with 257 special interest research grants and projects totaling $208.7 million. The bill is also saturated with funding for programs that the president suggested terminating, such as $60 million for the Natural Resources Conservation Service's watershed and flood prevention operations. In addition to their usual shenanigans of adding money for unrequested pork projects, appropriators also added lump sums of funding for questionable grant programs including $40 million for rural business enterprise grants and $20 million for economic impact initiative grants.

The Senate will vote on the bill upon their return in September. Hopefully, the Senate will keep the looming $331 billion deficit in mind and trim the excess fat.

All Points Southwest
By THOMAS E. GAVIN

This Labor Day Weekend I took advantage of the great weather, gentle breezes and sunlit skips to enjoy a social round of golf with a few friends. Being fully engrossed in the modest match taking place, I hardly noticed the luxurious grass carpet, surrounded by majestic trees and flowering plants nor the sounds of the squirrels, ducks and geese, and a pair of hawks that sailed overhead calling to each other. This tranquil setting was magnificent. As golfers are wont to do, we were discussing the world's problems and potential solutions when I was struck by a sinking feeling...a gut wrenching wave of nausea...or was it guilt... thinking of my good fortune.

While I was enjoying my holiday, the countless victims of Hurricane Katrina were just trying to find a spot to dry off and examine the damages they have suffered. Their worldly possessions destroyed. The years of sweat and toil to provide for one's family wiped out by a force of nature so final that the most powerful nation on the planet seemed helpless in its wake. I pray that the families that survived this most horrific disaster will be able to reclaim their lives in the months and years to come.

Recognizing that we might not have had a relative or acquaintance impacted by this disaster, we still are obliged to assist our fellow Americans. We must dispense with the blame games and racial innuendoes and get down to the business of helping these people in need. We can each do our part...large or small...be it a modest or large monetary donation to agencies like the American Red Cross Hurricane Relief Fund, Salvation Army, Catholic Charities or one of a number of equally worthwhile agencies. Clothing, shoes, canned goods, bottled water, disposable diapers, and health products are always needed. Just think everyday necessities.

Remember, neighbors, these are the times when our countrymen need our help and support. Do it now!

Joined by agricultural, business and community leaders and legislators at last week's Farm Progress Show held in Decatur, Gov. Rod Blagojevich awarded grants to 30 gas stations across the state to help convert regular gas pumps to E-85 pumps. E-85, an advanced hybrid of ethanol that is 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline, is between 15 and 50 cents cheaper than a gallon of regular gasoline, saving consumers eight to ten dollars with each tank fill-up. According to the National Ethanol Vehicle Coalition, there are 4.5 million E-85 compatible vehicles on U.S. roads, including various models of Ford Taurus, the Dodge Stratus, the Sonoma GMC pickup and the Ford Explorer.

Last year at this time All-Points alerted drivers to House Bill 5129's signing, which promoted E-85, a renewable corn-based fuel. In March of this year the governor launched his E-85 Clean Energy Infrastructure Program—making $500,000 available to gas stations to convert pumps to E-85. There are about 10 gas stations around the state presently offering E-85 to motorists.

Ethanol and E-85 can play an increasing role in America today by reducing our dependence on oil imported from unstable regions of the world, reducing customer energy costs, cleaning the air, and supporting rural economic development by creating jobs and increasing grain prices.

The 2005 Farm Progress Show was a 3-day event billed as the "Superbowl of Agriculture." The show is the largest farm show in the country—showcasing the latest farming innovations, technologies, equipment, products, services and information. Over 450 companies were participants.

As a special bonus, the "Beat Gordon Rice Challenge Hole" and the $10,000 hole in one contest are also available for those who feel lucky. For more questions, information or reservations, call the Foundation office at (708) 974-5740.

Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White is alerting law enforcement that out-of-state vehicles have been granted exemption from Illinois registration requirements to help them travel to assist in Hurricane Katrina relief efforts. The information was relayed on LEADS (Law Enforcement Automated Data System). State law allows the Secretary of State to implement this initiative. The last time the office granted an exemption was last year during the Florida hurricanes.

The current exemption is now in effect through September 30, 2005. The exemption will allow vehicles that do not have interstate plates to pass through Illinois in order to transport relief equipment and/or supplies to Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida for hurricane relief.

Take Steps To Increase Availability Of Gasoline

The Illinois EPA has granted a provisional variance to waive the requirement for the sale, dispensing, supply or transport of "summer" gasoline in Illinois, allowing early use of wintertime gasoline. In addition, the provisional variance waives sticker requirements for gasoline delivery vessels.

As a further effort to increase the supply of gasoline, the provisional variance waives the Illinois requirement for retailers to sell summer gasoline, similar to the waiver of federal requirements issued by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Summer-blend gasoline is required in Illinois from May 1st to Sept. 15th.

The Illinois Petroleum Council sought a provisional variance from applicable requirements of the Illinois Administrative Code until Sept. 15th, 2005, at which time the regulatory control period for summer gasoline ends. The variance also allows gasoline delivery vessels, approved for use in other states, to transport fuel into Illinois.

Further action by the Illinois EPA allows ExxonMobil Oil Corporation in Joliet a provisional variance of their air permit to allow loading of winter gasoline onto barges at the Joliet Refinery Wharf Loading facility, without the vapor collection and control system required during the summer months. This action will also be in effect until Sept. 15th.

United Way Assists Hurricane Victims

Many of you have seen the devastation in New Orleans and the Gulf Area and have reached out to United Way seeking ways to provide assistance. By partnering with United Way you can provide for both the immediate and long term needs of those affected.

Short term needs of emergency food and shelter are being provided by key United Way partners; American Red Cross and FEMA. In all large and small disasters, help beyond the first few days is essential to helping people rebuild their lives. United Ways in the affected area and across the country are working actively to help those affected by the hurricane get the help they need beyond the first few days – services like transitional housing, counseling, access to health care, etc.

For those who want to contribute to the Hurricane Katrina Relief Fund, checks should be made payable to South-Southwest Suburban United Way and reference "Hurricane Katrina Response Fund" in the memo.

Raise Money For People With AIDS

On Thursday, Sept. 22nd bars all across Chicagoland will join together to raise money for families and individuals living with HIV/AIDS. Cbicago-area bars will donate a percentage of their receipts on Sept. 22nd to benefit AIDSCARE. Just like Dining Out for Life, the success of the event depends on getting the word out because the amount of money raised depends on how many people participate by simply patronizing a "Bar AIDS" bar on Thursday, Sept. 22nd.

"Bar AIDS helps those impacted by HIV/AIDS live with dignity and hope," says Elyn Harris, Chief Development Officer of AIDSCARE. "All of the money raised goes directly to providing residential housing, case management, and support services to those in need. Every day more people in our city are infected with the virus and we are raising money for our mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, friends and relatives who are impacted by HIV/AIDS."

AIDSCARE assists children, families and adults living with advanced HIV/AIDS in the Chicago area achieve a better quality of life through housing, care and supportive services. AIDSCARE is one of the largest providers of housing for people living with HIV/AIDS in Illinois.

Visit www.bar-aids.org for an up-to-date list of participating bars.

Open Illinois Schools To Children Displaced By Hurricane

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 1st ordered Illinois public schools to waive residency requirements and enroll any child displaced by Hurricane Katrina who relocates to live with family, friends or in a shelter in Illinois. Hundreds of thousands of children in the Gulf States were displaced by the devastating storm and many schools may not reopen for months, if not the entire school year.

Louisiana officials estimate Hurricane Katrina forced as many as 150,000 school children away from their homes. Mississippi officials estimate 35,000 school children were displaced.

Children, whether traveling alone or with their families, will be considered homeless for enrollment purposes and will be enrolled immediately by local school districts in Illinois. The Illinois State Board of Education and Illinois Dept. of Public Health will also temporarily waive immunization requirements for these children to allow for their immediate enrollment in school. Illinois has more than 4,000 K-12 public schools.

This is the latest in Illinois' efforts to assist the Gulf States in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

Gov. Blagojevich authorized the Illinois National Guard to travel to Louisiana to assist in Hurricane Katrina cleanup efforts. The Illinois National Guard will send large military cargo trucks to Louisiana that can drive through several feet of water to transport supplies and cleanup debris, among other tasks. Up to 210 members of the Illinois National Guard 3637th Maintenance Company in Springfield, along with drivers and a command and control element, will travel to Louisiana to help keep recovery equipment in working order and provide other recovery support.

In addition, the Illinois Dept. of Corrections is sending supplies including blankets and uniforms to prisons in Louisiana.

The governor announced that Illinois' Community College system will accept any student from Illinois who attends college in the Gulf States and needs somewhere to continue their education.

Children's Art Classes

New six-week sessions of Children's Art and Pottery Classes will begin at The Log Cabin Center for the Arts on Saturday morning, Sept. 10, at 9 and 10:30 a.m. The Log Cabin Art Center is part of The Center, 12700 Southwest Highway in Palos Park.

Art instructors Evie Ditzler of Palos Heights, Laura Milkert and Carol Jalowiec of Palos Park, Marilyn VandenBout of Evergreen Park, and Amanda Miller of Orland Park will teach the children to use a variety of artistic media and techniques, including drawing, painting, papermaking, papier-mâché, printmaking, and more. The natural areas of The Center's farm and woods provide subject matter, inspiration and sometimes the raw materials for the classes.

According to Center Program Director Lois Lauer, "The children love these hands-on classes which combine the worlds of art and nature." Lauer adds that the classes are kept small to encourage individual self-expression.

Advance registration is required. For further information, interested persons should call The Center at (708) 361-3650.

19th Annual British Car Festival

The Moraine Valley campus, 10900 S. 88th Ave., will become an outdoor showroom spectacular for the 19th annual British Car Festival on Sunday, Sept. 11th. More than 800 vintage and classic British cars and motorcycles are expected to arrive at the college for a 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. showing. In addition, vendors will be on site offering technical sessions.

Sponsored by the British Car Union, an alliance of 20 British Car Clubs in the Greater Chicago area whose purpose is to enjoy and promote Classic British vehicles, and hosted by Moraine Valley's Student Life Office, the Festival is the 19th annual gathering of British car enthusiasts. The 2004 British Car Festival drew more than 2,000 people, gave away gifts and prizes, and featured a variety of more than 750 British automobiles.

This year there will be expanded activities and more fun, including a chance to walk around on a "guided tour," where spectators can learn the history of each of the individual cars they're seeing. The festival will present British cars ranging from 1928 to present, including Austin, Austin-Healey, Bentley, DeLorean.

Churches To The Rescue

As an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 evacuees await transport to Illinois, churches of all denominations throughout the south side and southwest suburbs have mobilized on behalf of those whose lives have been devastated by Hurricane Katrina.

Saints Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church in Palos Hills is dedicating several of their fundraising activities, including the September 24th bike/run/walk-a-thon to the hurricane relief effort.

Members from New Faith Baptist Church in Matteson assisted Tinley Park in preparing part of Tinley Park Mental Health Center to receive evacuees.

Quinn Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Chicago has been the scene of major meetings to prepare for the embattled guests' housing, nourishment and clothing.

Lighthouse Church in Alsip, which has one of the more active music outreach programs in the area, is planning a concert to benefit the victims.

House of Hope is hoping to bring in $100,000 from a major gospel concert upcoming.

And the list of churches to the rescue goes on.

Illinois Community College Board Establishes Hotline To Help Students Affected By Hurricane

The Illinois Community College Board announced on Sept. 2nd that it had established a hotline for students to call who may need to enroll in local community colleges after being displaced from attending schools closed due to Hurricane Katrina.

Many Illinois college students studying at colleges in New Orleans or near the Gulf Coast have found those institutions closed due to damage or problems caused by Hurricane Katrina. Gov. Blagojevich announced that he had directed the Illinois Community College Board to ensure that all Illinois residents displaced from their higher education by Hurricane Katrina be able to continue their education at an Illinois community college.

ICCB Chair Guy Alongi said that some presidents have already started receiving calls from affected parents and students, and that local colleges will ensure that students are able to continue their studies. To help Illinois resident students, the ICCB established the hotline.

The hotline number is 1(800) 573-4604. Students may also contact their local community colleges directly or via the Internet at <http://www.iccb.org/HTML/colleges/colleges.html> and clicking on the link to their local college.

Every year, teddy bear lovers from around the world gather to learn which bears will be recognized as the best of the best. On Oct. 28th, Teddy Bear and Friends magazine will announce the winners of this year's coveted Teddy Bear of the Year Public's Choice Awards at the October Faire Show and Sale. The awards are recognized as the benchmark for quality design, workmanship, and competition in the teddy bear industry.

Winners of the award, affectionately known as the TOBYs, are picked by the readers of Teddy Bear and Friends. Last spring, a panel of industry experts at the American International Toy Fair in New York chose five bears in each of 15 categories to receive an Industry's Choice Award. From these readers voted for their favorites to win a Public's Choice Award. Past Public's Choice Award winners include perennial favorites Boyds Collection, Steiff, and Bearington. For the first time, a "Best in Show" award will honor the bear that received the most votes overall.

The TOBYs are presented at an awards banquet during the weekend-long October Fair Show and Sale held at the Schaumburg Marriott. The October Fair is presented by ABC Unlimited Productions, who promote teddy bear shows all over the United States.

This year marks the 16th year that Teddy Bear and Friends magazine has sponsored these prestigious awards. Teddy Bear and Friends magazine is the ultimate authority on teddy bear artistry and collecting. For more information, visit <http://www.teddybearandfriends.com> or call 1 (717) 393-8371.

Auditions For Christmas Opera

ArtCraft Theatre Projects announces open auditions for its December production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

The audition date is Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. with callbacks on Thursday, Sept. 15. Auditions will be held in the performance hall at Bethany Union Community Church, 1750 W. 103rd St., in the historic Beverly neighborhood.

"Amahl" is a beautiful story about the Three Kings, who, on their way to see the Christ child, stop and rest at the home of a peasant woman and her crippled son, Amahl. A wondrous miracle occurs that proves they are indeed seeking the Son of God.

Parts being cast are: Amahl, 10-12 year-old boy or girl (child soprano); the Mother, soprano/mezzo soprano; The Kings, (one tenor, 2 baritone/bass); The Page (baritone); and shepherd and villagers chorus (all voice types). An easy dance audition will be conducted, as a quartet of the villagers do take part in a simple folk dance on stage.

The Christmas opera will take place from Friday, Dec. 9 to Sunday, Dec. 11 in the church's performance hall.

Information on the season and auditions can be obtained by calling ArtCraft at (708) 421-1296, or checking its website at www.artcrafttheatre.org.

AIDS Run & Walk In Chicago

Joliet-based Agape Missions, Inc. (formerly the AIDS Ministry of Illinois) will directly benefit from one of the largest AIDS-related fundraisers in the Midwest, the AIDS 5K Run & Walk in Chicago, on Saturday, Sept. 17th, thanks to the AIDS Foundation of Chicago's Community Direct program.

Community Direct is a fundraising program that benefits members of the AIDS Foundation of Chicago's Service Providers Council (SPC). Agape Missions has been a member of the SPC for many years and by forming a local team this year, the agency will receive 50% of all funds the team raises. The remaining 50% is used by AFC to support its prevention, care and advocacy services throughout the Chicago area.

The Chicago event will be held at Columbus and Balbo, with a course winding through Grant Park and along the city's lakefront. This locale, with its view of downtown's panoramic skyline, is easily accessible by mass transit and only a few blocks from large public parking facilities.

For the past 15 years, AML has worked, often quietly behind the scenes, to serve the hundreds of local individuals and families who have been touched by the physical, economic and social impact of HIV and AIDS in Will, Grundy, Kankakee and southern Cook counties. The agency's mission includes case management, transitional housing, spirituality, massage therapy, socialization, counseling, housing advocacy for those living with HIV/AIDS and prevention and education programs for the non-HIV population.

Those wishing to make a pledge to the Agape Missions team or to create a sub-team to help raise funds for Agape Missions can contact Jill Skole at (815) 723-1548, ext. 21.

MDA Telethon Raises Millions

A nationwide outpouring of support for the Muscular Dystrophy Association's annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon brought $54,921,586 to the Association in contributions and pledges.

Special appeals during the Telethon were expected to raise about $1 million for relief efforts in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. These contributions were funneled to the Salvation Army's program, along with a $1 million donation from MDA.

Last year's Telethon raised $59.4 million to fund muscular dystrophy research and services.

The 21½-hour Telethon originated from the International Ballroom of The Beverly Hilton in Beverly Hills, Calif., beginning Sunday night, and was broadcast nationwide and in Canada on nearly 200 TV stations in MDA's "Love Network."

In addition to the tote board figure, which reflects pledges and donations, a number of MDA sponsors presented checks representing their year-round fundraising efforts for MDA. Leading this group was the International Association of Fire Fighters with a record contribution of $21 million.

MDA Board member Ed McMahon returned as the Telethon's anchor, while Jann Carl from "Entertainment Tonight," TV personality Cynthia Garrett and comedian Norm Crosby assisted Lewis as co-hosts.

Knox County Scenic Drive

Every year, thousands gather to celebrate the arrival of autumn and Illinois' rustic heritage by participating in the Knox County Scenic Drive.

The self-guided drive will be held on Saturdays and Sundays, Oct. 1st and 2nd, and Oct. 8th and 9th. It is 100 miles long and allows participants to relive the "old days." Communities peppering the Western Illinois countryside organize educational activities along the route such as teaching city dwellers to make butter the old-fashioned way and weave a basket.

Visitors specifically interested in how rural pioneers lived can tour two renovated one-room schools, a log cabin built in 1832, an oil jailhouse, a restored barn and the Old Knox County Courthouse.

Visitors scheduling their drives during the first weekend in October also can pay a visit to the third annual Galesburg Scarecrow Festival held at the Standish Park Arboretum in Galesburg. The festival offers children's activities, live country music and harvest treats. Festival attendees can vote for their favorite homemade scarecrows in the annual contest.

For more information, contact Knox County Scenic Drive Inc. at (309) 343-2485 or <http://home.gallatinriver.net/scenicdrive>. One also can contact Galesburg Convention and Visitors Bureau at (309) 343-2485, www.visitgalesburg.com or www.galesburg.org/commercecenter/dgbs/scarecrow.html.

drive and festival offer many opportunities to taste food including fresh apple butter at London Mills, old-fashioned chicken and noodles at Smithfield's Red Brick School, funnel cakes at Lewistown and baked goods at Duncan Mills.

Spoon River Valley Scenic Drive

The Spoon River Valley Scenic Drive will take place Saturdays and Sundays, October 1st and 2nd, & October 8th and 9th.

Every year, nearly 100,000 people drive along 130 miles of the Spoon River Valley.

This year's hilly drive is part of the thirty-eighth annual Fall Festival in Fulton County.

Route 66 Mother Road Festival

Route 66 found a place in the history books and hearts of America through its many appearances in songs, movies and television.

The road was immortalized in the film "The Grapes of Wrath," leading impoverished Americans to the promised land over "the Mother Road."

Today, Route 66 is still one of the most famous and scenic drives in America, beginning in Chicago, traversing Central Illinois and ending at the Pacific Ocean near Los Angeles.

All visitors to Illinois can experience Route 66 firsthand by seeking out traditional sites along the way, such as restored gas stations, the Route 66 Hall of Fame in Pontiac or the Funks Grove Maple Syrup Farm in Funks Grove.

Hungry motorists can stop at one of more than 40 historic cafés and restaurants scattered along the route, including the Old Log Cabin Restaurant in Pontiac, home to countless Route 66 items and offering down-home cooking at affordable prices.

An ideal time to careen down Route 66 is during the International Route 66 Mother Road Festival, held September 30th through October 2nd in Springfield. This annual event gathers thousands of vintage car enthusiasts worldwide, and features hundreds of classic vehicles, live entertainment and one-of-a-kind exhibits that line the streets of the state capital.

For more details, contact the Springfield Illinois Convention and Visitors Bureau at (800) 545-7300.

The Great Rivers Byway

Located at the confluence of the Mississippi, Illinois and Missouri rivers, the Meeting of the Great rivers Byway stretches 55 miles and, in early September, offers gorgeous views of Southern Illinois' rich fall foliage.

The route also allows visitors to discover the region's natural and historical heritage, particularly in the historic town of Alton. For instance, in 1673, French explorer Father Jacques Marquette discovered a large pictograph on the bluffs along the Mississippi that represented the Piasa bird, a monster in Native American folklore.

Visitors can learn about the legend of the Piasa bird at the Alton Museum of History and Art and then follow the route southward to see a modern artist's rendition of the pictograph on the side of the cliff.

For families desiring to extend their time in Alton, also known as one of "America's Most Haunted Small Towns" according to the Travel Channel and Fate Magazine, local tour companies offer various haunted tours.

One example is Antoinette's Haunted History Tour, which invites adventurers to board a trolley and visit haunted sites with a tour guide.

Whether hunting for ghosts, learning about haunted history or speaking to spirits, the fright factor is plentiful in Alton.

For another family-friendly activity, visitors can head to Godfrey, starting September 3rd, and get lost in the 2.4-mile Great Godfrey Maze. This year the maze, made entirely of corn, is themed "The Wizard of Oz."

For more information, contact the Alton Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau at (618) 465-6676.

Illinois Parole Reform Program Graduates

The Illinois Dept. of Corrections (IDOC) held a graduation ceremony on Sept. 2nd for 17 parole agents at its general headquarters in Springfield, marking the first parole agent graduate class of the year. The increase in parole agents is part of the governor's Operation Spotlight Parole Reform Initiative that addresses public safety and targets recidivism through the expansion of the agency's parole program.

In his first State of the State address, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced the launch of his four-year plan to transform parole. This plan aims to reduce repeat crime among convicted felons on parole over the long-term by improving three areas: increased parole contacts, more effective risk assessment and support, and improved cooperation with local law enforcement, service providers and the community. The plan is to increase parole agent staffing statewide from 325 to 740 over a four-year period. The plan also is designed to reduce parole agent case loads and provide new case management training, risk assessment and graduated sanction tools that empower agents to effectively steer offenders away from crime and drugs and toward honest work and productive citizenship. All 35,000 parolees receive direct supervision in the community. By the end of fiscal year 2006, the authorized parole agent headcount is 471.

Jewish Federation Collecting For Hurricane Relief

In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, one of the most devastating storms ever to hit the nation, the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago has opened a mailbox to funnel humanitarian aid to the hurricane victims.

The Federation is collecting funds in conjunction with a national effort coordinated by the United Jewish Communities (UJC). The UJC is working with local Jewish federations in the affected regions to help coordinate relief efforts.

Here in Chicago, the Federation's affiliate agencies also are assuming a role in the emergency assistance efforts.

Funds from the Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund will go to support the humanitarian needs of Jewish and non-Jewish residents of the areas affected by Hurricane Katrina. 100% of proceeds will go directly to aid the victims; neither the Jewish Federation nor UJC will deduct any administrative costs.

Individuals wishing to make donations to help the hurricane victims should make checks payable to Jewish Federation Katrina Relief and send them to: Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund, c/o Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago, One South Franklin Street, Room 625, Chicago, IL 60606.

In addition, contributions can be made by credit card via JUF's web site at www.juf.org or by calling (312) 444-2854.

MUSKIE FISHING FEVER - IT RUNS IN THE FAMILY: "We caught and released hundreds of northerns, walleyes, large and smallmouth bass, and muskies, big muskies," said Mark Kirby, New Lenox, who returned from an August Canadian fishing trip with his daughter, 13-year-old Katie.

The father-daughter duo joined friends and relatives who hauled their boats up to Monument Bay on Lake of the Woods. Walleyes caught on jig and minnow provided fare for the traditional shore lunch. The group didn't drive that distance just to enjoy a shore lunch, they were after the fish of a "thousand casts," muskies.

Mark, his wife Donna and Katie have fished for muskies on the lakes near Three Lakes, Wisconsin with some degree of success, and they made other fishing and camping trips in their motor-home.

Katie Kirby and her 18-pound muskie, one of many she caught on Canadian fishing trip.

When the trip was coming to an end, Katie wanted to stay another week, but had to return for the opening of her school, Liberty Jr. High in New Lenox. As consolation, dad agreed to bring her back to Monument Bay next year.

The group used every lure in their tackle boxes, casting for the big ones. Mark and Katie reported the most success with orange and black bucktails. Katie's personal best was a 36 inch-18 pounder. Dad Mark topped out with a 44 inch-25 pounder. They both caught and released many other muskies and large northern pike.

Katie is an avid outdoor enthusiast. In addition to fishing, she enjoys skeet and trap shooting, golf, horseback riding, Girl Scouts, camping, archery and boating, and still has time for school activities including band and cheerleading, and is in the Honor Society.

Don't get the idea that Katie is a "tomboy." She is very much a girl enjoying hanging out with her girlfriends and that feminine pastime: shopping with her mom.

Mark Kirby with 25-pound muskie caught and released on Lake of the Woods, Canada.

This was Mark's fourth, and "not his last" trip to Monument Bay Lodge, a full service facility offering American and House Keeping plans. Amenities include cabins, a guest lodge, boats, motors and guides, and full stock of tackle and baits. For information on Monument Bay Lodge, contact the owners - Jim and Lynne Kafes at (877) 875-4710.

I started this column by stating "Muskie Fishing Fever - It Runs in the Family." This would be a good time to mention that Mark and Katie are my nephew and niece, and I share their passion for fishing and admit to getting an occasional case of "Muskie Fever" myself.

Waterfowl Hunting Seasons Approved

The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources has approved a 60-day duck-hunting season statewide, along with 86-day Canada goose seasons in the north and central zones and a 57-day Canada goose season in the south zone for the 2005-2006 waterfowl season. The Illinois season dates and bag limits will be forwarded to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for concurrence.

The IDNR Natural Resources Advisory Board played a key role in the process, reviewing waterfowl season proposals and considering comments from hunters.

The adjusted south zone dates will also allow hunters to take Canada geese through the end of the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Hunters are reminded of the requirement to register with Harvest Information Program (HIP). This important program is designed to produce more accurate federal harvest estimates, which will ultimately help maximize hunting opportunity without hurting the waterfowl resource. Hunters may register with HIP online through the IDNR web site or by going to www.wetland.net. Hunters may also call 1(800) 938-5263 to register with HIP. HIP registration is mandatory.

Mail Order Pyramid Scheme

Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed suit on Aug. 31st against two Cook County men who allegedly ran identical pyramid schemes to bilk consumers through a phony mail order business they could conduct from home.

Wayne Scott of South Holland, doing business as WorldProfit Marketing, Inc., and Brandon G. Scott of Lansing, doing business as Global Marketing Systems, were named in separate complaints filed in Cook County Circuit Court for violating the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

According to Madigan's complaints, since May 2004, both operators promised consumers earnings of $1,000 a day through a mail order business in their homes. Consumers were offered an "Income for Life Dealership Package," which allegedly included so-called insider information and tips on how to earn money from home through mail order dealerships and promises of a "100% success rate."

Glowing testimonials accompanied direct mail pieces sent by the Scotts who instructed potential victims to mail their enrollment form with two payments. The first payment of $97 was allocated to the marketing firm of each defendant: WorldProfit Marketing in the case of Wayne Scott, and Global Marketing in the case of Brandon G. Scott. Neither firm is incorporated or registered to do business in Illinois. Another $100 went to a "dealer" listed on the enrollment form that had previously "enrolled" in the program and solicited the consumer who received the mailer.

The alleged pyramid continued by instructing the recipient to use the same sales letter they received, insert their name in the "dealer" portion of the letter and entice new persons to join and send a payment to them. To obtain names of potential targets for their direct mailings, consumers were instructed to purchase lists of names and addresses from DAJ Direct or www.MoreNamesNow.com and then e-mail those lists to Lelli Direct Mail for the process to begin again.

Consumers have been unable to contact Wayne Scott d/b/a WorldProfit Marketing and Brandon G. Scott d/b/a Global Marketing about promised guarantees. Since May 2004, dozens of consumer complaints have been filed against the pair with Madigan's Consumer Protection Division, the Federal Trade Commission, U.S. Postal inspectors and the Better Business Bureau.

Madigan's separate complaints against the two Scotts seek to prohibit each from future violations of the Consumer Fraud Act and asks the court to order each to pay a civil penalty of $50,000 per violation and an additional $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud.

Madigan's Consumer Protection Division warns that pyramid schemes and many work-at-home offers are fraudulent and provides tips for consumers on how to protect themselves. Before consumers spend money on a work-at-home offer, they should ask the company representative the following questions to determine the truthfulness of the advertisements or literature:

- What does the job involve? What steps will I have to go through? What tasks will I have to complete?
- How and when will I be paid? Who will pay me?
- How much will I have to pay for the work-at-home program, including costs for supplies, equipment, training and other fees?
- What specific standards must my work meet?
- Request the names and numbers of others who have participated in the work-at-home program.
- Request additional data showing how much people earn.

For more information about pyramid schemes, work-at-home schemes or to file a complaint, consumers can visit Madigan's Web site at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov/consumers or call the Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1(800) 386-5438, TTY 1(800) 964-3013.

Statement Of The Chicago Teachers Union

We applaud a decision by U.S. Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings on Sept. 1st to allow CPS to continue providing tutoring services to struggling students in the Chicago Public Schools. There are more than 80,000 children in CPS who are tutored by members of the Chicago Teachers Union (CTU) as part of CPS' supplemental services program. The parents of these students chose CPS over private vendors to provide these important services because they recognize the understanding, care and personal commitment to their children that only classroom educators can bring to the table. The announcement by federal officials protects the decision made by parents and acknowledges the high quality of academic services that are provided by CTU members.

Last December, CTU joined CPS officials in expressing serious concerns regarding a U.S. Dept. of Education directive to suspend supplemental services provided by CPS. CTU pointed out that the action would have denied essential academic services to tens of thousands of needy children in our city and compromised the overall quality of supplemental services for which some 200,000 CPS students are eligible.

Furthermore, with the support of our national union, the American Federation of Teachers, CTU has continually called on the federal government to provide greater flexibility in the implementation of the No Child Left Behind (NCLB) federal education law. We believe today's action by federal officials is a very positive step in that direction. However, we also believe that there is considerable work to be done in other areas of the law and remain committed to getting all of NCLB right.

CTU members understand the need for constant improvement in educational services. We are proud of our considerable accomplishments in this respect and we are pleased that the U.S. Dept. of Education has taken stock of them. Our union looks forward to continued work on all matters related to NCLB and its impact on Chicago's classroom educators and their students.

Emergency Rules To Prevent Gas Price Gouging

Attorney General Lisa Madigan on Sept. 2nd issued emergency rules, effective immediately, to help prevent price gouging by petroleum-related businesses including producers, suppliers, wholesalers, distributors and retailers of gasoline.

The emergency rules, which have the force and effect of law, were issued under the Attorney General's power to enforce the state's consumer protection laws.

The rules provide that during any market emergency, it shall be an unfair or deceptive act for any petroleum-related business to sell or offer to sell any petroleum product for an amount that represents an unconscionably high price. Under these rules, price is unconscionably high if the amount represents a gross disparity between the price of the petroleum product and either the price charged before the emergency or prices readily obtainable by other buyers in the same area and the disparity in price is not attributable to increased prices charged by the businesses' suppliers or increased costs due to the market disruption.

The rules introduced are part of Madigan's broader efforts to prevent exploitation of the tragedy in New Orleans and the Gulf States.

Madigan emphasized that the rules are intended to clarify that price gouging by a petroleum-related business violates the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act by setting forth factors that will be considered in determining whether sudden spikes in fuel prices are truly market driven or constitute price gouging in violation of the Act. Madigan said such clarification is necessary at this time to ensure that all petroleum-related businesses are aware of and adhere to the law.

The rules are limited to a market emergency, which includes any actual or threatened shortage in supply of petroleum products or any actual or threatened increase in the price of petroleum products resulting from severe weather, convulsion of nature, failure or shortage of electric power or other source of energy, strike, civil disorder, act of war, terrorist attack, national or local emergency or other extraordinary adverse circumstances.

Madigan filed the emergency rules with the Secretary of State. The rules take effect immediately and remain in effect for 150 days. Also, Madigan submitted a proposal which would, if adopted, make the rules permanent.

In other efforts to prevent exploitation of the current tragedy, Madigan has sent her investigators throughout the state to examine price spikes and serve letters that demand more information about the reasons behind those price spikes. She also has required gasoline suppliers to explain increases in the wholesale prices of gasoline and whether they are cutting off supplies to unbranded gasoline stations.

Madigan also is working with attorneys general from other states to prevent price gouging.

Lawsuit Filed To Prohibit Rate Increase

Attorney General Lisa Madigan, Cook County State's Attorney Richard Devine, the Citizens Utility Board (CUB) and the Environmental Law & Policy Center (ELPC) filed a lawsuit on Sept. 1st in Cook County Circuit Court to prohibit the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) from permitting a Commonwealth Edison (ComEd) and Ameren to raise rates for nearly five million business and residential customers based on so-called market prices.

The ICC is currently holding hearings to review ComEd's and Ameren's proposals to base rates on market prices set through the use of electricity auctions. Utility representatives have stated that the resulting rate increase, which would go into effect in 2007, could be as high as 20 percent. Aug. 31st, ComEd announced a proposal for a six percent increase in rates for delivery of electricity. This increase would be on top of the rate increase for electricity purchased at so-called market prices.

According to the lawsuit, using electricity auctions to set market based rates for ComEd and Ameren's "captive customers" would violate the Illinois Public Utilities Act, which expressly prohibits utilities from charging market based rates to customers who have no alternatives for purchasing electricity. ComEd and Ameren have almost five million captive customers whose only option is to purchase electricity from their local utility.

In June, Madigan, Devine, CUB and ELPC asked the ICC to dismiss ComEd's and Ameren's proposals on the grounds that the Illinois Public Utilities Act prohibits charging market based rates to customers who have no alternatives to buying electricity from their utility. An administrative law judge denied these motions and the full ICC affirmed that ruling. The Sept. 1st separate suit asks the Circuit Court to prohibit the ICC from approving these proposals.

Governor Rod Blagojevich sent the ICC a letter on Aug. 31st asking the Commission to dismiss ComEd's request for approval of the auction process, stating that "the Public Utilities Act only authorizes the Commission to approve market based rates for customers who take electric service that has been declared competitive."

Madigan said that one of the nation's leading experts on the electric utility industry, Dr. Kenneth Rose, has documented that customers in other states experienced significant increases in their electricity rates when those states deregulated electric utilities and customers started paying market-based prices for electricity. Ameren and ComEd's auction proposals would move customers to market-based rates before the market is ready, Rose cautions. The proposals don't contain sufficient safeguards to protect residential and small businesses from higher prices, he added.

The need for shelter in the southwest suburbs continues to grow and two additional shelter sites have been added since last fall. Shelter is provided seven nights a week from mid-October to mid-April at southwest suburban churches.

New volunteers should attend an orientation session from 1 to 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 25th at Trinity Lutheran Church, 9701 S. Brandt in Oak Lawn or from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 28th at Sacred Heart Church, 8245 W. 111th St., in Palos Hills. Volunteers may sign up or get information by calling Linda Seyller at (708) 857-1039.

PADS volunteers are asked to work one four or five hour shift per month. There are four different shifts available between 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. The greatest need is for volunteers on the late night and early morning shifts, from 11:45 p.m. to 3 a.m. and 2:45 a.m. to 7 a.m., but all shifts need additional volunteers. Other volunteers are needed to transport linens to Christ Hospital and to prepare and serve food. Doctors and nurses are also needed for the Thursday night medical clinic.

Bringing A Dog Park To Oak Lawn

The Oak Lawn Park District board plans to discuss the possibility of bringing a dog park to Oak Lawn at its meeting on Monday, Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building, 9400 S. Kenton.

"Dog parks are growing in popularity throughout our nation," Commissioner Mary Margaret Wallace said. "This meeting can prove to be very educational for residents interested in bringing a dog park to Oak Lawn."

There are dozens of dog parks located in Cook County including Chicago, South Holland, Westchester, Hanover Park, and Schaumburg. Dog parks are a cost effective way for residents to enjoy leisurely time with their dogs while meeting area residents. With the growing number of condos, apartments, and homes with smaller lot sizes, dog parks provide an excellent opportunity for residents who have limited outdoor space.

Residents are encouraged to attend to express their interest and concerns regarding this issue.

Those interested in more information should contact Commissioner Wallace at (708) 203-1412 or MaryMargaretWallace@hotmail.com.

Commissioner Wallace was elected to the Oak Lawn Park District in 2005.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

Lucinda K. Lysen, RD, RN, BSN

Malnutrition: Can This Be Your Parent's Nursing Home?

Is one of your parents in a nursing home or long-term care facility? If so, chances are, he or she is probably under-eating or not getting enough fluids. Shocking? Not really if you consider the whole picture.

Psychologists will tell you that eating when you are hungry and drinking when you are thirsty are both instinctive and learned. Babies cry when they want to eat and children get irritable. Adults, if able-bodied, usually eat and drink in response to body needs as well as social environment. When an older adult enters a long-term care setting, however, the power to control mealtime, meal choice and to even manage thirst is to a large degree taken over by the healthcare provider. Problems such as inattentive staff and staff shortages can greatly influence this. Compounded by illness and the use of certain medicines, your mom or dad is at high risk for malnutrition and dehydration.

Very commonly prescribed drugs—such as digoxin for heart rhythm and fluoxetine for depression—can decrease appetite. Diuretics given without adequate fluid can dehydrate, and anti-depressants and anti-anxiety meds can dry one's mouth. Diets low in salt to control blood pressure can seem tasteless and also decrease appetite. Mental changes which come with dementia and Alzheimer's can lend themselves to lack of interest in mealtimes or lack of recognition of favorite foods. Appetite loss can also be caused by bereavement, confusion, depression, or simply by dry mouth which decreases the ability to taste.

Many older adults suffer from poor dentition or ill-fitting dentures and/or bad oral hygiene. They may not be able to feed themselves. Stroke patients often have trouble swallowing; arthritis patients sometimes cannot hold eating utensils. Finally, the slower emptying of the stomach which can come with aging, and changes in digestive enzymes (which break down food) can trigger a feeling of fullness before one's plate is empty.

So what can you do to help? The best answer, of course, is to be with your parent as much as you can be, be supportive and encouraging, and be observant. Make note of the problems, so that you may convey them to the appropriate staff. Your presence will not always be possible, so working out a schedule with other family members or a friend could help to keep an eye on the situation. The presence of a family member or close friend at mealtimes or around snack times can help to identify the source of some of your loved one's eating problems. Surprise visits at other times of the day may also give an accurate story of what's going on. For example: look around the room. If the water pitcher is on the window sill and he or she can't get out of bed, this should certainly raise a red flag.

Communication with the staff members is a must. Talk to them about what your parent eats at home, and what some of his or her "favorite" foods are. Ask one of them to write this down on a "likes and dislikes" list which all the staff has access to. Meet with the dietitian to address your parent's needs, and find out who feeds your parent if you cannot be there. Talk to that person as well. And if all else fails, meet with the head nurse and get in touch with your physician. Remember, malnutrition leads to poor immunity and the inability to fight off infections. In an older person, this surely leads to his or her inevitable demise.

One big lesson I have learned along the way, having been on "both sides of the fence"—as health care provider and as daughter—is to ASSUME NOTHING. Communication between the patient, family and the caregivers is the key to successful care. And never be afraid to speak up to the staff if you see something questionable going on.

TROUBLESHOOTING LIST

Take this with you on your visit to your parent. You may be surprised at what you find out.

Fluids. Starting with the water pitcher—where is it?

Food. Are snacks served between meals? Do they meet your parent's needs—nutrient-wise and taste and chewing and swallowing-wise? Does someone do food rounds to make sure your parent likes what he is served, and is getting what was requested?

Exercise. Is your parent ambulating as he or she should be? Busy staff members often forget to get patients out of bed or chairs for exercise. Movement enhances strength and appetite.

Swallowing. Is your parent having difficulty swallowing? Swallowing trouble could warrant a swallowing evaluation; thickened liquids may be needed.

Skin appearance. How does your parent's skin look? Is it dry and scaly? These are signs of inadequate fluid intake.

Staff services. Is there an accessible dietitian? Is there an accessible nurse in charge to resolve any problems with your parent?

Late Medicaid Payments Put Patients At Risk

The Illinois Pharmacists Assn. (IPhA) on Aug. 31st released the results of a survey indicating that many pharmacies may be forced to refuse filling Medicaid prescriptions for low-income seniors and other disadvantaged citizens due to the State's failure to reimburse them for their costs in a timely manner.

The survey sent to 502 independent pharmacies showed that the average amount owed to each pharmacy by the State of Illinois is $182,115. Some independent pharmacies are owed more than $1.5 million. The average waiting period for reimbursements is 111 days with the longest waiting period being an amazing 237 days.

Fifty-five percent of the respondents have had to borrow money in order to stay afloat. Some pharmacists have been forced to take second mortgages on their homes to keep their business doors open. Banks have become less willing to lend money without a guarantee that the State will pay its bills. More than half of the pharmacies involved are deciding whether to refuse new Medicaid patients and almost half are contemplating dropping out of the program in total.

Conversations with IPhA members representing retail chain pharmacies indicate that the results of IPhA's survey are consistent with their findings which are expected to be made public in the near future.

One IPhA independent pharmacist was "shocked and embarrassed" to tell her patient that her cash flow was so tight that she couldn't afford to order the patient's $4,000 monthly medications because of slow Medicaid payments.

IPhA President Gerald Bailey finds it "unconscionable that the State's failure to meet its obligation to pharmacies is putting the health care of every vulnerable people at risk." "The State of Illinois' refusal to address this issue is creating a crisis in our prescription drug delivery system," Bailey said. "While we recognize there are certainly financial challenges that exist within state government, there seems to have been a deliberate decision made to put vital aspects of health care at the back of the priority line. That is a wrong-headed approach, and must be remedied immediately."

The State previously addressed a similar problem by utilizing a short-term borrowing strategy. Bailey stated that IPhA has requested emergency meetings with Gov. Rod Blagojevich and State Comptroller Dan Hynes in hopes of convincing them to consider that option to deal with this deepening crisis. State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka's office has pledged to work with IPhA to resolve the issue.

The Illinois Pharmacists Assn. is the state's largest and oldest organization representing pharmacy. Members consist of independent retail and chain store pharmacists, hospital and long-term care pharmacists, and pharmacy technicians. IPhA is dedicated to enhancing the professional competency of pharmacists, advancing the standards of pharmacy practice, improving pharmacists' effectiveness in assuring rational drug use in society, and leading in the resolution of public policy issues affecting pharmacists.

Prostate Cancer Month

For the second year, the Cook County Department of Public Health is promoting awareness of prostate cancer with a September campaign called, Autobody: Maintenance for Men. The Autobody campaign is geared toward men to remind them that their bodies, like their cars, need regular "tune-ups" to keep them running smoothly.

The prostate is a male sex gland and part of a man's reproductive system. About the size of a walnut, it is located below the bladder and in front of the rectum. Prostate cancer occurs when cells within the prostate grow uncontrollably, creating small tumors.

Screening tests such as PSA's or DRE's (digital rectal exams) can detect prostate cancer in the earliest stages. PSA is a simple blood test that measures the level of protein called prostate-specific antigen. The DRE is a simple, safe physical exam performed by a physician that can detect those cancers that may be missed by the PSA screening. Using both tests together is the most effective method of diagnosis.

Though the precise cause of prostate cancer is unknown, some risk factors for developing the disease include advanced age (over 65 years), family history, poor nutrition and physical inactivity.

African-American men are 65% more likely to be diagnosed with prostate cancer than Caucasian-Americans and are more than twice as likely to die from it.

Prostate cancer is the second most common form of cancer among men in the United States with 230,000 cases diagnosed and almost 30,000 deaths in the U.S. in 2004. According to the American Cancer Society, over 1,200 Illinois men will die from prostate cancer by the end of 2005.

For screening information contact the Cook County Department of Public Health at (708) 492-2000, or visit www.cook-countypublichealth.org.

Rosacea's Effect On Appearance

No matter whether a person has a mild, moderate or severe case of rosacea – a red-faced, acne-like disorder affecting an estimated 14 million Americans – it can be devastating to one's social life, often making it difficult to appear in public or establish new relationships because of its effect on personal appearance, according to a new survey conducted by the National Rosacea Society and published in Rosacea Review.

In the survey of 660 rosacea patients, 86 percent of respondents with severe rosacea reported it had inhibited their social lives and 67 percent with moderate rosacea were also affected, compared to 38 percent of those with mild cases.

Of the respondents with severe rosacea, 74 percent reported they had avoided public contact or canceled a social engagement because of the disorder's effect on their facial appearance, and 65 percent had even found it difficult to establish new relationships.

In addition, 42 percent of patients with moderate rosacea and 18 percent with mild rosacea reported canceling social engagements because of a flare-up and 44 percent and 19 percent, respectively, found establishing new relationships difficult.

Seventh-three percent of respondents with severe rosacea reported being the subject of stares, misconceptions, rude comments or jokes because of their skin condition, while 63 percent of those with moderate rosacea and 37 percent with mild rosacea reported these reactions from others.

"The results of this survey underscore the importance of long-term care to prevent rosacea from getting worse," said Dr. William James, professor of dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania. "Beyond its physical effects, this is a chronic disorder that calls for ongoing attention because of its potential social consequences, as well as its impact on many people's emotional and professional lives."

Rosacea is a chronic disorder that usually first strikes between the ages of 30 and 60 as a flushing or redness on the cheeks, nose, chin or forehead that comes and goes. As the condition progresses, the redness becomes more persistent, small dilated blood vessels may become visible and bumps and pimples often develop. In severe cases, the nose may become red and swollen from excess tissue, and in many individuals the eyes also become irritated, a condition known as ocular rosacea.

Adding to the potential embarrassment is a common misconception that the flushed face and swollen red nose experienced by many rosacea sufferers are the result of heavy drinking. However, while alcohol may aggravate the condition, the symptoms may be just as severe in a teetotaler.

"When I was a teacher, the school principal made nasty comments about my complexion and even asked if I was drinking. I do not drink alcohol and never did," one survey respondent commented, while another said, "I don't have a social life anymore." Another respondent lamented, "It has impacted my career path negatively," while another commented, "It prohibits me from being the real me."

Ovarian Cancer Awareness

In an effort to increase understanding, early detection and survival of ovarian cancer, the Illinois Division of the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition launches an information campaign this September. 2005 marks the sixth observance in the U.S. of National Ovarian Cancer Awareness Month to encourage women to learn the risks and symptoms of ovarian cancer.

Goals of the campaign are to:

Educate the general public, as well as the medical community, about the risk factors and symptoms of ovarian cancer.

Empower women to take charge of their health care.

Increase early detection and, therefore, survival from this disease.

It is estimated that one in 55 women will develop ovarian cancer in her lifetime. Every woman is at risk. This year, it is estimated that 22,220 new cases of ovarian cancer will be diagnosed and 16,210 will die from this disease – making ovarian cancer the number one cause of death from all gynecological cancers and the fourth cause of cancer death in women.

The National Ovarian Cancer Coalition's theme is "It whispers...so listen." This is based on the symptoms of the disease, which are so subtle, they are likened to a whisper. "Ovarian cancer symptoms are vague. As a result, early diagnosis is key and can increase a woman's chance for survival by 400%," explains Holly Jensen, ovarian cancer survivor and NOCC-IL Division President.

NOCC-IL is a state division of National Ovarian Cancer Coalition, a not-for-profit corporation headquartered in Boca Raton, Florida. For more information on ovarian cancer symptoms and risk factors, visit www.ovarian.org or call 1(888) OVARIAN.

Despite its devastating social effects, many rosacea sufferers falsely assume that, like teenage acne, their complexion problem will eventually go away by itself. Fortunately, medical treatment and lifestyle changes can bring the unsightly symptoms of rosacea under control, and nearly 70 percent of all survey respondents said effective therapy had improved their social lives.

Anyone who suspects they may have rosacea is urged to see a dermatologist for diagnosis and appropriate treatment.

For information and educational materials on rosacea, write the National Rosacea Society, 800 S. Northwest Highway, Barrington, IL 60010, or call its toll-free number at 1(888) NO-BLUSH. Information and materials are also available on the society's Web site at www.rosacea.org, or via e-mail at rosacea@aol.com.

Mental Illness Family Support Group To Meet

A self-help support group for relatives and friends of persons with serious mental illnesses (brain disorders) will meet at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 8th in the Church of Christ, 4010 W. 206th St. (at Crawford/Pulaski) in Matteson.

The group meeting, sponsored by the south suburban affiliate of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, will be led by experienced, volunteer facilitators. The session can be helpful – and hopeful – for family and friends whose loved ones have mental illnesses.

Family Support Group meetings are held on the second Thursday of each month throughout the year at the same time and location. There is no charge to attend. For further information about the meeting and/or the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill (NAMI), call John Rowley at (708) 798-3862.

In Case Of Emergency Phone Numbers

Calling it a simple step that could make a life or death difference during an emergency, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Aug. 18th announced a statewide initiative to encourage Illinoisans to save "In Case of Emergency" entries in their personal cell phones under the acronym "ICE." That information could be accessed by emergency personnel at an accident scene or in the hospital emergency room to contact a family member or friend, who could provide potentially life-saving medical details about the incapacitated victim.

Gov. Blagojevich also directed all state emergency personnel to look for ICE numbers when helping individuals who are unconscious or otherwise unable to provide personal information. He encouraged local police, firefighters, emergency medical technicians (EMTs), hospital personnel and other emergency workers to do the same.

The ICE idea was started by a London paramedic to deal with a long-standing problem encountered by emergency workers – how to contact relatives or other interested parties for a victim who is unconscious, unable to respond to questions or deceased. British cell phone users were urged to put the ICE numbers into their cell phone address books before the name of the person they wanted contacted if they are ever incapacitated. Cell phone users can easily create entries such as "ICE – Mom" or "ICE – Katie" to let emergency workers know quickly who to contact if they are unable to communicate. Additional emergency contacts can be listed by simply noting ICE 1, ICE 2, etc.

In the wake of the London bombings, word is spreading quickly over the Internet on a grassroots basis and in news reports, but no state has officially launched a program until today.

A National Anthem Project is underway to help re-teach Americans the importance of "The Star Spangled Banner." The project, a multi-year effort, is led by the National Association for Music Education (MENC). Mrs. Laura Bush serves as an Honorary Chairperson.

The campaign launch comes on the heels of a recent Harris Poll that shows two out of three Americans do not know the words to "The Star Spangled Banner" and many are unaware of the historical events that inspired the penning of the song. The goal is to change the practice of Americans listening to a soloist perform the anthem, particularly at special events, and to encourage everyone to sing the anthem together.

The campaign is led by the project's official musical ambassadors, The Oak Ridge Boys, and is supported by leading organizations across the country, including the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., the American Legion and the History Channel.

This multi-faceted campaign will include curriculum efforts in schools across the country, special performances and alliances with professional sporting events, public service announcements and special events in cities nationwide. Legal Battle To Stop Moving F-16s

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich and Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed a motion for a temporary restraining order in federal court on Sept. 1st to stop U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission (BRAC) from moving F-16 aircrafts from the 183rd Fighter Wing in Springfield. Gov. Blagojevich and Attorney General Madigan have said that the Pentagon's May 13th recommendation, which the BRAC Commission also endorsed last week, violates federal law, which dictates that he must give his consent for this type of realignment. Madigan filed the motion for a temporary restraining order on behalf of the governor in United States District Court for the Central Division of Illinois, Springfield Division. This latest legal action follows a lawsuit that was filed in federal court on July 21st blocking the Pentagon's initial recommendation.

Legal counsel for the BRAC recently issued a memo in which he fully agreed with the legal arguments that the State of Illinois has been making all along. BRAC Deputy General Counsel Dan Cowhig wrote that no change in the organizational structure of an Air National Guard Unit can take place without the consent of the state's governor.

The Springfield Air National Guard Base offers unique training opportunities for our military that are second to none and a highly strategic location for homeland security missions for both Illinois and the entire Midwest. Illinois is also home to 11 nuclear power plants that provide 50 percent of our power generation. Further, Illinois has 28 locks and dams on the Illinois, Mississippi and Ohio rivers. If these recommendations are adopted, these vital assets, and many others, will be at greater risk without the F-16s in Springfield. This would also leave Illinois with only two Air National Guard flying units, which is the same number as several states with much smaller populations, including Alaska, Arkansas and Hawaii.

The governor has been leading a coordinated effort for nearly three years with the Illinois Congressional Delegation, other elected officials and local leaders to prevent Illinois' military bases from ending up on the BRAC list. He consistently has stressed that these actions are a threat to our national and homeland security and are not cost effective.

The Commission must publicly release its final BRAC report by Sept. 8th and will send it to President Bush. The President has until Sept. 23rd to approve or disprove the list. The BRAC list must then be sent to Congress by Nov. 7th, which is given the opportunity to disprove the list through a joint resolution.

Presentation Of Flags

New Deployment Includes National Guard and Firefighters

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced Sept. 5th that he is deploying nearly 1,100 more Illinoisans to help Louisiana respond to the devastation resulting from Hurricane Katrina, one of the largest natural disasters to ever occur in the U.S. The latest deployments include nearly 600 firefighters who left Monday and 500 National Guard troops departing for Louisiana on Wednesday.

The Governor said Illinois activated the Mutual Aid Box Alarm System (MABAS), the fire services mutual aid system, to deploy nearly 600 firefighters from around Illinois to supplement New Orleans' over-taxed fire department. The fire services contingent is expected to remain in Louisiana for two weeks.

The three National Guard units who were deployed to Louisiana include the 33rd Area Support Group, based in Chicago, for logistics, maintenance and transportation; the 634th Forward Support Battalion, based in Sullivan, Champaign and Springfield, for supply maintenance and medical support; and Detachment 3, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 35th Infantry Division, based in Decatur, which will assist in command and control of National Guard forces from states other than Louisiana and Mississippi. Those two states will remain under their states' control.

This latest deployment brings to 800 the number of Illinois National Guard troops sent to Louisiana. On Friday, Sept. 2nd, 300 Illinois National Guard troops and more than 50 vehicles departed from Camp Lincoln in Springfield.

On Sunday, Sept. 4th, the Governor announced Illinois will take in 5,000 to 10,000 displaced victims from the areas ravaged by Hurricane Katrina, providing housing, medical care, food, clothing and any services displaced families and individuals need at this time of crisis. The Governor also called on the entire community to match the state's coordinate relief effort.

New Salem Descendants Sought For 175th Reunion

What if you attended a family reunion and discovered that all of the people there had a direct connection to Abraham Lincoln? Just such a reunion is being planned for July 8th, 2006 at Lincoln's New Salem State Historic Site near Petersburg, Illinois.

The 175th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's arrival at the Sangamon River town of New Salem has been scheduled, and a call is being put out to all direct descendants of the residents who lived there during the six years Lincoln called the log village his home. A full list of known original settlers is available on the home page of the Lincoln's New Salem web site at www.lincolnsnewsalem.com.

"We encourage anyone who thinks they have a connection to 1830s New Salem to visit our web site," said Lincoln's New Salem Site Manager David Hedrick. "And we look forward to a great family reunion next July."

Those who are descendants of the original New Salem settlers, or those who need more information, may email newsalem@ihpa.state.il.us, or write to Lincoln's New Salem State Historic Site, Attn: Barbara Archer, 15588 History Lane, Petersburg, IL 62675. All persons who provide their own name and the name of the person from whom they are descended will receive an invitation and registration form in early 2006. All descendants attending must pre-register.

The tentative July 8th, 2006 family reunion schedule calls for a barbecue dinner, tours of the 1830s log village with costumed interpreters, recognition of descendants, and a brand new Theatre in the Park production of "Abraham."

Lincoln's New Salem State Historic Site, administered by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, is located along Illinois Route 97 about two miles south of Petersburg and 20 miles northwest of Springfield. It is open daily for free public tours.

"No Pork" Challenge

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) recently challenged members of Congress to block funding for unrelated pork projects in its aid package for hurricane recovery, and to help offset the bill's cost by returning the $24 billion worth of earmarks in the recently enacted highway bill. Congressional leaders expect to negotiate an emergency supplemental spending bill when Congress reconvenes this week. Hurricane Katrina has been called the most expensive disaster in the country's history. One expert said that federal aid could top $30 billion, which will add to the $331 billion deficit predicted for fiscal 2005.

"In the past, Congress has shortchanged our troops, disaster victims, and taxpayers by including self-serving pork projects in emergency spending bills," CAGW President Tom Schatz said. "Maybe this time, the widespread devastation and loss of life will shame them into forgoing egregious spending that will hinder recovery efforts and add to the deficit."

Emergency supplemental bills have become a magnet for pork because they do not count against House and Senate budget caps and such bills are always signed by the President. Past examples include:

In April 2005, Congress passed the $80 billion Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror, and Tsunami Relief (H.R. 1268), which included $25 million for the Fort Peck Fish Hatchery in Montana and $500,000 for the oral history of the Negotiated Settlement Project at the University of Nevada, Reno, and the Fire Sciences Academy in Elko, Nevada.

In October 2003, Congress included $65 million worth of extraneous projects in the fiscal 2003-Emergency Supplemental portion of the fiscal 2004 Legislative Branch Appropriations Act. President Bush requested $1.9 billion to help cover natural disasters, homeland security, and costs associated with the Space Shuttle Columbia disaster. Sen. Arlen Specter (R-Pa.) grabbed $1.4 million for three projects in Pennsylvania, including $1 million to establish centers of excellence for the treatment of autism and $200,000 for the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine for a minority outreach program.

In April 2003, Congress passed a $78.5 billion War Supplemental Appropriations bill. Lawmakers shamefully seized the opportunity to tack on funds for 29 unrelated projects, which cost more than $348 million, including: $110 million for the National Animal Disease Center in Ames, Iowa; $22.7 million for a Capitol power plant; and $200,000 for Light of Life Ministries in Allegheny County, Pa.

"Every disaster warrants an appropriate response," Schatz concluded. "But Congress will confirm taxpayers' worst assumptions if it hijacks this tragedy for parochial interests. Members of Congress should help offset the cost of the supplemental by returning the $24 billion for the 6,400 earmarks in the highway bill."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

They don't wear badges or uniforms, and although they may live next door to you, you might not know that they are everyday "apostles of charity," quietly and confidentially helping people in your neighborhood and community. Their mission is to help people who are poor, in need or in crisis, and they do so solely for the love of God and their neighbor.

From Aug. 31st to Sept. 3rd, Chicago welcomed one of the largest charitable organizations in the country and in the world as 700 representatives from every one of the United States and guests from several foreign countries participated in the 91st National Meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, hosted by the Society's Chicago Archdiocesan Council.

To honor all its unseen members, who care for their suffering neighbors with deep respect, in confidence and without fanfare, I am taking this opportunity to publicly recognize and thank the members of this extraordinary voluntary Society, made up entirely of lay men and women in the Archdiocese of Chicago and around the globe. As the North Central Region and Archdiocese of Chicago Spiritual Advisor for more than 10 years, I know firsthand the Society's great spirit of charity.

Last year, inspired by the love of God and the example of St. Vincent de Paul, 115,800 "Vincentians" throughout the United States served almost 14.5 million people in need, of all faiths, ethnicities and ages.

In Cook and Lake Counties, the 2,300 men and women of the Society in the Archdiocese of Chicago cared for the needs of more than 264,000 people - family by family, person by person - providing food, clothing, furniture, household articles, financial and medical assistance valued at $2.9 million.

They did so in a personal manner - visiting the homes of families and individuals suffering from unemployment, illness, financial or medical crisis - assessing their needs in a spirit of respect and compassion, and quickly responding with assistance. All material and financial resources are donated by parishes, individuals and benefactors.

The foundation for this worldwide network of charity was laid in the life of St. Vincent de Paul, a 17th century priest who devoted his life to serving the poor, but the movement was made universal by Frederic Ozanam, a young lawyer, husband and father. Inspired by Vincent's ideals of love for the poor and challenged by the plague of widespread poverty in 19th century Paris, Frederic founded the Society of St. Vincent de Paul as a college student in 1833 to meet the needs of the desperately poor.

The Society grew quickly because it mobilized people of ordinary means who gathered in prayer and reflection in their parishes and were empowered by God's love to help the poor in their own parishes and communities. In 1845, the first American conference (parish group) was established in St. Louis.

In 1857, only 20 years after Chicago became a city, four laymen and their pastor established the first conference of the Society in St. Patrick's Parish. Today, the Archdiocese is blessed by 148 parish conferences in Cook and Lake Counties. In Chicago, the Society operates many parish food pantries and three clothing and household thrift stores.

Rooted in their Christian faith, steeped in the Vincentian ideal of charity - the love and service of the poor for the love of God - and using Frederic's practical, parish-based model of service, members of the Society faithfully live out Christ's mandate in the Gospel of Matthew to visit, feed, clothe, house, welcome and comfort our brothers and sisters in need.

Devoted to spiritual growth and compassionate care for the poor, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul was the inspiration for the development of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago in 1917, and remains a valued partner in charity to this day.

We can all be grateful for this wonderful organization among us that is dedicated to offering the gifts of love, hope and human dignity to all.

Rev. Michael M. Boland, Administrator
President & CEO

Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago

Winter Heating Grants Available

With some heating bills expected to rise this winter, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced as of Thursday, Sept. 1st, vulnerable households and those currently without home heating due to service disconnections would be able to apply for one-time grants through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) to meet their winter heating needs.

The Energy Information Administration, which releases official energy statistics from the U.S. Government, stated earlier this month that, "average heating oil prices will be about 16 percent higher this winter compared to the 2004-2005 winter." Through LIHEAP, run by the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS), heating bill payments will be made on behalf of seniors, the disabled, families with very young children, those currently without home heating due to service disconnections, and people with medical conditions that would be aggravated by cold.

LIHEAP is a state- and federally-funded energy assistance program that assists households with incomes of up to 50 percent of the federal poverty level. A single-person household can qualify with a monthly income of up to $1,196, a two-person household up to $1,604, and a family of four can earn up to $2,420. Benefits will be paid directly to the household's appropriate utility.

LIHEAP serves as many households as possible while giving priority to households with the greatest energy burden and households whose health and safety is threatened. For a complete listing of LIHEAP's local administering agencies and additional information about the grant program, go to www.liheapillinois.com, or call the toll-free LIHEAP information line at 1-800-252-8643.

"Kids Helping Kids"

Good things really do come in little packages...especially at this time when there is an enormous need for support after the devastating destruction of Hurricane Katrina. That is why the Children's Museum in Oak Lawn is setting up a "Kids Helping Kids" fund to aid the children and families who have been affected by Hurricane Katrina. All proceeds will be donated to America's Second Harvest, the nation's largest charitable hunger-relief organization based here in Chicago. One hundred percent of the contributions the museum collects and sends to America's Second Harvest will be used for disaster relief. Opportunities to donate and more information about the "Kids Helping Kids" fund will be available during the Fall on the Green event (Sept. 10-11) and the Harvest Home Festival (Oct. 1), as well as the museum itself and on the museum's website at www.cmoaklawn.org.

In conjunction, the museum is asking kids across the Southland region to write a letter or draw a picture to send to the children in the disaster areas. What a great way of letting them know that other kids - even as far away as Chicago - are thinking about them and trying to help in their time of need. These letters will be sent at a later time, once the urgent needs of food, shelter and emergency care have been met. The museum also has resource materials for parents on the subject of talking to kids about disasters.

Contributions, letters and drawings can be sent directly to The Children's Museum in Oak Lawn at 9600 E. Shore Drive, Oak Lawn, IL 60453. Checks should be made out to America's Second Harvest with the words "Katrina Relief" on the memo line. Credit card donations will be accepted in person at the museum. You may also charge a contribution over the phone by calling (708) 423-6709 Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information on The Children's Museum in Oak Lawn, contact Elizabeth Gelman at (708) 423-6709.

Monetary donations, cash and checks are also being accepted. Checks must be made payable to Town of Worth with a notation in the memo portion "Hurricane Relief." A receipt will be issued for the donation(s).

50th Anniversary Of The Park Forest Art Fair

What started as a small group of artists meeting to practice their craft more than half a century ago has now become one of the most well-respected arts groups in the Midwest, and this year that group, the Tall Grass Arts Assn., celebrates its 50th anniversary with the 50th edition of the Park Forest Art Fair, one of the oldest juried art fairs in Chicagoland - Sept. 17th and 18th, in downtown Park Forest.

Over 120 artists in a variety of artistic mediums will display their works, most of which are available for sale. The Park Forest Art Fair is free and open to the public on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 17th and 18th from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Food and refreshments are available, plus musical entertainment and children's activities, including art contests and storytellers from the Park Forest Library.

Artists from as far away as Florida, Oklahoma, Kansas and numerous Midwestern states will display affordable fine art including watercolors, oils, sculptures, jewelry, pottery, photography and much more. About 50% of the artists exhibiting in the fair are from the Chicago metro region.

Sponsored by the Tall Grass Arts Assn., the Park Forest Art Fair is consistently one of the largest events of its kind in the Chicago area. The Tall Grass gallery, located at 367 Artists Walk in downtown Park Forest, will be open during the fair, displaying its permanent collection.

Legislation Protecting Newborn Babies

Legislation protecting babies that are born alive at any stage in their development was signed into law recently, reported State Sen. Christine Radogno (R-Lemont).

Sen. Radogno was a sponsor of House Bill 984, known as the Born Alive Infant Act, which defines a "person," "human being," "child" or "individual" as every infant member of the species Homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development. The law distinguishes that a newborn is a person regardless of whether or not the umbilical cord has been cut, and despite whether the baby was the result of a natural or induced labor, a cesarean section, or an abortion.

Radogno explained that by including "born alive infants" in the definition of a "person," living newborn babies are extended the same protections of every state law that includes people, including laws on murder. "This law simply ensures that all newborn infants who are born alive are given the same legal protections as you and me, regardless of the circumstances surrounding their birth," said Radogno.

The senator specifically noted that the new law was in no way intended to affect any state or federal law concerning abortion, or to change any generally accepted medical standards. The law will go into effect on Jan. 1st, 2006.

Alumna Alex Meneses Visits McAuley

On September 1, actress Alex Meneses, famous for her role as Robert's girlfriend in "Everybody Loves Raymond," visited her alma mater, Mother McAuley High School, and spoke with students in the Theatre Seminar II class.

"It was an inspiration to be able to speak with a McAuley grad that has made it! She gave candid and honest answers to all of our questions and is a proud alumna," said senior Jenna Perusich, of Mount Greenwood.

Meneses, who lives in California, was in town visiting for a few days and made it a point to stop by her old school. She hopes to be able to return more often in the future and help students who are interested in entering the acting field.

She has also starred in "Auto Focus," the 2002 film about "Hogan's Heroes" star Bob Crane. In "Everybody Loves Raymond," she won the role in a special episode in which the entire family travels to Italy. She portrayed Stefania, the "gelato girl" that Robert (Brad Garrett) falls in love with. Her performance drew so much fan mail that she was featured in several episodes throughout the season. The role garnered a 2002 ALMA Award nomination as Best Supporting Actress in a Television Series.

Her feature credits include "The Flintstone's Viva Rock Vegas" and "Selena" as well as the independent films "Kissing Miranda" and "Living in Peril." Her television credits include "Dr. Quinn Medicine Woman," "Friends," "Dharma & Greg" and "The John Larroquette Show." In her spare time, Meneses enjoys hiking, cooking, rollerblading and traveling home to Chicago. She is originally from the Marquette Park area. (Biography information courtesy of Cinema.com)

OakLawn Residents Address Board Seeking Help With

Neighborhood Concerns

Residents of Komensky Avenue between 103rd Street and 100th Street appeared at the Oak Lawn village board meeting to seek the village's help in the ongoing problems with the residents of the apartments on Pulaski. Their complaints of threats to family members and neighbors, pets being poisoned, drugs both prescription and street being discovered in their yards, rats due to garbage being tossed into the alley and their yards, speeding and reckless driving in the alley and on their street and the recent shooting have the residents living in fear. Children are not allowed to play in back yards and few venture out at night. The residents have seen increased police presence, but are looking for permanent solutions to the problems. Mayor Heilmann promised the support of all the departments and a possible meeting with the landlords.

Also, of concern to residents who spoke at the open meeting was the "secret meeting" held between Trustees Joy, Hurckes, and Rosenbaum and representatives from Target. One resident reminded that the past election provided that the residents of Oak Lawn are opposed to secret meetings. Both Trustee Joy and Hurckes insisted that they were very aware of the Open Meetings Act and had done nothing illegal. They just had questions that they needed answered. Debbie Fegan requested information about removing a trustee.

A resident questioned the rent being charged to leasee of the entire second floor of the 5210 W. 95th St. building. The building is owned by the village. The leasee of a much smaller space pays a much higher rate per square foot than that of the second floor leasee. The mayor will have agents reevaluate the price per square foot.

Builder Dan O'Donnell, who was seeking lot variations for the property at 9006 and 9008 S. Parkside, was chastised by Trustee Streit for testing the Village Code at every level after O'Donnell admitted that he had made a mistake in the past and had paid the fines but since then he has not had a complaint. Trustee Olejniczak, since the lots are in his district, moved the decision be delayed until he had a chance to investigate.

Action on the establishment of the Special Service Area -Target Municipal Parking Lot was postponed until a thorough investigation of the flood plain can be made amid cheers of residents.

The board approved an amendment to an ordinance approving the new hire for the position of equipment maintenance division manager by including the position in the current municipal pay and benefits ordinance after a heated exchange between Trustees Joy and Streit. Trustee Joy stating that she felt promoting from the ranks rather hiring from outside would have been more appropriate. Trustee Streit questioned Trustee Joy about how many crew chiefs had been promoted from within, when Trustee Joy stated she did not know, Streit informed her there were none. However a municipal employee stated that Streit was wrong and named names of those so promoted. Streit qualified his statement by adding he meant supervisors and again the same employee named names of those who were so promoted.

Mayor Heilmann reported that an intense study of the deficit budgets for the last three years and an even more in depth study of last years budget, ways to reduce deficit spending have been found. The village has been paying a 5% fee for insurance at a cost of $150,000. Some insurance brokers charge a flat fee of as low as $25,000 for the same service. the village will seek proposals for a new rate. Payment of medical benefits for someone no longer employed by the village have stopped as have contributions to the IMRF for a position no longer considered to be a village employee. Elimination of the 87th Street TIF, saving the village developer incentives and promoting new taxes when the property is developed. Travel and conference expenses have been suspended unless the conference fees have already been paid. Promotions with large raises particularly for those who are nearing retirement have been suspended.

The board then adjourned to executive session at 10:30 p.m.

Fugitive Sentenced

After his fourth arms-related offense spanning 2001 and 2002, Oak Lawn man, Mohamed Nakhleh, 25, has been sentenced to between 12 and 60 years in prison.

The problem is he has not been seen since last winter after posting $75,000 for his release.

He committed his latest crime after losing his temper and shooting a Homer Glen teenager on 95th Street.

Earlier crimes included aggravated discharge of a firearm in 2001; aggravated unlawful use of a weapon in 2002; and possessing weapons in a penal institution in 2002 while doing time for the first 2002 incident.

Orphans Of The Storm

Like many people watching the Gulf Coast devastation unfold on television, Illinois State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka staffer Alissa Camp watched as both people and animals faced uncertain futures.

With tears in her eyes, Camp decided that contributing to the American Red Cross was just a start. An avid animal lover, she determined quickly to head into the afflicted zone armed to do whatever was needed.

As Topinka's Director of Unclaimed Property, Camp expanded her Internet search beyond animal shelters and local governments until she reached her counterpart in Mississippi, Liz Welch, chief deputy for unclaimed property with the State of Mississippi.

With plans to get as close to the devastation as possible, word of Camp's mission has spread, and money and supplies have begun to arrive. Volunteers are dropping off supplies for the pets as well as for people before she begins her journey to Jackson, MS early next week.

"The money helps with buying items that are needed," Camp said. "We are also bringing supplies to the (American) Red Cross. Everyone is very touched and appreciative that we are coming."

Camp had originally planned to take her small extended cab truck but with all of the incoming donations, she now has enough supplies to fill larger vehicles.

Camp won't be returning empty handed. She intends to bring some pets back with her to place into new homes, an activity she has done numerous times in the past.

"Both the Treasurer and I will be fostering some animals as long as needed," Camp explained. "My own pets are used to animals coming and going, it doesn't affect their routine."

Camp will have the available pets listed on the Treasurer's website which features an animal adoption program which, to date, has found homes for over 250 pets.

Additional information on donating supplies or money can be obtained by calling (217) 836-0366 or by visiting the Treasured Pets website at www.state.il.us/treas.

Tour Chicago's Plymouth Rock

Friends of the Chicago Portage will continue its series of free public tours of the Chicago Portage National Historic Site on Saturday, Sept. 17th, at 10 a.m.

Chicago owes its very existence as a city to the location of the Chicago Portage. The first European explorers, Louis Joliet and Jacques Marquette, learned of the Portage in 1673. It provided an easy connection between the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico by linking Lake Michigan with the Mississippi River.

Since the city was established, nearly every site of Chicago's origins has been destroyed. The remains of Fort Dearborn are buried under three layers of Wacker Drive, the Portage Trail is completely paved over, old "Mud Lake" is now the site of the world's largest sewage treatment plant. The Chicago Portage National Historic Site is the only major remnant of the discovery and settlement of Chicago.

One of only two National Historic Sites in Illinois, the Chicago Portage National Historic Site is the only place where you can stand on the same ground walked upon by all the explorers, early settlers and creators of Chicago. The late outdoor columnist John Husar, after touring the site called it: "Our sacred fround." It is certainly Chicago's "Plymouth Rock."

The Chicago Portage National Historic Site is on the west side of Harlem just two blocks north of the Stevenson Expressway (155). Meet at the monumental statue of Joliet and Marquette and their Native American guide at 10 a.m. Tours of the Chicago Portage National Historic Site will be conducted by Friends of the Chicago Portage every Saturday morning at 10 a.m. until the last tour of the season on Oct. 29.

Tours are approximately one-half mile in length at the newly improved trail through the woods. Wear long pants and walking shoes or boots. All tours are free and open to the public. Reservations for individuals are not required. Groups should call (773) 590-0710 for reservations.

Partnership Participates In National Night Out

The Oak Lawn Community Partnership participated in National Night Out Against Crime, sponsored recently by the Oak Lawn Police Department. Members, including (left to right) Laura Shallow, Maura Kennedy, Mary Grana, Joe Stubbs, Jeannie Shotas, and Jim Pacetti gathered at the organization's display at the end of the evening. Brochures on Partnership programs, including the blood pressure screenings, leaf raking, and red ribbon week were available to residents who stopped by the booth. A bean bag toss allowed children and adults to practice their skills. Members answered questions about how the organization promotes health and wellness within the community.

This non-profit group generally meets on a monthly basis. Partnership initiatives are discussed, and programs of support are planned. The organization is comprised of representatives from healthcare, government, public safety, education, church, business, and social service. The police and fire departments are integral to the workings of the group.

St. Germaine Dinner Dance

In an effort to keep down the cost of tuition, St. Germaine Church, 935 S. Kolm, will host a dinner dance on Nov. 12th. Parish officials have sent out a call to area businesses to act as table sponsors or to make a donation, which will be used for the evening's silent auction and raffle.

Proceeds of the dinner dance will be added to the parish Endowment Fund principal. This fund was designed to help up keep tuition costs reasonable and affordable for parish families and to ensure that funds are available for unforeseen capital (building) emergencies.

Only the interest income is withdrawn from the fund.

A table sponsorship will include a display of the company's advertisement prominently on the table. Table sponsor donations are in the amount of $100. If a camera-ready business card or logo is provided, it can be used in the dinner dance booklet and on the table marker.

For more information, or if you would like to become a table sponsor, call Mrs. Kristen Anderson at (708) 860-0442.

Deep Ocean Adventure

Katherine Millett will describe 27 days at sea on an expedition to the East Pacific Rise at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 21st at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St. Seating is on a first-come, first-seated basis in the lower level meeting room.

Along with Millett's lecture presentation, participants will watch a film that she shot 17 miles deep in an Alvin submarine. Marvel at eyeless crabs and other creatures that live beyond the sun's reach. See where tectonic plates slide apart, volcanoes erupt and sulfide chimneys release hot fluid into near-freezing water.

A complete schedule of adult programs may be viewed at the library's web site, www.oaklawnlibrary.org. For additional information, call (708) 422-4900.

Free Karate Program For 7th-10th Graders

Sensei Ed Wojciechowski, a 5th-degree black belt in Shorin-ryu karate, will present a free one-hour karate demonstration for students in seventh through tenth grade from 12 noon to 1 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24th at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St. Wojciechowski will provide a brief history of karate and guide participants through several basic punches and kicks. Register in advance at the Youth Services Desk. Limited to 30 students.

For additional information, pick up a Fall 2005 program booklet at the library, visit the web site, www.oaklawnlibrary.org, or call (708) 422-4990.

"Not Paying For College"

Families looking for ways to save on college expenses are invited to attend "Not Paying for College" at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 29th at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St. To receive a special packet of handouts, in-person or phone registration is requested, (708) 422-4990. In his more than 15 years in the financial services industry, Orsolini has acquired a diverse background that combines tax preparation, investment and insurance sales, and banking experience with college financial aid planning.

A Defibrillator Is Presented

A presentation was held on Sunday, Sept. 11th at St. Gerald's Church. Our Lady of Fatima Knights of Columbus Council #3582 donated a defibrillator for the church and the school. Thirteen members of St. Gerald's were instructed and trained on the use of the item. John Goetz, a Trustee and past Grand Knight; Phil Faust, the current Grand Knight; and Ted Molenda, the charity chairman, were present for the presentation.

This is a part of the charity work that the Knights do throughout the year.

Water Rate Tidal Wave

The further the water you turn a faucet, the water flows, the higher water bill that pours out will have traveled through miles and miles of pipes owned by companies that are in business to make money and/or pipes which require regulation, upkeep and God only knows what else. Many consumers will tell you that their water bills are more complicated to understand than the water system itself.

The average water bill in Oak Lawn is about double that of Chicago. A water bill in Palos Park is double what it is in Oak Lawn.

The only way to get around this is to move toward the water's source - maybe even build a submarine.

Otherwise, every time you turn a faucet, the water that pours out will have traveled through miles and miles of pipes owned by companies that are in business to make money and/or pipes which require regulation, upkeep and God only knows what else. Many consumers will tell you that their water bills are more complicated to understand than the water system itself.

SHOP AND SAVE IN OAK LAWN

Services Made Available To Hurricane Victims

Stepping up his efforts to assist victims of Hurricane Katrina, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 8th ordered his state agencies to make additional services available to both displaced victims currently housed in Illinois, and to the relief efforts being conducted in the Gulf Coast states. The governor has directed the Illinois Dept. of Employment Security to help displaced victims housed in Tinley Park and Alton process unemployment claims and facilitate job searches and job training. The governor has also asked banks and thrifts in Illinois to help victims open checking accounts and get access to other basic financial services. Additionally, the governor will send up to 100 employees to Louisiana to help officials process services to citizens in the more remote areas of the state.

IDES employees will work with Central Management Services staff to set up remote computer stations in the state facilities in Tinley Park and Alton where the first displaced victims to arrive into Illinois have been housed. Through these remote stations, IDES will be able to help individuals process unemployment claims and receive timely and useful information about job opportunities in Illinois. Since the onset of the devastation left behind by Hurricane Katrina, IDES has been working with its sister agencies in Louisiana and Mississippi to take claims from individuals dislocated by the hurricane and the flood. IDES has processed these first claims through its Moline branch office.

Responding to the governor's direction, up to 100 state employees traveled to Louisiana to help the Louisiana Dept. of Social Services provide services to victims in hard to reach areas of the state. CMS Director Paul Campbell has asked other agency directors to seek volunteers for this mission. The majority of the volunteers will be clerical employees, with the remainder including security personnel, information technology specialists, drivers and mechanics. Due to the lack of basic amenities in the state, the Illinois contingent will take along provisions to be totally self-sustaining for the entirety of their deployment, which could last up to two weeks. Besides food, water, tents and portable toilets, the groups will take along generators, computers and other office supplies.

The governor has also directed the Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation to reach out to state-chartered banks and thrifts and ask them to provide free check cashing, eliminate ATM service fees and establish checking and saving accounts for displaced victims now residing in Illinois.

Additionally, Gov. Blagojevich asked the Illinois Dept. of Revenue to extend filing deadlines to taxpayers from counties damaged by Hurricane Katrina and who owe Illinois taxes, until Oct. 31st, 2005.

Foreign Aid For U.S.

In the wake of the worst natural disaster in the United States, officials here have reported an outpouring of relief aid offers from friends and allies around the world.

It was recently reported that 95 countries have promised to send some form of aid to the United States. However, it was reported that much of what is being offered is being delayed in red tape. The United States is unprepared to receive goods.

United States officials said that they don't want to accept the aid if it won't be used. The request for money, water purification equipment, telecommunication equipment, helicopters and MRE's (ready to eat meals) were what was needed at this point.

Eleven planes recently arrived in Little Rock, Ark.

More planes loaded with basic necessities are due to arrive from Britain, China, France, Italy, Russia, Spain and Israel. Officials received monetary donations in the amount of $428 million. This was given by 49 nations or international organization including the Arab nations of Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates who offered nearly $100 million each. Afghanistan and Iraq have also pledged aid.

Humanitarian aid also crossed the border last week when Mexico sent soldiers, physicians, nurses and dentists as well as two mobile kitchens, mobile water treatment plants and bottled water and blankets. It was reported that Mexico is planning to send more help to the Gulf Coast disaster area in the coming weeks.

Emergency Response Team Returns

Members of the Illinois Medical Emergency Response Team (IMERT) returned to Springfield on Sept. 8th after a seven-day deployment mission in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich dispatched 40 IMERT members on Friday to assist in the hurricane relief efforts. The team of doctors, nurses and paramedics provided medical assessment and treatment to more than 15,000 Hurricane Katrina victims.

The IMERT members set up the first temporary hospital at Louisiana State University's Pete Maravich Assembly Center. IMERT transported truckloads of medical equipment from Springfield to set up the medical center to care for busloads of displaced citizens needing medical attention over the last week.

Gov. Blagojevich dispatched the first team of 11 IMERT members on Aug. 31st. Those remaining members may return to Central Illinois this Saturday. IMERT is a group of specially trained medical personnel who volunteer their services in crisis situations. IMERT responds to and assists with emergency medical treatment of mass casualty incidents, natural disasters and biological and radiological incidents when activated by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health. The IMERT members consist of nurses, doctors and paramedics.

CTA Budget

Meeting Protest

The Campaign for Better Transit and the Neighborhood Capital Budget Group are calling for Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) riders to attend the CTA's next budget meeting. Both groups are looking for answers to questions concerning needed improvements in service and fares.

It was stated that the city council passed a resolution calling for bi-annual hearings regarding the CTA's spending and operational decisions and to allow for public comments. To date, no hearings have been scheduled. In September, the CTA is getting set to propose more service cuts and more fare hikes. Both groups are calling for accountability from the CTA. They are asking riders and other concerned citizens to attend the CTA's 2006 Annual Budget Meeting that will be held on Thursday, Oct. 27th.

For more information, visit www.bettertransit.com or call NCBG at (312) 939-7198.

Special Volunteer Workday Planned

The Forest Preserve District of Will County is holding a special volunteer workday on National Public Lands Day, Saturday, Sept. 24th, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Romeoville Prairie Nature Preserve.

The 12th annual Public Lands Day is the nation's largest volunteer initiative to improve and enhance America's public lands. In 2004, nearly 90,000 volunteers built trails and bridges, planted trees and plants, and removed trash and invasive species.

For the Romeoville Prairie workday, volunteers will be collecting prairie grass and forb seed and will be removing brush from non-native shrubs and plants. Seeds collected at the work day will be planted in the spring of 2006. A guided educational hike will follow the day's seed collecting activities.

This National Public Lands workday is open to the public and community groups. (Groups are asked to have one adult for every five children.) Groups of five or more should register in order to assure enough tools and gloves for everyone.

Volunteers should dress for outdoor work and bring a sack lunch and a drink.

The workday is being sponsored by Richmond American Homes, whose donation includes work tools and equipment and volunteers to help with the day's activities.

Workday participants will meet at Isle a la Cache Museum, 501 E. 135th St. (Romeo Road), 0.5 mile east of Route 53, in Romeoville. Plenty of parking is available.

For group registration and additional information, call the Forest Preserve District of Will County's volunteer supervisor at (815) 722-7364.

EDITORIAL/OPINION PAGE

Congressman Lipinski Concerned About Rising Gas Prices

Congressman Dan Lipinski (IL-3rd) on Sept. 7th stated his concern over the recent increase in gas prices in the Third District, Illinois and across the U.S. The disaster caused by Hurricane Katrina has simply contributed to already exorbitant fuel costs. High gas prices not only affect consumers at the pump, but can raise prices for everything from airline tickets to milk and bread at the grocery store.

In response to the rising gas prices, Congressman Lipinski is urging the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission to investigate why gas prices are continuing to go up while oil companies are making record profits.

"I am appalled that many gas stations in the Chicago land area are now charging over $3 a gallon for unleaded gas, yet oil companies continue to receive huge profits," said Lipinski. "In July, Exxon Mobil, the largest publicly traded oil company, announced that its profits for the second quarter in 2005 has risen 32 percent, reaching $7.64 billion. It is unacceptable for oil companies to continue to make record setting profits while the average Chicagoan suffers at the pump."

Congressman Lipinski and the Congress will continue to work to stem escalating fuel prices and to prevent any potential shortages.

Added Congressman Lipinski, "Prices at the pump are rising - that concerns me, and it concerns our Illinois consumers. Fuel costs began climbing even before the disaster struck the Gulf States. Now, we must do everything possible to ensure gasoline supplies continue to flow, nip price gouging in the bud and stabilize the energy markets."

Durbin Says 'Paul Simon Model' Still Applies To Supreme Court Nominees

With confirmation hearings beginning this week on John Roberts' Supreme Court nomination, U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) said the model for weighing a nominee's fitness established by Paul Simon more than a decade ago still applies today.

"Twelve years ago, at another nomination hearing, my friend, Sen. Paul Simon, made a comment worth repeating. He said to the nominee: 'You face a much harsher judge... than this committee, and that is the judgment of history. And that judgment is likely to revolve around one question: Did you restrict freedom or did you expand it?' Sen. Simon put his finger on how the United States Senate should evaluate a nominee for a lifetime appointment to the Supreme Court. And that will be the model I will follow throughout Judge Roberts' hearing."

"No one has a right to sit on the Supreme Court, and no one has the right to be the Chief Justice. Judge Roberts, if he is confirmed, could serve on the Court for the next 30 years and make decisions that will affect the lives of millions of Americans."

"Our responsibility in the Senate is to ask the important and difficult questions: Will this nominee be an independent judge with an open mind? Will he strive to protect the rights of all Americans? If he is confirmed as the first Supreme Court Justice of the 21st Century, will Judge Roberts restrict the personal freedoms we enjoy as Americans or will he expand them?"

"These questions and answers that John Roberts gives to them matter - not to satisfy the curiosity of 100 senators, but to ensure the rights and freedoms of 280 million Americans."

Help Hurricane Victims

Cook County Board President John H. Stroger, Jr. urged the County's 25,000 employees to assist the citizens of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi by donating to the American Red Cross.

Additionally, Stroger has authorized a donation of $10,000 from the Cook County Charity Fund to kick off the campaign. The County's Charity Fund is supported through employee contributions.

The Cook County Bureau of Administration will coordinate this effort and forward all donations to the American Red Cross.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

This week Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced that a Texas-based oil pipeline company, Texas Eastern Products Pipeline Company, LLC, and its subsidiaries will pay a civil penalty of $70,000 to resolve the lawsuit filed by Madigan that alleged substantial danger to the environment and public health as well as water and air pollution violations. The company must likewise upgrade safety measures at its Alsip distribution terminal to help avoid any repeat of a March 2003 leak of approximately 21,000 gallons of jet fuel from one of five storage tanks at the terminal.

Besides being highly flammable, the aviation fuel also threatened to contaminate ground water in the nearby Cal-Sag Canal. An Illinois Environmental Protection Agency investigation revealed the leak. Fortunately, the product was contained within an earthen dike surrounding the 3.36 million gallon tank and was cleaned up by the company with no apparent harm to the environment, according to the IEPA.

The agreement also requires TEPPCO to remove all fuel and residue from the remaining tanks located at 2645 W. 131st St. in Alsip by Dec. 1st.

Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas alerted All Points that her office has mailed nearly 44,000 applications to property owners advising them of about $60 million in refunds available for property taxes that have been overpaid since the start of 2004.

Pappas suggests taxpayers use her office's website and phone system to check their properties from earlier years, since an additional $67 million in overpayments remain available for the earlier years. A refund search is available at www.cook-countytreasurer.com. The phone system at (312) 443-5100 also provides the same information 24 hours a day in English, Polish and Spanish.

The mailing of applications is due to overpayments in calendar years 2004 and the first half of 2005. In total, these overpayments are worth about $126.75 million. Signed applications and complete proofs of payments must be submitted for the office to verify that the applicant is entitled to the refund.

Under state law, refund claims must be initiated before the statute of limitations expires five years after an overpayment is made.

Taxpayers who cannot find records from the past years can write for assistance to Attn.: Tax Research, Cook County Treasurer's Office, 118 N. Clark St., Suite 112, Chicago, IL 60602-1332.

Hurricane Victims Receive Immediate Care

On Sept. 11th Governor Rod R. Blagojevich welcomed more displaced individuals and families left homeless by Hurricane Katrina to Chicago. The displaced victims arrived on a flight from Louisiana arranged by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Upon their arrival, the Governor directed state agencies to immediately provide medical care, housing and any forms of assistance necessary for victims of one of the worst disasters in U.S. history. Illinois also welcomed displaced victims to Chicago and the Metro East area.

The Governor told FEMA that Illinois prepared to receive up to 10,000 displaced victims. The Governor has called elected officials, community leaders, not-for-profit organizations, religious institutions and social service providers to match the State of Illinois' coordinated relief effort to assist the victims of Hurricane Katrina. As of Sept. 11th, Illinois has taken in over 300 evacuees into the state.

Illinois set up a toll free telephone number to assist displaced persons who come to Illinois. The number, 1-800-843-6154, will stay in service for as long as needed. The toll free number has received several dozen calls from Gulf Coast area residents who were able to come to Illinois before or shortly after the onset of the tragedy.

By calling the number, displaced families and individuals will be able to find out how and where they can get food, clothing and medical care. Operators from the Department of Human Services will also offer them information on food stamps, child care, housing, K-12 public school enrollment, unemployment benefits, as well as services and benefits for veterans, seniors and persons with disabilities.

Displaced victims across the country can call 1-800-621-FEMA (3362) to get registered for cash grants for hotel and rental assistance, home repair cash grants, home replacement cash grants, medical, dental, funeral costs, transportation costs and other disaster-related needs. TTY for hearing/speech impaired is 1-800-462-7585.

Private citizens who want to offer assistance to arriving victims, can also call a toll-free number specially set up by the Illinois Emergency Management Agency (IEMA) and specify to operators how they can help. That number is 1-800-610-2095. Those wishing to make donations to the relief effort can also do so to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund, by calling 1-800-HELP-NOW or 800-275-7575 (Spanish), or through a secure Internet site at www.redcross.org.

Governor Creates Broadband Deployment Council

Under Executive Order, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Sept. 6th the creation of the Broadband Deployment Council to improve high-speed Internet access for all Illinois residents. According to a 2004 Pew Research report, only 10-percent of rural Americans have high-speed Internet access in their homes, about one-third the rate of non-rural Americans.

Expanding access to critical technology and its related benefits has been a priority of the Blagojevich administration. The Executive Order comes as the latest action in a widespread effort to bring technology into the heart of Illinois communities. Other key efforts include the grassroots program known as Eliminate the Digital Divide. This program provides funding to local community technology centers in low-income communities to provide technology-skills training and access to computers and the Internet. Since technology literacy today is a necessity to competing for and succeeding in well-paying jobs, this program teaches essential skills to people whom often lack access to important educational opportunities that will help prepare them for a 21st Century job.

Lt. Governor Pat Quinn will serve as Chairman of the Broadband Deployment Council. As Lt. Governor, Quinn has worked to help bridge the digital divide through various Governor's Rural Affairs Council initiatives, and most recently, by providing two $20,000 Wireless Main Street grants to the communities of Mt. Vernon and Quincy.

The state of Illinois has historically been a leader in computer technology and applications, including University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign's role in the development of the Internet and the World Wide Web.

The Broadband Deployment Council will also look for innovative ways for state agencies to work together to encourage and help coordinate the spread of universal, competitive and affordable telecommunications services.

Representatives from eight state agencies dealing with commerce, transportation, finance and economic development will join Quinn on the council. Two education boards will also be represented.

In addition, Governor Blagojevich is appointing 16 individuals who will provide consumer and business perspectives from both underserved urban areas, as well as rural communities. The Council will make recommendations to the General Assembly regarding telecommunications initiatives that require legislative approval, including the creation of a state entity that handles distribution of funds for private and public telecommunications projects.

The council will meet at least quarterly throughout the year and is effective immediately.

Energy Grants Available For Chicago Bungalow Owners

With temperatures falling and the price of gas rising, the prospect of high winter heating bills looms large. Owners of Historic Chicago Bungalows, however, have the chance to decrease their heating bills and increase their comfort (and the value of their homes) by taking advantage of an Energy Savers Grant from the Historic Chicago Bungalow Assn. and the City of Chicago.

Whatever their income or the price of their home, owners of certified bungalows are eligible for up to $3,000 in matching grants that can be used for a variety of energy saving changes to their homes from the replacement of old windows and doors with newer more energy efficient ones to the installation of water heaters, heating and cooling systems, furnaces or insulation. In addition, those who use the HCBA Energy Grants will receive a $500 voucher that can be used to purchase an energy efficient appliance from Abt Appliances, Home Depot or series, further reducing their long-term energy bills.

While the grants require a dollar-for-dollar match from the bungalow owner, people with limited incomes can also receive up to $5,000 through a special HCBA-IHDA grant program which they can use as a match for the Energy Savers Grant dollars.

Owners who need financial assistance to meet the match retirement need to contact the HCBA in order to apply for the limited income grants prior to obtaining the energy savers grants. It is important to remember that the grants are not retroactive, meaning plans must be approved beforehand and past rehab work is not eligible for these rebates. All receipts must be turned in to ensure proper reimbursement as well.

The Energy Savers Grants have been made possible, thanks to support from the City of Chicago's Dept. of Environment and the Illinois Housing Development Authority.

To apply for the grants or inquire about certification or other programs that the HCBA offers, call (312) 642-9900 or visit their web site at www.chicagobungalow.org.

Shedd Volunteers Clean Up Beach

As part of its Great Lakes Forever conservation initiative, members of Shedd Aquarium's Green Team will participate in the 14th annual Coastal Cleanup, spending the morning of Saturday, Sept. 17th, 9 a.m. to noon, picking up garbage from 12th Street Beach.

Earlier this year, Shedd launched Great Lakes Forever, a partnership with the Biodiversity Project to launch an awareness campaign in Chicago to get people thinking and talking about these magnificent bodies of water. All the trash that Shedd's Green Team collects during the Coastal Cleanup is recorded, which will provide insight to help reduce future shoreline and water pollution. Last year 1,328 volunteers covered 30 miles of beach, removing an incredible 8,000 pounds of trash from the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Shedd Aquarium is committed not only to the conservation of aquatic species but also to the environment. Being on the shore of Lake Michigan, Shedd is dedicated to conserving the Great Lakes and educating the public on the connection between Lake Michigan and the oceans.

Shedd Aquarium's Green Team is a group of Shedd employees dedicated to developing and implementing environmentally-friendly practices at the Aquarium. The employees serve as volunteers on the Green Team; it is an extracurricular activity in addition to their full-time responsibilities. If members of the public wish to volunteer, contact Jennifer Thomann at (312) 692-3386.

Monet Added To Art Institute Collection

The Art Institute of Chicago has announced the recent acquisition of a major painting by Claude Monet: Water Lily Pond (c. 1917-22), which enters the museum's collection as a generous gift from Mr. and Mrs. Harvey (Ruth) Kaplan. In 1995, the painting had a prominent place in the hugely successful exhibition Claude Monet: 1840-1926, thanks to Mrs. Kaplan's generosity. Water Lily Pond - which, at 517 by 797 inches, is one of the Art Institute's largest works by Claude Monet - hangs in Gallery 206.

Ruth Kaplan had an intimate relationship with The Art Institute of Chicago that stretched over more than a half-century - she was a Most Distinguished Benefactor, Honorary Governing Member, Life Member, and member of the Committee on European Painting, Medieval through Modern, and Modern European Sculpture, and she also supported the Sustaining Fellows. Mrs. Kaplan began giving to the museum in 1951, and became a life member in 1977. Her husband Harvey had become a life member in 1958. He died in 1964.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaplan's sons, Laurence and Alan, continue the family's warm relationship with The Art Institute. Laurence Kaplan is an Honorary Governing Member, Life Member, and a strong supporter of the Sustaining Fellows (he is a member at the Sustaining Council level, has traveled with the Sustaining Fellows, and attends the group's events). Alan Kaplan is a longtime supporter of the Annual Contributors Fund.

Fall Discount Days At The Field Museum

For visitors who didn't make it to The Field Museum this summer, Museum Campus Fall Discount Days are a perfect opportunity to catch up with old friends in the Museum's permanent exhibitions, and get acquainted with some of the Museum's latest temporary shows.

On Mondays and Tuesdays from Sept. 19th through Dec. 20, The Field Museum is waiving its general admission fee. On these days, visitors are only required to pay for the Museum's special exhibitions. A $7 Discount Days Gold Pass ($4 for children ages 4-11) grants visitors admission to the Museum's general exhibitions, and one specially ticketed exhibition of their choice (either Dinosaur Dynasty: Discoveries from China, Underground Adventure or, starting Oct. 22nd, Pompeii: Stories from an Eruption). This is down from the regular Gold Pass price of $19 ($9 for children ages 4-11). With these prices, visitors can explore one of the Museum's special exhibitions, and Field Museum favorites like SUE, the world's largest and most complete T.rex, for less than they would pay to see a movie.

The Discount Days Platinum Package ($12 for adults, students and seniors, and $8 for children ages 4-11) grants admission to the Museum's permanent collection and two specially ticketed exhibitions (Regular Platinum Package price is $22 for adults, $11 for children, and $17 for seniors and students). Visitors who want to see all three special exhibitions can purchase a Discount Days Diamond Package. This discounted pass is only $16 for adults, seniors and students, and $9 for children ages 4-11 (Regular Diamond Pass is $25 for adults, $12 for children, and $20 for students and seniors).

Ancient Art - Precious Science

The oldest extant surgical treatise—the Edwin Smith Surgical Papyrus—makes a rare public appearance as the highlight of the Metropolitan Museum's new exhibition, The Art of Medicine in Ancient Egypt, Sept. 13 through Jan. 15. On loan from The New York Academy of Medicine, the document is presented in eleven hieroglyphic panels (spanning 15 feet) that reveal an ancient wisdom almost 3,000 years old.

The extant portions of the surgical papyrus reveal the author's profound scientific knowledge as he describes treatments for head and thoracic injuries. His approach is rational and full of keen scientific insight. Throughout the document, the author's grasp of anatomy, the circulatory system, and neurology emerge with clarity and precision. In fact, they bear striking similarities to 21st century medicine. For example, the surgical papyrus contains the first known descriptions of the cranial sutures, the meninges, the external surface of the brain, cerebrospinal fluid, and intracranial pulsations.

Atypically, the author turns to magic in only one case out of those preserved. Even then, he calls on spells that are practical and touchingly human: invocations against pestilence and in favor of charming old age back to youth.

As a complement to the Metropolitan Museum's exhibition, The New York Academy of Medicine is hosting a series of four lectures on Medicine before Modernity, which begins on Sept. 27th. On that date, The Academy will also open Holes in the Head: Mending Injuries from Pericles to Bonaparte, a special exhibition.

The New York Academy of Medicine, the country's premier urban health policy and intervention center, focuses on enhancing the health of people living in cities through research, education, advocacy, and prevention. Visit its website at www.nyam.org.

Participants will explore the history of the Americas and give a preview of the new Ancient Americas exhibition opening in 2007.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

WHAT TO DO WITH WINTER WEIGHT GAIN

As we approach the fall and the subsequent cold, snowy winter months, most of us think about ways to get our daily exercise inside, instead of outside. Those who are not venturing to a warm climate agree—the long outdoor walks we once loved at apple blossom time, can be miserable during the winter! So we look for other choices and often end up forfeiting, out of frustration and lack of desire to pack up and go to the gym. This ultimately results in dreaded winter weight gain.

Just how much weight does the average American gain over the winter? According to reports from the New England Journal of Medicine (NEJM), most of us gain just over a pound per winter.

It is reported in the NEJM that researchers at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) several winters ago followed 195 volunteers from the period of September to April. On the average, participants gained slightly more than a pound—with a majority of the gain added over the holiday season. Less than ten percent of the subjects gained five pounds or more. Overweight and obese subjects were more likely to fall into this category, suggesting that the holidays may present higher risk to those who are already overweight.

IS THIS A BIG DEAL?

Gaining one pound may seem insignificant, but the bigger problem is that most people never will lose it. Of the 195 original participants in the NIH study, 165 checked in with the researchers the following September. These volunteers weighed an average of 1.4 pounds more than when they started a year before. Rather than losing holiday weight during the warmer months, they gained a bit more.

The problem here is that these small weight gains add up over the years, increasing the risk of heart disease, diabetes, and certain types of cancer.

Unless we change our holiday habits, winter weight gain will continue to contribute to rising obesity rates in our country. As most of us know now, over half of all American adults are overweight.

WINNING THE BODY FAT WAR

But the key to avoiding weight gain does not only involve food. It involves physical activity—no surprise these days to most of us. Lack of physical activity in the NIH study played a greater role in holiday weight gain than did other factors, including holiday parties and stress. So it is important in the winter months to find exercise which is enjoyable and which you are able to do regularly.

Indoor activities such as mall-walking, swimming, water aerobics, and weight training are excellent winter-time aerobics. And often there are groups you can join to keep you motivated, if you so choose. Or, just go it alone if your schedule does not accommodate joining other people.

The main thing is that it is important to find a way to keep yourself active during winter weather, or you will gain weight and body fat. Thirty to 60 minutes daily—even split into 15 minute intervals—is effective for keeping you in shape.

And a footnote for you—an occasional high-carb snack, which goes along with cold weather, will not destroy your waistline—as long as, for the most part, you keep your food choices healthy and balanced. So enjoy that cup of hot apple cider or cocoa once in a while, after a nice workout!

Obesity Surgery

The number of gastrointestinal surgeries performed annually for severe obesity has increased from about 16,000 in the early 1990s to about 103,000 in 2003. The frequency of these procedures has been fueled by the rise in the number of people who are extremely obese; the failure of diets, exercise and medical therapy; and the advent of laparoscopic procedures. Research presented recently at Digestive Disease Week 2005 (DDW) evaluates the effectiveness of new surgical options for this population. DDW is the largest international gathering of physicians, researchers and academics in the fields of gastro-enterology, hepatology, endoscopy and gastro-intestinal surgery.

"There has been a great deal of progress made in the development of safer, more effective obesity procedures," said Christopher Gostout, M.D., of the Mayo Clinic. "Obesity patients who opt to have some form of bariatric surgery have a greater chance of long-term survival than those who choose to forgo a procedure." Bariatric surgery is not cosmetic. In many cases it is the last option for patients whose obesity puts them at risk for serious health complications and even death.

Affordable Medicare Prescription Plan

Medicare is embarking on a new journey to help seniors better afford their medical prescriptions. This unprecedented program, entitled Medicare Part D, will be offered to the approximately 40 million Medicare recipients. Enrollees will be asked to choose a prescription drug policy from a variety of private companies.

But because Part D has so many elements and requirements, some seniors and their caretakers are finding the new program to be very confusing. Coverage varies between policies, meaning some drugs are covered while others are not, depending on what company is chosen. And, not all of the information on what policies will be offered is available yet.

Unfortunately, Medicare recipients don't have a lot of time to decide what policy is right for them. Seniors must enroll between the dates of November 15, 2005 and May 15, 2006 and premiums will be an average of $37 a month. Those who sign up after the close date will pay higher premiums (a one percent increase to their premium for every month they delay enrollment). However, those that meet the Medicare low-income guidelines will pay less.

"Although this new program will be a relief to many seniors, it has so many rules and regulations, it's difficult to know where to start," said Daniel D. Garrett, senior vice president of Prevent Blindness America (PBA). "We have already received calls from Medicare recipients who are trying to determine how Part D will affect access to their vision medications. We want to help make the enrollment process as easy as possible so patients can receive the prescriptions and the information they need."

To help seniors navigate their way through the challenging enrollment process PBA is offering a new Web resource and fact sheet entitled "Medicare Benefits and Your Eyes." Since details are still emerging about the program, PBA will continue to research and compile information on Part D elements as it becomes available. Soon, PBA hopes to offer a listing of which insurance providers will cover specific vision medications and provide information on what to do if the needed drug is not covered.

PBA urges older Americans to do the following now:

- Check your mail boxes and read all mail from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Management (CMS).
- Apply for assistance if you have limited resources.
- Be aware of deadlines, and avoid late penalties.
- Take your time and review the information carefully, and enroll in a plan that best meets your needs.

To receive the new Medicare Part D fact sheet from PBA, call 1-800-331-2020 or log on to www.preventblindness.org

LAKE MICHIGAN SALMON AND TROUT STOCKING CONFERENCE: Interested anglers and the general public are invited to a one-day conference on future stocking options along with the status and health of the trout and salmon fishery in Lake Michigan on Saturday, Sept. 24th on the campus of University of Wisconsin-Parkside in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Participating agencies include the Illinois Department of Natural Resources and counterpart natural resources departments in Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, along with the Chippewa Ottawa Resource Authority.

"Fishing on Lake Michigan for salmon has been very good, but there is cause for concern that Lake Michigan predator fish species and their forage may be trending toward an imbalance," said Tom Trudeau, Illinois DNR Lake Michigan Program Manager. "Growth rates of Chinook salmon have declined in recent years and the abundance of forage - principally alewives - is also down."

Conference registration is $10. Registration is being coordinated through Wisconsin Sea Grant Refreshments and lunch will be served. For registration information, call (920) 683-4697 or check the web site at www.seagrant.wisc.edu/fisheries/.

HUNTER SAFETY COURSES - HELD IN NEAR-BY LOCATIONS: Illinois Department of Natural Resources sponsored Hunter Safety Courses will be on the following dates and locations: Sept. 17th and 18th, Matteson Park District - phone (408) 748-1080; Oct. 15th and 16th, Tinley Park - phone (708) 429-4903.

These courses are for individuals 10 years of age and older. The two-day course runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. The course is free, and the only requirement is that you bring a pen and lunch and beverage.

NATIONAL HUNTING AND FISHING DAYS: It's been more than 35 years since Pennsylvania gun shop owner Ira Joffe came up with the idea that the country needed an official day to celebrate and thank anglers and hunters for their contributions to conservation.

From there, Joffe's idea caught the attention of Congress, and by 1972 it was on President Richard M. Nixon's desk in the form of a proclamation, designating the fourth Saturday in September as National Hunting and Fishing Day.

Sept. 24th will mark the thirty-fourth annual celebration of the important role outdoorsmen and women have played in conserving and improving the country's natural resources, including the contribution of more than $23 billion over the years and countless volunteer hours spent on habitat improvement and other projects.

Northern Illinois Hunting and Fishing Days will be celebrated on Sept. 24th and 25th at the Silver Springs State Fish and Wildlife Area, 13608 Fox Road, in nearby Yorkville, Illinois.

I highly recommend this event for the entire family, my grandkids had a ball at the event a few years back. There is something for everyone of all ages. There are over 80 exhibitors; radio and television personalities; giveaways; food and hands-on activities for all ages.

Show hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday, and feature canoe rides; casting demonstrations; fly tying and casting; dog demos; historic reenactment encampment; stocked kids' fishing pond; outdoor women's seminars; trap, BB and archery ranges, and more.

Admission is free, brought to you by the Northern Illinois Hunting and Fishing Days Committee and the IDNR. Visit their web site at www.huntingandfishing-days.org.

ILLINOIS OFFERS TWO OUTDOOR PROGRAMS FOR WOMEN: Illinois women may develop outdoor skills by attending Women in the Outdoors (WITO), or Becoming an Outdoors Woman (BOW) programs. Offered throughout the year, both offer women the opportunity to learn in fun, interactive and non-threatening settings, take home new skills and develop friendships with individuals having similar interests.

A program for outdoor women will be held on Sept. 24th at the Max McGraw Wildlife Foundation in nearby Dundee, Illinois. For information: (847) 428-2240, or visit www.womenintheoutdoors.org.

SHEDD TO INCREASE EFFORTS AT GREAT LAKES CONSERVATION: Chicago's Shedd Aquarium announced it will intensify its efforts to draw attention to the value and vulnerability of the Great Lakes ecosystem. Exhibits, public programs and special events will increasingly focus on Lake Michigan and the other Great Lakes. The Shedd plans to install an invasive species exhibit later this year to educate visitors about the damage the invasive species cause.

Thillens Stadium

Commissioner Terrence J. O'Brien, who is President of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago was one of many young men that played softball and Little League at Thillens Stadium, recently presented a resolution of gratitude to the Thillens family for maintaining and operating Thillens Stadium for over 60 years, on land owned by MWRDGC, along the North Shore Channel. O'Brien stated "the Chicago Park District has assumed the lease for the next 39 years. Thillens Stadium/Cuhs Field will continue to be the Crown Jewel of all Little League facilities in the Cook County area."

The resolution is in recognition of the more than 60 years of commendable use of District property since 1942 by the Thillens family. In 1938 Mel Thillens Sr. saw his hunch become reality with the construction of the 2,200 seat stadium on property owned by the MWRD. Thillens Stadium hosts an estimated 700 games per year from April to September. It averages 100 night games annually with at least 12 games played on weekends, drawing an average attendance of 17,000 Chicago area youth and 60,000 fans. Many softball and baseball players enjoyed the use of Thillens Stadium.

Development Awards

While the city's century-old museums, its skyscrapers and venues like Millennium Park and Navy Pier capture the world's attention, architects and developers are at work elsewhere in Chicagoland - making a positive impact on the lives of neighborhood residents and creating impressive projects of their own. The finest of these projects will be recognized at the 12th annual juried Chicago Neighborhood Development Awards, to be held on Thursday, Feb. 2nd, 2006 at the Chicago Hilton & Towers and chaired by John Rowe, Chairman & CEO of Exelon Corporation. The deadlines to nominate individuals or groups (including self-nomination) for these prestigious prizes, however, are just around the corner.

Local developers and architects are encouraged to apply to the CNDA awards, which are presented in the four categories outlined below:

- The Non-Profit Neighborhood Development Group of the Year Award.
- The Richard H. Driehaus Foundation Award for Outstanding Non-Profit Neighborhood Real Estate Project.
- The Outstanding For-Profit Neighborhood Real Estate Project Award.
- The Non-Profit Community-Building Award.

In addition to the community development awards, the Richard H. Driehaus Foundation sponsors three awards for architectural excellence in community design, which are awarded by a separate juried competition, at the CNDA event.

Applications for the Chicago Neighborhood Development Awards must be received at the Local Initiatives Support Corporation's Chicago office at One North LaSalle St., 12th Floor, Chicago, IL 60602, by 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 23rd.

Applications for the Richard H. Driehaus Foundation Award for Architectural Excellence in Community Design must be received at LISC's office by 5 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 14th.

To obtain application forms, visit www.lisc-cnda.org.

Cook County Sheriff Sends Relief To Hurricane Victims

Employees from the Cook County Sheriff's Office recently traveled to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, to render aid to victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Answering a plea for assistance from a Chicago native who now resides in Ocean Springs, Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan and employees of the Sheriff's Office donated more than six semi-truck loads of bottled water, as well as another truck load of clothing and baby supplies to the town's residents.

Retirees Urged To Try SALT

If the idea of retirement conjures images of never having to think again, think again. Beginning this fall, Trinity Christian College will launch a new initiative that will provide an opportunity for discussion and learning among retired members of the community. The Senior Academy of Learning at Trinity (SALT) is modeled after similar lifelong learning programs at other colleges.

The program will present two different classes on three successive Thursday afternoons from 3:30 to 4:45 beginning Oct. 13th. Unlike typical adult education courses, SALT will draw upon the talents and knowledge of the retirement community to shape course content and lead classes. In addition, class members will take occasional off-campus trips to cultural and historic destinations.

Trinity President Steve Timmermans envisions SALT as a way of extending the college's mission into the community by presenting a high-quality, stimulating series of courses that appeal to senior learners. "Trinity is in a unique position to make its resources available to seniors who are interested in exploring new ideas, improving skills, and discussing worthwhile topics together," he said.

The first series leads class members down two different paths: "Discovering Your Family History" explores ways to research and trace a personal genealogy; "Christianity Behind Bars" examines the impact of organizations like Prison Fellowship and other efforts to disciple men and women living in prison populations.

Advance registrations are now being accepted by calling Debby Vincent at (708) 239-4793; the course fee of $20 may be paid at the first class. Both classes will be held in the classroom building on Trinity's campus, 6601 W. College Drive in Palos Heights. A complete class schedule can be viewed online at www.trinity.edu/about/salt.html

Illinois Schools Make Change For Charity

Local schools are back in session and gearing up for The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society's annual Pennies for Patients Program, a fundraiser in which students bring in change for a three week period during February or March to raise money for blood cancer research and patient aid.

Pennies for Patients, which raised over $300,000 in 2005, encourages children to help other children by bringing in money to support patients and survivors in their area. It also rewards students' generosity by giving them a celebratory luncheon and other great prizes for participating.

All proceeds support the society's mission: to cure leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin's Disease, and myeloma, and improve the quality of life for patients and their families.

To register one's school, or for more information, visit www.schoolandyouth.org/il or call The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society at (312) 651-7350.

Social Security Tips

Chances are you or someone you know could benefit greatly from the new Medicare prescription drug program that goes into effect in January 2006. And, if certain income and resource criteria are met, you or they might even qualify for extra financial help to pay for part of the monthly premiums, annual deductibles and prescription co-payments under the new prescription drug program.

Beneficiaries can enroll in the new Medicare prescription drug program from Nov. 15th, 2005 to May 15th, 2006. But now is the time for Medicare beneficiaries with limited incomes and limited resources to apply for the extra help, which could save them an average of $2,100 per year in prescription drug costs.

What you need to know:

- To qualify for the extra help, a person or married couple living together must have limited incomes and resources. For an individual, total annual income must be below $14,355 and resources limited to $10,000. The limits for a married couple living together are higher: $19,245 in combined annual income and $20,000 in resources. These resources can be slightly higher - an additional $1,500 per person - if some of the money will be used for burial expenses.
- Some beneficiaries will automatically qualify for the extra financial help. Anyone who has both Medicare and Medicaid, or Medicare and Supplemental Security Income, or anyone whose state pays his or her Medicare premiums, will automatically qualify and will not have to complete an eligibility application.
- Also, it is important that all beneficiaries understand that even if they qualify for the extra help, they still need to enroll in a Medicare-approved prescription drug plan to obtain both coverage and the extra help.
- People who think they might qualify for the extra help can complete an online application at www.socialsecurity.gov. Or they can contact Social Security at 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778, and ask for an application in the mail, or request more information.

So, if you know a Medicare beneficiary - perhaps one of your relatives, a neighbor, a friend, or even you - who could use some extra help with prescription drug costs, find out more about the program and apply for the extra help that is available.

Chairman Buyer Commemorates 60th Anniversary of World War II Victory

Sept. 2nd marked the 60th anniversary of the signal achievement of America's greatest generation. On this day in Tokyo Bay, 1945, the forces of Imperial Japan signed the surrender that ended six years of the global cataclysm known by history as World War II.

We call these men and women, 16 million of whom served in military uniform during the war, and 400,000 of whom died in service, the Greatest Generation. They have earned that name not only because of their victory in world war. For this is the generation that was forged in the crucible of the Great Depression. This is the generation which, after 1945, went to school and bought homes with the GI Bill, and built a new, more prosperous America. This is the generation that revolutionized medicine, supported civil rights, knit our cities with great highways, and pioneered space exploration. This is the generation that stood firm in the face of totalitarian Communism and gave with unmatched generosity to the world's poor.

President Harry S. Truman, in a radio address broadcast that was part of the surrender ceremonies on the deck of the U.S.S. Missouri, in Tokyo Bay, paid tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice and who bore the pain of loss. He invoked our nation's consequent obligation and spoke with promise of the future open to us through their sacrifices.

"God grant that in our pride of the hour, we may not forget the hard tasks that are still before us; that we may approach these with the same courage, zeal, and patience with which we faced the trials and problems of the past 4 years.

Our first thoughts, of course—thoughts of gratefulness and deep obligation—go out to those of our loved ones who have been killed or maimed in this terrible war. On land and sea and in the air, American men and women have given their lives so that this day of ultimate victory might come and assure the survival of a civilized world. No victory can make good their loss.

We think of those whom death in this war has hurt, taking from them fathers, husbands, sons, brothers, and sisters whom they loved. No victory can bring back the faces they longed to see.

Only the knowledge that the victory, which these sacrifices have made possible, will be wisely used, can give them any comfort. It is our responsibility—ours, the living—to see to it that this victory shall be a monument worthy of the dead who died to win it."

Truly, this Greatest Generation has delivered. Today we who consider it an honor to ensure them a veterans health care and benefits system worthy of their service and sacrifices offer our simple and heartfelt "Thank you, job well done."

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Edreal L. Evans, son of Towanda Adams of Dixmoor and Edward Evans of Chicago, was designated an Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist (ESWS) while serving aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Boxer, home-ported in San Diego. Evans joined the Navy in December 1994.

Congratulations to Ray Perisin of Homer Glen who recently was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star. Somehow Perisin's eligibility was overlooked and he has now received the long overdue medals. Perisin served with the 99th Infantry Division in 1944. Reportedly his daughter-in-law Joan Perisin contacted U.S. Rep. Ray LaHood of Peoria and explained the situation and the medals were issued within a few weeks. We might add, they are well deserved and we are glad you finally received them, Ray.

F-16 Emergency Appeal Filed

Attorney General Lisa Madigan, on behalf of Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, on Sept. 7th filed an emergency appeal with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit of the decision that dismissed the governor's lawsuit to stop U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission (BRAC) from moving F-16 aircraft from and otherwise realigning the 183rd Fighter Wing in Springfield.

Gov. Blagojevich and Attorney General Madigan have said that the Pentagon's May 13th recommendation, which the BRAC also endorsed, violates federal law, which dictates that the governor must give his consent for this type of realignment. This latest legal action follows a lawsuit that was filed in federal court on July 21st seeking to block the Pentagon's initial recommendation.

Legal counsel for the BRAC recently issued a memo in which he fully agreed with the legal arguments that Gov. Blagojevich and Attorney General Madigan have been making all along. BRAC Deputy General Counsel Dan Cowhig wrote that no change in the organizational structure of an Air National Guard Unit can take place without the consent of the state's governor.

The Springfield Air National Guard Base offers unique training opportunities for our military that are second to none and a highly strategic location for homeland security missions for both Illinois and the entire Midwest. Illinois is also home to 11 nuclear power plants that provide 50 percent of our power generation. Further, Illinois has 28 locks and dams on the Illinois, Mississippi and Ohio rivers. If these recommendations are adopted, these vital assets, and many others, will be at greater risk without the F-16s in Springfield. This would also leave Illinois with only two Air National Guard flying units, which is the same number as several states with much smaller populations, including Alaska, Arkansas and Hawaii.

The Air Force's own analysis also shows that taking the F-16s out of Springfield will actually cost the taxpayers $10 million and will never produce any savings.

The governor has been leading a coordinated effort for nearly three years with the Illinois Congressional Delegation, other elected officials and local leaders to prevent Illinois' military bases from ending up on the BRAC list. He consistently has stressed that these actions are a threat to our national and homeland security and are not cost effective.

The Commission must have publicly released its final BRAC report by Sept. 8th and have sent it to President Bush. The President has until Sept. 23rd to approve or disprove the list. The BRAC list must then be sent to Congress by Nov. 7th, who must also approve or disprove the list.

VFW State President

A luncheon was held in honor of Ruth Ann Smit (center) the state president of the VFW Auxiliary, Department of Illinois, at the Bremen VFW Post 2791 in Tinley Park on Saturday, Sept. 10th. The event was attended by VFW and auxiliary members from throughout the state of Illinois. Bringing her greetings are her employer Patrick O'Connor (left), Rest Haven Central Administrator, and Leon Barnes (right), state VFW Commander, Department of Illinois.

Being Dutch through and through Ruth's theme for the year is "Wooden Shoe Do Anything For Our Veterans," and her cancer pin is red and white tulips tied with a blue bow. The cancer pin is being sold for $3 with proceeds going to the Cancer Aid and Research Program. A 50/50 raffle was held at the dinner for Ruth's special project, the Patriotic Art Endowment Fund of Illinois.

Maggie Davis, a past 16th district president and department United Cerebral Palsy chairman from Owen W. Winter Jr. VFW Auxiliary 4241 in Oak Forest was the general chairman. Sharon Thomas, 16th district chaplain from Alsip VFW Auxiliary 450, presented the invocation and benediction. Many 16th district post and auxiliary members served on the committee including 16th district commander John Dndash of Palos Heights VFW Post 7454 and Mary Jayne Fitzpatrick, 16th district president from Owen W. Winter Jr. Auxiliary 4241.

Ruth is a resident of Chicago Ridge and a member of the Alsip VFW Auxiliary 450.

Center For Transportation Research Announced

On behalf of Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, the Illinois Dept. of Transportation on Sept. 9th announced the creation of a state-of-the-art research program at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign designed to produce safer, less congested highways, more environmentally friendly transportation solutions and longer lasting roads. The state is providing $6.6 million over the first three years to build the Illinois Center for Transportation, or ICT.

The ICT will be a part of the Advanced Transportation Research and Education Laboratory in the University of Illinois' Dept. of Civil Engineering. Under the cooperative agreement, the Center will be administered by UIUC under the direction of IDOT. It will provide state-of-the-art facilities for training public and private-sector transportation professionals and provide research opportunities for students. IDOT and UIUC have a cooperative research program dating back to 1941.

The focus of ICT will be outreach, education and research to solve transportation problems, reduce congestion and improve safety and efficiency. The research activities undertaken at the ICT will play a major role in maintaining and operating a premier transportation system, as well as promoting economic development.

The total cost for the first three years of ICT is $8.8 million, with IDOT providing a majority of its $6.6 million share through federal highway dollars, specifically earmarked for research purposes. The University of Illinois is providing the local match of $2.2 million to get the program underway.

A unique feature of ICT is that, even though it is administered by UIUC, a portion of the funding must be outsourced to schools outside of the University of Illinois system. This is intended to develop cooperative relationships with other Illinois universities and expose more students to transportation research.

Alice's Restaurant, Massacre Tour

On Tuesday, Feb. 28th, 2006 at 8 p.m. folk-master Arlo Guthrie brings his 40th Anniversary Alice's Restaurant Massacre Tour to Symphony Center as part of the 2005-06 Symphony Center Presents Special Concerts series. Tickets are on sale now.

He went on to star in the 1969 Hollywood film version of Alice's Restaurant, directed by Arthur Penn.

Over the last four decades, Mr. Guthrie has toured throughout North America, Europe, Asia and Australia. In addition to playing the piano, six and twelve-string guitar, harmonica, and a dozen other instruments, Arlo Guthrie is a natural storyteller, whose tales and anecdotes figure prominently in his performances.

Ms. Brooks will answer specific questions from the audience and discuss procedures people can use to report what they see as abusive or in violation of laws protecting people with mental and physical disabilities.

Meet Educational Needs Of Hurricane Victims

A provision authored by U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13) in the 2001 No Child Left Behind Act could serve as a critical first step in meeting the educational needs of elementary and secondary students displaced by Hurricane Katrina.

Biggert, a member of the House Committee on Education and the Workforce, sponsored legislation included in the No Child Left Behind Act that created the Education for Homeless Children and Youth Program. The program requires that school districts immediately enroll homeless children, including victims of natural disasters, without waiting for proof of residency, birth certificates and immunization records. This provides children with much-needed stability and allows for the delivery of other critical services such as healthcare and counseling.

The Education for Homeless Children and Youth Program also addresses school transportation issue, assures that eligible children participate in federal, state and local food programs, and allows for frequent moving as evacuated families find more permanent housing.

In addition, the program contains a funding structure that efficiently distributes federal dollars to the local level. In doing so, it will provide a simple, traceable system that can ensure that funding is targeted proportionally to the state and local educational agencies serving students displaced by Hurricane Katrina.

On Sept. 7th, Biggert sent a letter to House and Senate appropriators requesting that they direct the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to provide an appropriate amount of funding for the Dept. of Education to ensure the continued education of students displaced by Hurricane Katrina.

In the days to come, Biggert will continue to work with House appropriators, FEMA and the White House to see that state and local school districts have the appropriate funding to meet the immediate educational and social service needs of homeless children displaced by Hurricane Katrina.

Moraine Valley Observatory To Post Open Viewing

Moraine Valley Community College will host an open viewing on Friday, Sept. 23rd at 7:30 p.m. at the college's observatory in the Nature Study area on campus, 10900 S. 88th Ave. in Palos Hills.

Viewers will be able to see the planet Venus low in the southwest, a number of binary stars, open-star clusters as well as globular-star clusters, planetary nebula, and then later in the evening Mars and the last quarter moon.

Tom McCague, retired associate professor, will host the viewing. An amateur astronomer for more than 40 years, he built the observatory's telescope using common hardware store items and donated it to the college in the fall of 2003. The telescope, a 67-foot Newtonian reflecting model, is 13 inches in diameter and took 14 months to build.

The telescope is housed in a dome on the G. Jack Bradley Observation Deck, located in the northwest corner of the college's Nature Study Area, near 107th St. and Kean Ave. Observers are asked to park near the college's tennis courts, then follow the signs to the observatory.

Because of the outdoor location of the telescope, interested observers are reminded to dress appropriately for the weather, and to bring binoculars if they have them. Viewing will be canceled in the event of inclement weather such as clouds or rain.

The final viewing for 2005 will be held on Oct. 21st at 7 p.m.

Moraine Valley's observatory is used as a teaching tool, not only for the college, but also for local schools and community groups. For more information or to schedule a campus visit or field trip, call Mark Horstmeyer at (708) 974-5275.

Together, we can save a life

In times of disaster, the American Red Cross immediately mobilizes workers and supplies to address the urgent, critical needs of disaster victims, which include providing emergency shelter, food, water, counseling and other assistance.

The Red Cross response to Hurricane Katrina is the largest response to a single, natural disaster in the 125-year history of the organization.

Already the American Red Cross has provided a safe haven for nearly 77,000 evacuees in more than 275 Red Cross shelters spanning 8 states - Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Tennessee, Arkansas, Florida and Georgia.

To Donate: Call 1-800-HELP NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions to the Disaster Relief Fund may be sent to your local American Red Cross chapter or to the American Red Cross, P. O. Box 37243, Washington, DC 20013.

Internet users can make a secure online contribution by visiting www.redcross.org.

All American Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people. You can help the victims of this disaster and thousands of other disasters across the country each year by making a financial gift to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund, which enables the Red Cross to provide shelter, food, counseling and other assistance to those in need.

Eight New Cases Of West Nile Virus Confirmed

Dr. Eric E. Whitaker, state public health director, announced eight new West Nile disease cases have been identified in state, bringing to 131 the number of cases reported so far this year in the Illinois.

The new cases are: a woman from Chicago, a woman from suburban Cook County, two women from DuPage County, and a man from Lake County who were hospitalized with West Nile neuroinvasive disease; two men from suburban Cook County diagnosed with West Nile fever; and a man from suburban Cook County with West Nile disease.

The state's other cases of West Nile disease have been from Chicago (22), Suburban Cook County (64), and the counties of DuPage (17), Kane (8), Lake (3), McHenry (1), Peoria (4), St. Clair (1) and Will (3). There have been two West Nile disease fatalities reported this year - a 92-year-old woman from suburban Cook County who died Aug. 2 and an 85-year-old man from Lake County who died Sept. 5.

West Nile Virus is transmitted through the bite of a mosquito that has picked up the virus by feeding on an infected bird. Most people with the virus have no clinical symptoms of illness, but some may become ill three to 14 days after the bite of an infected mosquito.

Only about two persons out of 10 who are bitten by an infected mosquito will experience any illness. Illness from West Nile disease is usually mild and includes fever, headache and body aches, but serious illness, such as neuroinvasive disease, and death are possible.

Neuroinvasive disease is the most severe form of West Nile virus and affects a person's nervous system. Specific types of neuroinvasive disease include: West Nile encephalitis, West Nile meningitis or West Nile meningoencephalitis. Encephalitis refers to an inflammation of the brain, meningitis is an inflammation of the membrane around the brain and the spinal cord, and meningoencephalitis refers to inflammation of the brain and the membrane surrounding it. Persons older than 50 years of age have the highest risk of severe disease.

Anyone who develops symptoms such as high fever, confusion, muscle weakness, severe headaches or stiff neck should see a doctor immediately. These symptoms may indicate meningitis or encephalitis, two potentially life-threatening illnesses. Diagnosis is made through a blood test, but no specific medication exists to treat or cure the disease.

Strategy For Managing Knowledge Workers

Knowledge workers craft strategy, spur innovation, interact with customers and drive company growth. How they measure success, view their organizations and find motivation differ from traditional workers.

Yet many organizations continue to use management techniques designed for the Industrial Age.

Benedictine University's College of Business will host a Harvard Business School Webinar titled "Peak Performance Knowledge Workers: Managing a Workforce that Thinks for a Living" from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 22nd in the Tellabs Lecture Hall in the Birck Hall of Science.

The 90-minute virtual seminar session will be led by Thomas H. Davenport, Ph.D., President's Chair in Information Technology and Management at Babson College in Babson Park, Mass. and Director of Research for Babson Executive Education.

Attendees will learn how to work with knowledge workers' need for autonomy, how to create an environment that fosters excellence, what motivates knowledge workers, and how to improve their performance and productivity.

The Webinar is $15 per person and open to the public. For more information or to register, contact Jean Geisheker, Office of Conference Services, at (630) 829-6088.

St. Therese Celebration To Be Held At Darien Shrine

The celebration will begin with a presentation entitled "The Spirituality of St. Therese" at 9:30 a.m. in the Shrine chapel. The Very Rev. John Welch, O.Carm., provincial superior of the Canadian-American Carmelites, will be the speaker.

A feastday mass will be offered at 11:30 a.m., at nearby Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church. Fr. Welch will be the homilist and principal celebrant.

The celebration will conclude with a prayer service honoring St. Therese at 2 p.m. in the Shrine chapel. Br. Eric Bell, O.Carm., shrine director, will conduct the service.

The National Shrine of St. Therese is located at 8501 Bailey Rd., in Darien. For information, call (630) 969-3311.

Properties Recommended For National Register Of Historic Places

Gov. Rod Blagojevich on Sept. 13th announced recommendations for historic properties to be listed on the National Register of Historic Places. These recommendations, if approved by the National Park Services, would place the properties on the official list of places with national historic significance.

The properties were nominated for listing on the National Register of Historic Places by private citizens and reviewed by the Illinois Historic Sites Advisory Council at its quarterly meeting on Sept. 9th in Urbana. The Council, an unpaid organization with members appointed by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency (IHPA), reviewed each application and recommended all for approval. These recommendations will be submitted by the IHPA to the National Park Service, where a final determination about listing on the National Register will be made later this year.

Properties in Cook and Will counties recommended for National Register listing include: Pacesetter Gardens Historic District, Riverdale; Rogers Park Manor Bungalow Historic District, Chicago; Carlson-Anderson Apartment Building, Chicago; Ouillmette North Historic District, Wilmette; Downtown Peotone Historic District, Peotone.

Madigan Announces Indictments For Gross Negligence

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently announced that a Cook County Grand Jury has returned indictments against a nursing home doctor and the Cook County nursing home facility where he worked on charges related to the death of a patient in their care.

Madigan said the indictments, returned on Wednesday, Sept. 7th, charge Forest Park, L.L.C., and Care Centers, Inc., doing business as The Pavillion of Forest Park nursing home, and Jason Garti, M.D., former medical director and wound care doctor at The Pavillion, with multiple charges of gross neglect of a long term care facility resident. Forest Park, L.L.C., and Care Centers, Inc. were indicted as the licensee and owner of The Pavillion, respectively.

The charges are the result of an investigation by the Illinois State Police Medicaid Fraud Control Unit. The investigation began after the Dept. of Public Health was contacted by emergency room personnel at Loyola Medical Center. According to the indictments, on Sept. 11th, 2002, a resident at The Pavillion was transported by ambulance to the emergency room at Loyola Hospital, where it was discovered the patient had a large area of decubitus ulcers - commonly known as bed sores.

The indictments charge Garti with two counts of gross neglect of a long term care facility resident, a Class 4 felony, punishable by one to three years in the Illinois Dept. of Corrections. The two entities, Forest Park, L.L.C., and Care Centers, Inc., were each charged with multiple counts of gross neglect of a long term care facility resident. If convicted, the charges may result in the closure of the nursing home.

The public is reminded that these charges are merely accusations. The defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty.

The route also allows visitors to discover the region's natural and historical heritage, particularly in the historic town of Alton. For instance, in 1673, French explorer Father Jacques Marquette discovered a large pictograph on the bluffs along the Mississippi that represented the Piasa bird, a monster in Native American folklore.

Visitors can learn about the legend of the Piasa bird at the Alton Museum of History and Art and then follow the route southward to see a modern artist's rendition of the pictograph on the side of the cliff.

Route 66 Mother Road Festival

Route 66 found a place in the history books and hearts of America through its many appearances in songs, movies and television.

The road was immortalized in the film "The Grapes of Wrath," leading impoverished Americans to the promised land over "the Mother Road."

Today, Route 66 is still one of the most famous and scenic drives in America, beginning in Chicago, traversing Central Illinois and ending at the Pacific Ocean near Los Angeles.

All visitors to Illinois can experience Route 66 firsthand by seeking out traditional sites along the way, such as restored gas stations, the Route 66 Hall of Fame in Pontiac or the Funks Grove Maple Syrup Farm in Funks Grove.

Hungry motorists can stop at one of more than 40 historic cafés and restaurants scattered along the route, including the Old Log Cabin Restaurant in Pontiac, home to countless Route 66 items and offering down-home cooking at affordable prices.

An ideal time to careen down Route 66 is during the International Route 66 Mother Road Festival, held September 30th through October 2nd in Springfield. This annual event gathers thousands of vintage car enthusiasts worldwide, and features hundreds of classic vehicles, live entertainment and one-of-a-kind exhibits that line the streets of the state capital.

Evergreen Park's Fuzz Family Fest

As summer draws to an end and school resumes, the hint of fall in the air, the Evergreen Park Police Department brought some smiles and cheer to the children in the village with its second annual Fuzz Family Fest. Organizers Police Chief Mike Saunders, Lt. Wayne Gutkowski and Sgt. Bob Bryja brought this year's fest to Evergreen Park High School which featured many, many activities for the children to enjoy.

One of the favorite being "Dunk-a-Cop" where Sgt. Pete Donovan supporting his Green Bay Packers helmet and Officer Victor Watts bravely manned the dunk tank as children and adults did their best to dunk them, in particular the Packer's fan.

Others rode ponies, took wagon rides, slid on the gigantic air slide, and challenged one another on the obstacle course and the bungee run. Hotdogs, chips and pop were the featured menu items and were served by senior police officials and their wives.

Committee (BADGE grant).

Lt. Greg LeCompte and his wife, greeted and manned the raffle tables where children were given the opportunity to win a boy's stingray bicycle and a girl's pink bicycle, and each child received a yellow stress star on an fm pocket radio.

Also featured this year were police squads from neighboring communities such as Alsip, Burbank, Hometown, Chicago Ridge, Oak Lawn, Merrionette Park and Lemont, where children were able to sound the sirens and operate the lights. Alsip's Police Chief Richard Dalzell was there to show his support and to visit his former alma mater Evergreen Park High School. He is a 1973 graduate along with Evergreen's Chief Mike Saunders. Even the army was well represented by Steve Driscoll.

Fuzz Family Fest was sponsored by the Village of Evergreen Park, the Evergreen Park Police Department and the Cook County Judicial Advisory

New Maps Now Available For Distribution

Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin announced the unveiling of the new state highway map at the Illinois State Fair last week. The new map is proving to be a bargain for taxpayers, costing the state about half of what it paid two years ago.

IDOT was able to reduce the cost to taxpayers by teaming with Best Western International as a corporate partner to offset printing costs. Under the deal, Best Western International pays the state $105,000 and gets to display its logo on the map, as well as map distribution areas throughout Illinois.

After payment for the corporate sponsorship, the total cost to the state for the maps this year will be about $170,000 for the 2.75 million maps produced, down from $328,000 when the map was last updated in 2003.

IDOT produces a new state highway map every other year. The maps are distributed to the public free of charge and are available throughout the state at IDOT rest areas, tourism information centers, government facilities, and other areas frequented by motorists. Maps will also be shared through the Illinois Office of Tourism as part of the Illinois Travel kit (available worldwide upon request).

Arthritis Legislation Signed By Governor

In an effort to improve the lives of millions who suffer from the pain of arthritis, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Aug. 20th signed legislation that will increase awareness and research of this debilitating disease. One in five adults in the United States reports having doctor-diagnosed arthritis. Arthritis is the leading cause of disability in the United States, limiting daily activities for more than 7 million people. In Illinois, it is estimated that 3 million people suffer from arthritis and/or chronic joint symptoms.

"Millions of Illinoisans live with the daily pain and physical limitations caused by arthritis," said Gov. Blagojevich. "This new law will allow for more arthritis research and hopefully lead to new treatments."

House Bill 2380 creates the Arthritis Prevention, Control and Cure Act, which directs the Illinois Dept. of Public Health (IDPH) to establish, promote and maintain an arthritis program to raise public awareness and educate consumers, and to educate and train health professionals, teachers and human service providers.

The law also requires IDPH to establish a pilot program for the study of innovative arthritis public health projects and implementation of community health projects. Under the pilot program, IDPH would grant money to academic and health organizations to study arthritis. Grant applications would be reviewed by IDPH, the Arthritis Foundation and the Illinois Arthritis Partnership. An Advisory Council on Arthritis would be appointed to provide non-governmental input regarding the program.

In Illinois, 22.7 percent (approximately 2.1 million Illinois adults) of the state's citizens reported having doctor-diagnosed arthritis, and another 9.1 percent (more than 850,000 Illinois adults) reported possibly having arthritis, according to data collected from the 2002 Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System. The prevalence of doctor-diagnosed arthritis was higher among persons in rural communities, those with lower income and persons with lower education levels. An estimated 163,000 Illinois adults with doctor-diagnosed arthritis (13 percent) do not have health care coverage.

Research has shown that people who started disease-modifying medications within the first year of being diagnosed with arthritis were less likely to experience disability than people who started treatment five years after the start of the disease. However, of those Illinoisans with possible arthritis, 38 percent had never been seen by a doctor for their joint symptoms, and of those with doctor-diagnosed arthritis, 57 percent were not currently being treated by a doctor for their arthritis.

St. Germaine Dinner Dance

In an effort to keep down the cost of tuition, St. Germaine Church, 9735 S. Kolin, will host a dinner dance on Nov. 12th. Parish officials have sent out a call to area businesses to act as table sponsors or to make a donation, which will be used for the evening's silent auction and raffle.

Proceeds of the dinner dance will be added to the parish Endowment Fund principal. This fund was designed to help up keep tuition costs reasonable and affordable for parish families and to ensure that funds are available for unforeseen capital (building) emergencies. Only the interest income is withdrawn from the fund.

A table sponsorship will include a display of the company's advertisement prominently on the table. Table sponsor donations are in the amount of $100. If a camera-ready business card or logo is provided, it can be used in the dinner dance booklet and on the table marker.

For more information, or if you would like to become a table sponsor, call Mrs. Kristen Anderson at (708) 860-0442.

Bill On Schwarzenegger's Desk Similar To Safe Games Illinois Act

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 15th appealed to California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger to sign Assembly Bill 1179, legislation passed by the California legislature that would prohibit minors from buying or renting violent or sexually explicit video games. Gov. Blagojevich lobbied strongly for a similar law in Illinois. Signed in July, the Safe Games Illinois Act made Illinois the first state to limit minors' access to such graphic games.

The California legislation, AB 1179, was sent to Gov. Schwarzenegger's desk on Sept. 13th, and he has 30 days to sign or veto. The bill requires that games defined as violent be labeled, and forbids retailers from selling or renting those games to children under the age of 18. There would be a $1,000 fine for each violation.

The Safe Games Illinois Act, which goes into effect on Jan. 1, bans the rental and sale of violent and sexually explicit video games to children younger than 18. Retailers who violate the ban commit a petty offense and face a fine of $1,000. The bill also requires retailers to label violent and sexually explicit video games, similar to the "Parental Advisory" label found on music CDs, and to post signs explaining the video game rating system. A retailer's failure to properly label games or place proper signs is punishable by a $500 fine for the first three violations and a $1,000 fine for every subsequent violation.

Unlike the motion picture industry, the video game industry has not developed an effective self-regulation system that keeps adult material out of the hands of minors. In 2003, the Federal Trade Commission found that 69 percent of teenagers were able to purchase M-rated video games - giving them easy access to images many adults would consider offensive.

The danger in giving minors easy access to mature video games was highlighted recently when the Entertainment Software Rating Board changed the rating of the popular Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas from "M" (for mature) to "AO" (Adults Only) when it was discovered that players can acquire software over the Internet that unlocks hidden X-rated material within the game. Under the Safe Games Illinois Act, only adults will be able to purchase Grand Theft Auto and similar mature-themed video games.

Clean Air Agreement

The Justice Dept. and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on Sept. 13th announced a settlement with Clean Harbors Environmental Services that is expected to enhance calculating and reporting on benzene emissions from North America's largest operator of hazardous waste treatment and disposal facilities. This settlement involves 10 facilities in eight states. It confirms the proper industry standard for compliance with the Clean Air Act regulation that limits benzene emissions from facilities that treat, store and dispose of hazardous waste.

The agreement with Clean Harbors is part of EPA's efforts to enhance compliance with benzene regulations among hazardous waste treatment, storage and disposal facilities. Benzene is a hazardous air pollutant and a known carcinogen.

A consent decree, filed Sept. 13th in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, will require Clean Harbors to properly determine the benzene quantities in waste shipments received from its customers. Clean Harbors will not be allowed to estimate the benzene received by using the middle number in a range of possible benzene concentrations that a customer supplies. Instead, Clean Harbors will have to measure the actual benzene concentration or use the high end of the range in order to ensure that benzene is not under-reported. Under-reporting benzene can result in failing to install pollution controls on tanks and other equipment that handle benzene.

The states of Illinois and Louisiana are joining the settlement.

To meet its obligations under the consent decree, Clean Harbors will revise its nationwide "Waste Material Profile Sheet" to ensure that all customers that are covered by the benzene waste regulation properly evaluate and certify the amount of benzene in their waste shipments. Clean Harbors will institute a program to sample these wastes to ensure proper reporting and will train its employees on compliance with the benzene regulations. Clean Harbors will also pay a $300,000 penalty.

The proposed consent decree is subject to a 30-day public comment period. A copy of the consent decree lodged is available on the Dept. of Justice web site at <http://www.usdoj.gov/enrd/open.html>.

Principal Appreciation Day

The Illinois Principals Association (IPA) encourages all schools in Illinois to celebrate Principal Appreciation Day on Oct. 21. This state-endorsed occasion was approved by the Governor of Illinois in 1994 and is annually celebrated on the third Friday of October.

Principal Appreciation Day provides an opportunity to publicly recognize the work and the commitment of principals, assistant principals, and deans throughout the state. The IPA invites all parents, faculty, and school groups to perform some act(s) of appreciation on Oct. 21st to acknowledge the leadership that building administrators provide in Illinois' public and private schools.

For more information on Principal Appreciation Day, contact Perry Hill at (217) 525-1383.

Water Rate Tidal Wave

The further the water flows, the higher water bill goes.

The average water bill in Oak Lawn is about double that of Chicago. A water bill in Palos Park is double what it is in Oak Lawn.

The only way to get around this is to move toward the water's source - maybe even build a submarine.

Otherwise, every time you turn a faucet, the water that pours out will have traveled through miles and miles of pipes owned by companies that are in business to make money and/or pipes which require regulation, upkeep and God only knows what else. Many consumers will tell you that their water bills are more complicated to understand than the water system itself.

New Meth Law Takes Effect

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced on Sept. 16th that a new Illinois law has taken effect that will help to better protect children, families, farmers and communities from the dangerous methamphetamine manufacture process and provide new tools for law enforcement in their fight against meth.

Madigan announced that the Methamphetamine Control and Community Protection Act (MCCPA), Public Act 94-0556, took effect on Sept. 11th. The new law provides a major rewrite of the state's criminal laws dealing with the manufacture of meth.

Madigan also thanked the law enforcement officers, prosecutors, legislators and others who helped to design and draft the bill by offering detailed observations on the nature of the meth problem and the state's effort to address the problem through the provisions of the Illinois criminal code.

Building on these suggestions, Madigan proposed the MCCPA to address the differences between meth and other drugs targeted by the Illinois Controlled Substances Act. Unlike other drugs that may be imported, sold and abused in the state, Madigan said additional dangers arise because meth also is manufactured in the state.

Madigan said the new law protects communities by giving law enforcement additional resources to address the manufacture of meth, including the creation of a new offense to deal with those who shop for, transport or assemble meth making materials other than pseudoephedrine (PSE), ephedrine or anhydrous ammonia.

The new law also focuses on protecting children who are exposed to the dangerous production of meth. The MCCPA strengthens existing laws against this form of child endangerment by ensuring that those who manufacture meth where children reside, are present or are endangered face mandatory jail time.

Another provision of the new law focuses on the dangers to families who live in multi-unit dwellings where meth is produced. Under the MCCPA, those who manufacture meth in hotels, motels, apartment buildings or condominiums also face mandatory jail time.

In addition, the new law protects farmers, who often are endangered by meth makers stealing anhydrous ammonia, a fertilizer. The law imposes tougher penalties on those who steal anhydrous ammonia for the purpose of making meth. The MCCPA also makes it unlawful to dispose of meth manufacturing waste.

Finally, the MCCPA groups all laws related to the production, distribution and use of meth together under one section of the Illinois Criminal Code. Madigan said this would simplify the work of judges, law enforcement, defense attorneys and prosecutors who today must apply meth-related provisions scattered throughout the criminal code.

MVCC Jump Start Program

More local high school students can experience a college class before graduation due to Moraine Valley's Jump Start program. The college has received a $104,715 grant from the Illinois Community College Board to help high school students with a 2.5 grade point average or better get a head start on their college education by enrolling in one college-level class at Moraine Valley free of charge. The program began four years ago and has served an average of 500 students each semester. Those who are interested in attending a class during the 2006 spring semester must get an authorization form from their school counselor. Students are not obligated to attend the college after graduation, and the class will transfer to another university.

Report Questions Today's Home Construction Planning

Homes for a Changing Region, a forward looking housing report issued on Sept. 12th by the Metropolitan Mayors Caucus and Chicago Metropolis 2020, challenges the long-term viability of current housing construction patterns in the six-county Chicago metropolitan region.

The report forecasts a serious mismatch between the type of housing being planned and the housing that is likely to be needed by the region's growing population, which is predicted to increase by 24 percent from 8.1 million in 2000 to 10 million people by 2030. Projections indicate that too many large-lot, expensive single-family homes and too few small-lot, single-family homes, town homes and condominiums are being planned.

Latinos, African-Americans and seniors over the age of 65 will account for most of the region's population growth, and the types of housing chosen by those groups today is much different than the housing now being planned, constructed and rehabilitated.

"The fact that the housing patterns of Latinos, African-Americans and senior citizens differ significantly from housing choices of the past implies that housing demand will shift as the region's population diversifies and ages," according to Homes for a Changing Region. "In general, the pattern will shift toward denser housing with higher demand for rental units, entry level single-family housing, and apartments and condos in large complexes."

Today, more than 730,000 families in the region are financially stretched because more than 30 percent of their income is spent on housing. Unless current trends are changed, an additional 140,000 families will pay more than they can afford for housing because the housing they can afford will not be built.

The Mayors Caucus and Chicago Metropolis 2020 encourage communities to take action now to eliminate the projected housing mismatch. Among action steps recommended are:

- The formulation of multi-year housing plans which provide for a broad range of housing by size and price point to meet the needs of all community residents.
- The review and modification of zoning and building codes to permit the construction of a variety of housing types.
- The inclusion of residents in housing and development decisions and the use of local housing commissions to consider ways to provide housing options for all types of residents.
- The creation of sub-regional housing plans that would involve groups of municipalities and help local leaders to serve the overall needs of all communities in a sub-region.
- The creation of new revenue streams to support the preservation and construction of affordable housing.

Gov. Blagojevich Thanks Volunteers

On Monday, Sept. 19th, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich thanked the more than 2,000 Illinoisans who traveled to Louisiana and Mississippi to help those hurricane-ravaged states deal with the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. On the 19th, nearly 150 law enforcement officers returned to Illinois from a two-week deployment in Louisiana. Meanwhile, on Friday, Sept. 16th, a new contingent of law enforcement officers left Springfield to replace this returning group. That group, which included 130 local law enforcement officers and 18 Illinois State Police Technical Response Team members, will assist in that region through the end of September.

According to officials with the Emergency Management Assistance Compact which is coordinating all Gulf States' requests for personnel and equipment, nearly all 50 states have sent volunteers to Louisiana and Mississippi, totaling more than 41,000 people. Illinois sent nearly 2,100 - about five percent of the total volunteers sent by states.

Gov. Blagojevich deployed the law enforcement officers who returned Monday to Louisiana on Sept. 3rd. The group included law enforcement officers from local agencies throughout the state as well as officers from the Illinois State Police, the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources and the Secretary of State. The deployment was coordinated through the Illinois Law Enforcement Alarm System, the state's law enforcement mutual aid organization.

Other Illinois groups that have returned from the Gulf Coast include: 52 Illinois Medical Emergency Response Team doctors, nurses and paramedics, who manned a field hospital in Baton Rouge; an 11-member Incident Management Team comprised of two Illinois Emergency Management Agency employees and nine local emergency management officials that was directing emergency management efforts for a six-county area around Gulfport, Mississippi; and an environmental strike team consisting of personnel from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and the Illinois Dept. of Public Health which assisted with drinking water and food safety issues.

The 800 Illinois National Guard troops that were deployed earlier this month will remain in Louisiana through the end of September.

400 Students Displaced By Katrina Enrolled In Schools Across Illinois

Nearly two weeks after Gov. Blagojevich directed Illinois schools to waive residency requirements and immediately enroll children displaced by Hurricane Katrina, more than 400 children are enrolled in 46 school districts across the state. Districts worked quickly to welcome children into their classrooms and partnered with other state and local agencies to provide support for the children and their families. Some of the students traveled to Illinois on flights arranged by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) while others traveled to Illinois alone or with their families to stay with friends, family or in campgrounds and shelters.

The Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE) has developed a web page with resources for schools enrolling children displaced by Hurricane Katrina. The site, www.isbe.net/katrina/default.htm, highlights the hotlines Gov. Blagojevich put in place to help hurricane victims and lists resources available to schools and people who want to help by purchasing Hurricane Relief Student Supply Kits and Hurricane Relief Teacher Supply Kits.

To help teachers who have been displaced by Hurricane Katrina, the ISBE took emergency action recently to help teachers from Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama who have been displaced by Hurricane Katrina. The Board's action followed calls from teachers in the Katrina damaged areas seeking the chance to teach in Illinois. The Board enacted an emergency rule that helps people who are qualified to serve as substitute teachers but who may not have immediate access to their documentation because their records were destroyed in the hurricane.

The State Board approved an emergency rule that offers individuals from the area affected by the hurricane a temporary permit for substitute teaching in Illinois schools, provided that they indicate they have completed a bachelor's degree. The rule allows the teachers to get a short-term, non-renewable permit. It also includes flexibility to extend those certificates as needed and a provision to withdraw a certificate if individuals either misrepresent their eligibility or disqualify themselves.

The temporary certificates will not have an application fee or a registration fee. Each applicant will undergo a criminal background check as part of the normal procedures for employment in Illinois schools.

The emergency rule goes into effect immediately and will be filed with the Secretary of State.

Katrina Victims' Hotline Hours Extended

On Sept. 14th, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced that the state's Hurricane Katrina Victim Assistance Hotline, (800) 843-6154, is offering a broader range of services and will be more available each day to the thousands of Hurricane Katrina victims who make their own way to Illinois, as well as the individuals, community organizations and local governments that have taken them in. The hotline connects displaced victims to state services available to them, ranging from housing assistance to medical care to employment. The American Red Cross estimates that there are more than 6,000 victims displaced by Hurricane Katrina living in Illinois with friends, family or in other temporary housing. Approximately 430 people traveled to Illinois on flights arranged by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The Illinois Dept. of Human Services (DHS) is coordinating the hotline. Hotline hours of operation are being extended so victims can call anytime between 9 a.m. and midnight daily to find out what services are available to them. Callers will have one-stop access to all of the State of Illinois resources for Katrina victims - from emergency food and shelter to more long-term assistance like unemployment benefits and food stamps.

The governor set up the toll-free number as a part of the state's centralized effort to assist refugees from Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama who come to Illinois. The number, 1(800) 843-6154, went live on Friday, Sept. 2nd and will stay in service for as long as needed. Displaced victims with access to the Internet can find more information on available services at www.Illinois.gov. Users can also find a link on the state web site to the federal government's services and assistance available to those affected by Hurricane Katrina.

ISAC Acts To Assist Victims Of Hurricane

While those living in the Gulf Coast area continue to struggle with the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, the Illinois Student Assistance Commission is working to provide assistance and helpful information to students and their families impacted by the disaster. Evacuees coming into Illinois should use ISAC as a general resource for student financial aid information, including questions about the status of student loans and repayment. For borrowers living in the designated disaster areas, short-term relief from student loan payments is being applied to their loans. Borrowers should contact their lender to verify or request loan forbearance. ISAC counselors will be able to guide borrowers to the appropriate lender.

Under guidance from the U.S. Dept. of Education, ISAC has suspended collection activities for impacted borrowers from whom ISAC collects student loan payments. For loans held by ISAC, the agency has extended in-school status to students who were enrolled in college and borrowing educational loans to ensure that they are not required to begin repayment on those loans. Finally, ISAC is working with a number of local colleges and universities to make alternative loans available to impacted students displaced from colleges along the Gulf Coast, particularly those unable to qualify for Title IV assistance. Through ISAC's non-profit student loan division, the agency will work with schools that are accepting students from these institutions, and where necessary, waive normal degree-seeking and enrollment status requirements. This process will make available loan funds that will allow students to continue their education, demonstrating the critical need for availability of a state-operated student loan provider, especially in times of necessary immediate action.

In its role as the State of Illinois centralized agency responsible for administering and promoting student financial aid programs, ISAC will support Illinois colleges and universities to ensure that students who had planned to attend a college now closed due to the hurricane will receive financial aid, such as the Illinois Monetary Award Program grant, if the Illinois student meets the agency's eligibility criteria and is now attending an approved Illinois post-secondary institution.

Individuals with questions regarding student financial aid or education loans can call ISAC toll-free at (800) 899-4722. Information is also available on ISAC's Web site, collegezone.com.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to inform you of the Rental Housing Support Program Act. Senate Bill 0075 was passed by the General Assembly on July 1st, 2005, and will affect all Real Estate recordings in the Recorder of Deeds offices throughout the State of Illinois.

Beginning Aug. 1st, 2005, all real estate recordings that affect an interest in real estate will be subject to a $10 surcharge. The surcharge will go toward providing rental subsidies for families unable to secure decent, safe and affordable rental housing. The program is expected to assist 4,000 to 5,000 families secure affordable housing and improve their quality of life and employability. In addition, I would like to inform you that the children of these families will improve academically by attending school regularly in their respective communities.

The Rental Housing Program will be the largest in the nation and is projected to generate "$30 million in the first year of operation," stated Gov. Blagojevich. Through the Rental Housing Support Program, landlords throughout the State will receive grants to make rental units affordable to households who earn less than 30% of the area median income, or approximately $19,000 per year for a family of four.

As Cook County Recorder of Deeds, I wish to conclude by saying that "I support this legislation and welcome the opportunity to assist financially challenged citizens to obtain decent, safe and affordable housing. This legislation will increase and spur rental housing development, especially in Cook County, in light of reduced federal support for affordable housing."

We will sincerely appreciate your support.

Respectfully yours,
s/s Eugene "Genc" Moore
Cook County Recorder of Deeds

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

Voters in eighteen states across America - people of all races, creeds, religions and political affiliations - have spoken clearly by amending their state constitutions with overwhelming majorities (an average of just over 70 percent) to defend marriage from those who seek to redefine it.

Citizens of Illinois would also like to have the opportunity to vote on an amendment to their state constitution which will define marriage clearly and protect it from those who are willing to impose a vast, untested social experiment upon our culture and our children.

Those who truly believe in our democratic way of life must get involved. If this issue isn't decided by Illinois voters, it will be decided for us by unelected, activist judges as evidenced in Massachusetts.

If you want to get involved in this historic effort, or if you just want to learn more, please visit www.protect-marriageil.org or call toll-free (877) 787-8011.

We invite you to take part in the Protect Marriage Illinois petition drive to put a referendum on the 2006 ballot to call on the General Assembly to establish a marriage as it is intended by nature, tradition and common sense - between one man and one woman.

Sincerely,
David E. Smith, Project Director

Unlawful Legal Services

A new Illinois law signed by Gov. Blagojevich and scheduled to take effect on Jan. 1st, 2006 prohibits advertising of legal services by individuals that do not have a license to practice law.

The legislation, which was an initiative of the Illinois State Bar Assn. (ISBA), amends the Attorney Act, which makes it illegal for someone who does not have a law license to provide legal services.

The new law aims to help consumers avoid responding to ads by unlicensed individuals, thereby using a notary or document preparer who fails to have the proper licensing and credentials to practice law. If a consumer uses the services of an unlicensed person, and the document is not prepared correctly, the document may not stand up in court, and the consumer may be left without recourse.

The legislation will also assist with the problem of "notarios publicos" who often defrauded immigrants. In Latin America, notarios publicos are lawyers or judges. Some unscrupulous notaries public here have advertised with the intent of taking advantage of non-English speaking immigrants to persuade them to purchase so-called legal documents. This legislation will prevent all licensed individuals, including notaries public, from advertising that they can provide legal services.

The ISBA, which has led the battle against the unauthorized practice of law, has filed lawsuits against individuals and corporations that have led to injunctions governing their activities.

The current Attorney Act contains exceptions that allow limited categories of unlicensed persons to represent parties in certain matters before the Illinois Labor Relations Board, the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board, the State Civil Service Commission, local Civil Service Commissions and the University Civil Service Merit Board. Also exempted are advocates assisting persons under the federal disabilities law or State statutes implementing those laws.

Cook County Clerk David Orr has announced that individual candidates considering running for office in the March 21, 2006 primary election are now free to start circulating their nominating petitions (as of Sept. 20th). Orr explained that under state law all candidates must gather signatures from registered voters before their names can appear on the ballot. The number of signatures is dependent upon which office the candidate is seeking. Prospective candidates can download and print petition forms from the Illinois State Board of Elections website: www.elections.state.il.us.

Prospective candidates for the primary must file their nomination papers between Dec. 12th and Dec. 19th. The deadline to file objections to a candidacy or nominating petitions is Dec. 27th.

Offices up for election in 2006 include: all U.S. representatives; governor; lieutenant governor; attorney general; secretary of state; comptroller; state treasurer; some state senators; all state representatives; Cook County Board president; all county commissioners; county clerk; county treasurer; county sheriff; board of review commissioners (1st and 2nd districts); and three Metropolitan Water Reclamation District commissioners.

Party nominees who win the primary races will advance to the Nov. 7th, 2006 general election. Likewise, voters will elect Democratic and Republican Township committeemen at the March primary.

For more information, including filing deadlines and signature requirements, see the election calendar link posted on the Cook County Clerk's website at www.voterinfo.net.

Merrionette Park's own 115 Bourbon Street has once again stepped up for families and charities in need. Over the past six years, 115 Bourbon Street and the Chicagoland community have raised over $4 million for local families and charities.

This Friday, Sept. 23rd, 115 Bourbon Street will host a "12 Hour Marathon Benefit" (3 p.m. till 3 a.m.) for the Hurricane Katrina survivors. Admission to the event is $25, which will include food, beverages, entertainment and valet parking. In response to the rising cost of gas and energy in our state, State Rep. Annazette Collins (D-Chicago) has scheduled a public roundtable discussion to educate the public on the effects of our nation's dependence upon foreign oil.

According to Rep. Collins, consumers throughout the state, on average, have been paying above $3 per gallon, which is above the national average of $2.96 per gallon. Experts also estimate Illinois families could face higher energy bills this winter than in previous years. This roundtable discussion will address questions about gasoline pricing, alternative fuels and programs that assist consumers with their energy bills.

The roundtable, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. will be held Monday, Sept. 26th at Garfield Park

Golden Dome at 100 N. Central Park, Chicago. Among those invited to sit on the panel include: Lt. Governor Pat Quinn; Attorney General Lisa Madigan; state agencies and local municipal departments; the Citizens Utility Board; the Illinois Commerce Commission; the Illinois Petroleum Marketers Association; and others. This event is free and the public is encouraged to attend.

For more information call Rep. Collins' district office at (773) 533-0010.

The Illinois State Bar Association has alerted All Points that it will soon become more difficult to file for personal bankruptcy. Under a new federal bankruptcy law, which goes into effect next month (October), persons or families who earn more than the median income in their state and who can repay at least $6,000 over five years, will not be eligible to have their debts wiped out.

Bankruptcy has become a popular option for people because debt has continued to rise while the savings rates have fallen. Many people who are living on the edge financially have been able to wipe out their debts relatively easily by filing for Chapter 7 protection under the bankruptcy code.

The changes in the law will mean debtors must seek protection under Chapter 13, setting up a schedule to repay all or a portion of their debts and enroll in a court-supervised financial-counseling program. As a result, many households are rushing to file for bankruptcy now. According to Lexis-Nexis, filings were up 12 percent in April, May and June.

Bankers and consumer groups are at odds over the impact of the new law. Some bankers contend that it will help prevent those who abuse the system from filing for bankruptcy and that it will maintain a level of fairness for those who need protection. Consumer groups fear that the law will make matters worse for families who have no intention of abusing the system.

For more information about this and other law related issues, visit www.illinois-lawyerfinder.com.

Mendel "Hall Of Fame" Game This Friday

The Mendel Catholic High School Alumni Association reminds students, parents and friends of the former Roseland institution that this Friday, Sept. 23rd, thirteen Mendel men will be honored with induction into the "Mendel Hall of Fame." The ceremony will take place during the halftime of the St. Rita vs. Providence high school football game at St. Rita Stadium, 78th and Western Ave. in Chicago. Game time is 7 p.m. A Hall of Fame reception will follow immediately after the game in the St. Rita cafeteria.

Come out and visit with former classmates, teachers and friends of the Mendel family. Relive the memories, including the winning pass thrown by quarterback Terry Brennan to end Jim Gallagher, with two seconds left, for a 6-0 Mendel victory in the Classic 1957 City Championship game at Soldiers Field. As an added bonus, Mrs. Rita Gallagher has flown in from Scottsdale, Arizona to present '57 championship head coach Joe Magee with both her late husband's long-lost championship game jersey and the original touchdown ball from the '57 game. Mrs. Gallagher has graciously donated these two mementos to the Mendel Hall of Fame wing, which is now located in 'Mendel Hall' at St. Rita High School.

Tickets are available at the stadium gate or call Jack Vlazny at (708) 403-0358 for more information about the Mendel Alumni Association and upcoming all-class reunion on Nov. 25th.

Stroger Hospital Grant

Aetna and the Aetna Foundation announced recently in a press conference at the John H. Stroger, Jr. Hospital, Cook County, a $175,000 grant to the Trauma Unit at Stroger Hospital that promises to help change the nature of the last moments of life for trauma patients and their families. The grant will fund development of a model program of culturally appropriate end of life care, including palliative care, that can be shared with urban trauma units nationwide.

"We thank and commend Aetna and the Aetna Foundation for their foresight and generous support in the area of palliative care," stated John H. Stroger Jr., President of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, which oversees the Cook County Bureau of Health Services. "As a safety net provider, the Cook County Bureau of Health Services cares for a patient population that is often underserved due to social and economic barriers. This grant will allow the Bureau to develop yet another innovative model of care that will benefit not only Cook County residents who are patients, but also trauma patients and their families throughout the county."

Stroger Hospital's Trauma Unit is the busiest in the Midwest, providing close to 5,000 patient encounters a year. Stroger Hospital is one of seven affiliates of Cook County Bureau of Health Services, one of the largest public health care systems in the country. The Bureau provides a broad range of services from preventive and primary care emergency, acute, inpatient, rehabilitation and long term care to more than 1.5 million Cook County residents annually.

Natural Gas Prices Expected To Skyrocket This Winter

In preparation for skyrocketing energy prices during the upcoming winter months, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 16th called on the Illinois utility companies to help maximize the effectiveness of the Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP) by waiving administrative reconnection fees and security deposits for LIEAP customers.

In a letter sent to the utility companies, Gov. Blagojevich stated that the U.S. Energy Information Administration reported in its "Short-Term Energy Outlook" that the projected increase in home heating expenditures this winter will be "69 percent to 77 percent for natural gas in the Midwest." The high heating expenses will affect millions and will hit hundreds of thousands of low-income families in Illinois especially hard.

In the past, LIEAP funds have been used first to cover utilities' administrative reconnection fees and security deposits, which can cost more than $400. The governor is asking utilities to waive such fees so that grant funds go directly to cover actual usage charges, allowing the state to help more households cover heating costs.

Through LIEAP, a state and federally funded energy assistance program run by the Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS), heating bill payments are made available to households with incomes of up to 150 percent of the federal poverty level. Gov. Blagojevich made LIEAP funding available on Sept. 1st to vulnerable households and those currently without home heating due to service disconnection to meet their winter heating needs.

On Sept. 1st, the governor sent a letter to the Illinois Congressional Delegation urging them to protect critical LIEAP funding during upcoming budget negotiations. The U.S. House Appropriations Committee has only approved $2.006 billion in regular funds and no emergency contingency funding for the fiscal year 2006 LIEAP program. The Senate Labor-HHS-Education Appropriations Committee has proposed program funding at $1.883 billion for the regular program and $300 million for the emergency contingency fund. This is less than the $2.18 billion in funding approved for last year's program, which also included an additional $297 million in emergency funds. This budget shortfall, if approved by Congress, could have a disastrous impact on vulnerable households including seniors, young families and those with health problems worsened by cold weather.

Call the toll-free LIEAP information line at 1(800) 252-8643.

Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund Breaks $1 Million Mark

In just two weeks, the Jewish Federation's Katrina Relief Fund has received contributions from more than 3,000 community members totaling some $1,023,000.

The Federation established the fund on Aug. 30th in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, one of the most devastating storms ever to hit the nation. The Federation is passing on 100% of all funds received to agencies providing human services to both Jewish and non-Jewish residents of the areas affected by the hurricane.

The Federation is collecting funds in conjunction with a national effort coordinated by the United Jewish Communities (UJC).

The UJC is working with local Jewish federations in the affected regions to help coordinate relief efforts. Here in Chicago, the Federation's affiliate agencies also are assuming a role in the emergency assistance efforts.

Individuals wishing to make donations to help the hurricane victims should make checks payable to Jewish Federation Katrina Relief and send them to: Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund, c/o Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago, One South Franklin Street, Room 625, Chicago, IL 60606.

In addition, contributions can be made by credit card via JUF's secure web site at www.juf.org or by calling (312) 444-2854.

Survivors Find Each Other

Hurricane Katrina took a lot of things away from a lot of people, but for 104-year-old Amos G. Haynes, Katrina brought him to his family in Chicago. Katrina also reunited him with his neighbor who lived two doors away from him in New Orleans.

Haynes survived Hurricane Katrina with his late wife's cousin, Helen and Willie Thompson, with whom Haynes sought refuge from the storm. They were evacuated to the Superdome where they spent four days. Both Haynes and the Thompsons were separated after they left the Superdome since Haynes was in a wheel chair. Haynes was taken to the New Orleans Airport where days later he was flown to San Antonio.

Williams was plucked from the balcony of the second floor apartment of a neighbor that she took refuge with.

Consequently, both Haynes and Williams found their way to Chicago. Haynes, who was born in New Orleans, lived in Chicago for nearly 70 years.

Williams and Haynes found each other at the Survivor's intake center in Chicago at 1314 S. Racine while filling out housing vouchers.

Williams, like Haynes, is staying with family here in Chicago.

Evacuees Needs

Catholic Charities agencies from across the country are already working to meet the immediate needs of evacuees that have come into their communities, as well as planning to provide assistance for the long-term needs of the victims. Catholic Charities USA is collecting financial donations to fund these local Catholic Charities agencies' emergency and long-term disaster recovery efforts.

To date, Catholic Charities USA has sent $890,000 to date to assist with the emergency response following Hurricane Katrina. Twenty-one Catholic Charities agencies have each received grants ranging from $10,000 to $110,000 to help provide immediate support. Some of the vital community support may include temporary housing; food, clothing and other basic necessities; crisis and grief counseling; and financial assistance.

Jubal Players Present

"Jabberwock" In Dinner Theater

The Jubal Players have been working since June on another fun dinner theater production, just for all of you. The play is Jabberwock by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee and is based on the life of comic James Thurber. Before the comic shenanigans of Jim Carey or Robin Williams there was James Thurber. Thurber had an especially interesting and bizarre childhood, which he wrote about in "The Night the Bell Fell." This hilarity is brought to life in the play. Comic characters abound, but the love and closeness of family is certainly the central theme.

This promises to be yet another quality production by the Jubal players, a group who enjoys elevating the art of community theater. The production will be held at the First Nazarene, 12725 Bell Road in Lemont. For a wonderfully entertaining evening of great food in an intimate setting, call (708) 349-0454.

Tickets are on sale: $18 for adults, $12 for seniors (62+) and children (12 and under). Two week-ends are available: Sept. 23rd and 24th at 7 p.m. or Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st at 7 p.m. and Oct. 2nd at 1:30 p.m.

Go Behind The Scenes Of The Restoration Of David

Cinzia Parnigoni, the lead restorer of the world's most famous statue, Michelangelo's David, will detail the restoration team's work and discuss the condition of the piece at The Field Museum on Saturday, Oct. 22nd at 2 p.m. Parnigoni also will talk about the controversies surrounding the team's methods of cleaning — ones that led to the original restorer walking off the project.

The restoration project began in September 2002 and was completed in May 2004. Parnigoni brought David back to the glowing iconic statue that Michelangelo intended for it to be in 1504 A.D. Prior to the restoration, David had endured 500 years of rough treatment, including a lightning strike, an arm broken off by rioters and a toe smashed with a hammer.

Parnigoni was placed in charge of the restoration project after Agnese Parronchi, a respected restorer of Michelangelo's sculptures, left the project due to what she considered a questionable cleaning method. Parronchi left after being told that the delicate and slow-dry cleaning method for which she is known, had to be replaced by a wet cleaning method using distilled water. This alternative method was chosen as it is most effective in removing grime and deposits of dirt.

Support for this lecture is provided by the Consulate General of Italy in Chicago and the Istituto Italiano di Cultura in Chicago.

The lecture will cost $16 for the general public, $14 for students and educators with an ID and $12 for members of the museum. The dialogue of the lecture will be in Italian, with English translation. The Field Museum is located at 1400 S. Lake Shore Drive. For further information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

"The American Clock"

Lewis University's Philip Lynch Theatre (PLT) continues its 30th anniversary season with "The American Clock," the theatrical, kaleidoscopic study of America during the Great Depression. Dept. of Theatre Chairperson Keith White of Joliet directs the production subtitled "A Mural for the Theatre" and is based on Studs Terkel's novel "Hard Times: An Oral History of the Great Depression." White directs the cast of 34 to portray some 52 characters that capture the sense and substance of America in the throes of the Great Depression.

The production is recommended for all audiences and advance ticket purchases are strongly encouraged. Tickets are non-refundable. Polish/English Exhibit

The Polish Museum of America, 984 N. Milwaukee Ave., invites you to the opening of an exhibit entitled "Katyn: Truth and Remembrance." Katyn, in the awareness of Poles, is the symbol of one of the most shocking, and at the same time, little known genocides of the 20th century. In the spring of 1940, units of the Soviet NKVD (Secret Police) killed 25,000 Polish prisoners of war in three different localities, collectively called "Katyn." This was part of a larger Soviet campaign against the Polish nation in which over one million people were deported to Siberia where many died in deplorable conditions.

The bilingual Polish/English exhibit of 32 panels relates the history of the events leading up to World War II, the executions, the cover-up, the search for truth and recent photos of the cemeteries. The opening of the exhibit is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 30th in the Great Hall of the museum. The exhibit will be shown during the month of October. School group tours should be arranged by calling (773) 384-3352, ext. 101. Remember that the museum is closed to the public on Thursdays.

The exhibit will bring to the museum artifacts from the ancient Roman cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum and Opolontis, which were destroyed by Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D. in a tremendous volcanic explosion that buried them for over 1700 years.

Many of the artifacts will bring to life, the every day activities of the cities and included will be twelve casts of people who were caught in the eruption of the volcano. Created when the bodies of these people disintegrated, the casts show the people in their last moments alive.

Through lectures and seminars conducted by historians art restoration specialists and authors, you will learn about ancient Rome. The museum has scheduled citywide programs, adult classes, and family workshops on volcanoes and life in Pompeii. A catalog has been prepared with lavishly illustrated full-color photographs of the items from the exhibition and additional objects, with text that places them in context and explains the stories that go with them. ■ARE ALL BUCKTAILS CREATED EQUAL? It all started with a phone call from my nephew John Welsh, Oak Forest, who just returned from a Canadian muskie fishing trip. He was excited about the success they had using a fishing lure developed by his friend Matt McCombs. John suggested I contact Matt and find out more details about his special lure.

The secret to Matt's Premium Bucktails is superior components and workmanship.

Matt dropped by my house with a box full of lures, before going into details about them, I pulled out my muskie tackle box loaded with 50 years of collected favorite baits. I had Matt look them over and tell me why his lures were different from any of mine.

Matt told me an interesting story. For years he had to put up with having to toss out tackle at the end of a trip. Tackle that didn't hold up to the rigors of hanging on to big fish, namely muskies and northerns.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," he said. Five years ago, he started to develop a muskie bait that he envisioned as being superior to anything on the market. Now five years later, after trial and error and extensive field testing, he's convinced his NuG, (a strange name for a piece of fishing tackle) is the answer to the muskie/Northern pike fisherman's prayers.

Matt took one of his NuG Bucktails out of its clever packaging storage tube and proceeded to explain component by component the uniqueness of his lure over the competition, his search for superior materials including blades (Willow, Indiana and Colorado), hooks, skirt hair and coloration, tube wrapping, snap swivels, etc. Each lure comes with its own high quality leader with a SAMPO ball bearing leader and premium snap. The extra-long bucktail covers the hooks, making the lure practically weedless. The NuG comes in a variety of sizes, colors, configurations and prices.

Matt is taking his tackle to market, selling direct and through select dealers. For information, call (630) 201-7162 or matt@nugtackle.net. Dealer inquiries invited.

World's Largest Truck Convoy To Tour Through Illinois Sept 24th

In an attempt to maintain Guinness Book of World Record status, law enforcement and truckers throughout the United States and Canada will join forces to hold the World's Largest Truck Convoy (WLTC) on Sept. 24th. A stretch of Interstate 80 from Tinley Park to Joliet will be lined with an expected 50 to 100 trucks as they convoy to the Route 66 Raceway to celebrate their support of the athletes of Special Olympics.

The convoy will begin at the Tweeter Center in Tinley Park at 10 a.m., with registration from 8 to 9:30. It's not too late to get involved in this record-setting event - trucks can even register to participate on the morning of the event.

An international fundraising and awareness event, the WLTC is a unique partnership between law enforcement and truckers to raise funds for Special Olympics so that athletes can continue to train in year-round sports activities at no cost to them. Officers involved in the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics have made the WLTC one of their many annual signature events.

This is the first time Illinois will participate in the WLTC which will involve more than 3,000 truckers in 30 states and Alberta and Ontario, Canada, and raised nearly $225,000 in 2004. Truckers in Illinois will travel 20 miles to the Route 66 Speedway in Joliet where the 2005 Will County Sheriff's Challenge drag racing event is taking place. Convoy participants will be recognized at the event. The general public is invited to attend the Sheriff's Challenge; entry is $15, with children 12 and younger admitted for free.

Trucking companies and truckers who want to participate in this year's event can visit the Special Olympics Illinois Web site at www.soill.org or call (800) 394-0562 for more information and a registration packet. The convoy's Web site at www.worldslargesttruckconvoy.com also has information on the event. There are two levels of participation for truckers: Convoy Participant, with an entry fee of $100, and Convoy-Plus Participant, with an entry fee of $150. In bidding that ended Sept. 2nd, James Bult of Mr. Bult Inc. won the honor of being the lead truck in the Illinois convoy, with KR Drenth Trucking securing the No. 2 truck position.

Men's Soccer Team Kicks Into High Gear In 2005

The 2005 season promises to be an exciting time for the Moraine Valley men's soccer team. After coming close in 2004 with a second-place finish in the Skyway Conference for the second straight year, and after a heart-wrenching quarter-final exit in the Region IV tournament, coach Chuck Bales has his team focused on winning championships this year.

Bales started recruiting immediately after the 2004 season concluded to ensure that a host of talented freshmen would be joining the experienced group of returning sophomores. In addition, a new group system of play has been introduced in Region IV that allows coaches to rotate their squads more effectively to make certain that the team peaks properly for the later stages of the season. Not only that, the team's mid-season visit to Rotterdam, Holland to participate in the 2005 World Inter-University Championships will guarantee that 2005 is a truly memorable year in the history of the Moraine Valley men's soccer program.

The key to any successful team is a skilled group of experienced players, and Moraine Valley is fortunate to have several important players from the 2004 season return. Captain Jason Luebs (Lemont High School) and Alex Duncan, former Sandburg High School all-state forward and 2004 top scorer again will lead the team. Joining them from the first team will be defender Mike Brown (Andrew High School), midfielder Tim Kopec (Sandburg High School) and goalkeeper Nick Kimmer (Shepard High School). Also returning and making a push for the starting lineup will be midfielder Robert Carbone (Lemont High School), midfielder Aaron Martinez and defender Brian Fonte (Stagg High School).

The Cyclones have recruited an exciting group of talented freshmen to compete with the sophomores for a place in the first team and to help push the team to their potential. Goalkeepers Robert Krzak (Argo High School), who earned 2003 and 2004 SICA all-conference honors, and Alex McVicker (Sandburg High School) both excelled at the high school level and will be looking to continue their dominance at the college level.

Joining the defense will be SICA all-conference Gersain Saucedo (Argo High School), Dom DiDiana (Sandburg High School), Tim Kurek (Andrew High School), Peter Cahue (St. Rita High School), Ayrton Llerenas and Jorge Mora (both from Eisenhower High School) and Niko Maniakouras (Stagg High School).

Former captain from Lincolnway East High School Ryan Clemens will be adding to the firepower from midfield. Clemens made the 2004 SICA all-conference, all-regional, all-sectional and all-area teams, and was voted the 2004 Offensive Player of the Year. Joining him in midfield will be Nick Sweis (Andrew High School), a transfer from St. Joseph's College and a 2003 SICA All-Conference and All-Sectional winner, Alexandro Cahue (De La Salle High School), a transfer from Lewis University and a member of the 2002 SICA All-Sectional team, and Mike MacDonald (Andrew High School).

Jose Arizaga, SICA all-conference, all-sectional and all-regional from Eisenhower High School, and Mariusz Kawecki, SICA all-conference, all-sectional and all-area from Reavis High School, will be adding to the team's offensive threat. Other incoming forwards include Przemyslaw Kudlik (Reavis High School) and Jesus Ponce De Leon (St. Rita High School).

Brennan Complaint Announced

In 1994, Oak Lawn Trustee Jerry Hurckes (1st) was alleged to have registered voters improperly, but was never officially charged.

In 2001, then District 229 Board Attorney, Dennis Brennan, is alleged to have conducted a down and dirty campaign to undermine the candidacies of Michelle Moses, Mary Cerceo, Joe Amado and Bob Foster and prevent them from being elected to the board.

Brennan is believed to have been the mastermind behind 7,000 videos, which were disseminated throughout the community. The videos linked the four to Jerry Hurckes and suggested that Hurckes was now trying to control the board via "The Hurckes Four."

Finally, Brennan is being officially accused of "involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation." He stands to possibly have his law license suspended or revoked altogether if the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission find that there has been misconduct.

The ARDC delayed making the complaint official until after another allegation went through due process. In October of 2001, Brennan was found guilty of failing to file timely organizational and financial reports and for hiring an unscrupulous chairman as part of an attempted cover-up.

In December of 2002, the Illinois Court of Appeals upheld the ruling of the board of election committee. Brennan's 2003 appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court was denied.

Now that Brennan has exercised all of his appeal options, ARDC, the Illinois Supreme Court's disciplinary entity, has sprung into action.

Three Charged In Oak Lawn Murders

On Monday, Sept. 19th Cook County Circuit Court Judge Gary L. Brownfield ordered Edan Maya, 20, of Chicago held without bail in the shooting deaths of two co-workers at Frankie's Beef & Catering in Oak Lawn on Friday, Sept. 16th.

According to the prosecutors, tension between Maya and one of the victims, Carlos Flores-Lopez, 27, of Alsip had been building since Maya had returned from Mexico two months ago to find that Flores-Lopez had been given his job as head fryer. On Thursday evening the pair had an argument, that escalated into a physical confrontation with Maya striking Flores-Lopez with a cutting board.

David Maya, 19, drove his brother to an apartment to get guns and they got two semi-automatic weapons, according to the prosecutors.

Edan Maya was driven to Frankie's on Friday by Flugencio Osorio, 20, who waited outside in the car as Maya entered the back door of the restaurant with the two semi-automatics. Maya walked past his brother, David, who had been at work for two hours knowing what was about to happen and shot Flores-Lopez twice & then shot manager Jose Alberto Rodriguez. Why Rodriguez was shot remains unclear.

All three men gave taped confessions to police and the surveillance cameras at the shop recorded the shootings.

Judge Brownfield set bail for David Maya at $4,000,000 & bail for Osorio at $1,000,000. Both were charged with two counts of first degree murder.

Man Faces Deportation

Convicted spy, Khaled Abdel-Latif Dumeisi, 63, faces deportation after he finishes a four-year federal prison term in South Carolina. According to opinion of a three-judge panel of the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeal, the evidence presented in Dumeisi's trial was 'sufficient' to convict him on counts of perjury and failing to register as a foreign agent.

Dumeisi, Jordanian citizen born in Palestine, was accused of using his Arabic-language newspaper Al-Mahjar as a cover for his spying activities. Dumeisi, it was reported, passed information regarding an Iraqi expatriate living here in the United States.

According to reports, Dumeisi was convicted on a piece of evidence that was found by U.S. forces that stormed Baghdad in 2003. The file made its way to the courtroom via the FBI. A former Iraqi Intelligence officer authenticated the document.

The document illustrated how Dumeisi used a girl friend that worked at the phone company to gather information for him among other information.

The documents and how they were procured, according to the panel, proved that the files were authentic.

Pulmonary Arterial Hypertension

One of six national conferences and symposia about Pulmonary Arterial Hypertension, a potentially fatal condition affecting tens of thousands of Americans, will be held on Saturday, Oct. 8th at the Holiday Inn Chicago City Center, 300 E. Ohio St. in Chicago.

This one-day conference is free of charge. For members of the Pulmonary Hypertension Assn. and Scleroderma Foundation, a free dinner will be provided to the member and one guest (available only to first 200 registrants). Special room rates are available. CME credit is available for healthcare providers. Support group programs will be provided for patients and their families.

This program, titled Shedding Light on Pulmonary Arterial Hypertension: The Journey Toward a Brighter Future, is designed to educate healthcare providers and patients about PAH. With up-to-date knowledge of the disease process, physicians and other healthcare providers will be better able to recognize early signs of PAH. Patients will gain a better understanding of their treatment options and the importance of effective disease management. Early identification and appropriate treatment can significantly improve the quality of life for people with PAH.

Dr. Valleric McLaughlin of the University of Michigan Health System will chair the program.

"Many patients with scleroderma also have pulmonary hypertension," said Carolyn Weller, vice-president of education and research at the Scleroderma Foundation. "PAH takes away a person's ability to do simple, everyday tasks and can lead to fatal complications if it is not diagnosed and treated properly."

PAH is a progressive disease characterized by high blood pressure in the lungs. Symptoms include shortness of breath, coughing, chronic fatigue, dizziness, fainting, edema, and chest pain. These symptoms make simple physical activity very difficult, if not impossible, due to the eventual failure of the right side of the heart to pump blood through the pulmonary artery to the lungs. There is no cure.

Until recently very few treatment options were available. This event is being held to spread the word about helpful and promising breakthroughs that can help improve the quality of life for people with PAH.

For information about other program locations or to register online, visit www.pahassociation.org/medicaleducation.

Smith Senior Living Announces Chief Information Officer

Craig Hanenburg has been named chief information officer for Smith Senior Living, a not-for-profit senior living organization, according to Michael A. Flynn, chief financial officer.

Hanenburg manages all information technology & telecom services provided by Smith Senior Living, as well as for the continuing care retirement communities (CCRCs) which it owns and operates. They are Smith Crossing in Orland Park, and Washington and Jane Smith Community in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood. In addition, he participates on the planning team for Smith Village, a new CCRC under construction of the original site of Washington and Jane Smith in the Beverly neighborhood. The two new communities represent more than $125 million in new construction. Smith Senior Living's annual operating budget is $13 million.

"We are delighted to have Craig as part of our executive team at this crucial point in our expansion," says Flynn. "Our ambitious new development activities represent Smith Senior Living's commitment to providing the finest senior living services. His expertise in the complex area of technology is essential to ensuring that our residents benefit from the latest advances that integrate smart buildings and healthcare services for them."

Hanenburg's responsibilities at Smith Senior Living include leadership and strategic planning for current and future technological needs. "We have the remarkable opportunity to build in comprehensive support services that facilitate the best available information for Smith's excellent staff," says Hanenburg, who also maintains tactical day-to-day operations and ensures infrastructure reliability.

Prior to his appointment at Smith Senior Living, Hanenburg served as director of information technology at Mather Lifeways where he was responsible for the organization's technology planning. Prior to that, he held leadership positions in the travel industry in the field of information technology and as a chief financial officer. According to Flynn, Hanenburg's combination of financial experience and information technology expertise creates a skill set that helps him create strategic plans with big picture vision.

What initially drew Hanenburg to the newly-established position at Smith Senior Living was the variety of responsibilities. He also was attracted by the opportunity to have a major impact on lifestyle services and senior care through the new construction projects, but it is personal connections that he enjoys most.

"The one thing that makes my job really wonderful is the connection to the residents," says Hanenburg. "At Smith Senior Living, we use technology to improve the quality of life for seniors. Now when I come to work everyday I know that I've made life a little better for both staff members & residents."

Hanenburg is active in a number of industry and community groups including the College of Healthcare Information Management Executives (CHIME), Health Information Management Systems Society (HIMSS) and the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging (AAHSA). He also serves as council treasurer and co-chair of a neighborhood organization, Housing and Seniors Committee for the Ravenswood Community Council, where he lives. Hanenburg enjoys travel, gardening and the visual arts. Hanenburg earned a bachelor's degree at Northwestern College, Orange City, Iowa, and completed his work in the field of accounting at Loyola University of Chicago. He also has taken numerous courses leading to certification as a HIPAA Compliance and Privacy Officer.

American Cancer Society Finds Cancer Patients In Need Among Hurricane Katrina Evacuees

American Cancer Society (ACS) staff and volunteers visiting shelters and medical facilities in the areas affected by Hurricane Katrina continue to find many cancer patients in need among the evacuees and are providing assistance by identifying treatment facilities, enabling patients to continue treatment, and providing other important needs. In some cases, people being triaged in the evacuation effort have had cancer screenings as part of their routine physicals.

While it remains difficult to determine yet how many cancer patients in active treatment are among the hundreds of thousands of people displaced by Katrina, ACS staffers and volunteers visiting evacuation centers and other facilities are finding new cancer patients every day. Most evacuated patients have no medical records, and many face a daunting task of finding doctors who can continue their treatment.

In Baton Rouge, Society workers visited a shelter and located Rosalind Breaux, a New Orleans woman who had been undergoing chemotherapy treatment for colon cancer the week Katrina hit and had been unable to secure an appointment to continue treatment in Baton Rouge. A Society staffer arranged an appointment with a local oncologist and Breaux was able to resume treatment.

In Shreveport, La. a three-year-old boy with leukemia evacuated from New Orleans needed to continue treatment. Society staffers found a treatment center in Shreveport, where he was able to get the medical attention he needed.

A 15-year-old cancer patient from Hammond, La. was scheduled to come to a Baton Rouge pediatric oncologist for treatment. The doctor's staff had heard the boy had been evacuated to Baton Rouge but did not have the resources to find him. Society staffers were asked to help locate the boy and by contacting shelters, discovered that he was staying with friends in Hammond. Society staffers found the boy and arranged transportation for the patient, who was able to resume his appointments with the oncologist.

Other resources offered by the Society include the National Cancer Information Center (NCIC), the Society's 24-hour, seven-day-a-week toll-free call line, 1(800) ACS-2345, which stands ready 24 hours a day to refer callers to community resources and to triage patients and caregivers to Society oncology nurses when appropriate. The Society's Web site, www.cancer.org, has a comprehensive list of resources to help survivors deal with all aspects of the storm's aftermath, including a list of frequently asked questions for those coping with cancer in the wake of Katrina.

In order to quickly and efficiently connect evacuee patients with available doctors, the Society's site also features a Volunteer Medical Services database, where doctors interested in volunteering can register and be connected with patients.

Fall Teacher Workshops

The Education Dept. of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum (ALPLM) announces its fall lineup of free workshops for educators. Under its Teaching Teachers initiative, the ALPLM is committed to providing educators with strong content-based programs on a variety of topics relevant to the legacy of Abraham Lincoln and Illinois history. These intense history lessons will assist educators in developing a solid background on unfamiliar topics or in mastering a discipline they already know and love. The workshops also provide teaching methods that will generate interest and excitement for history lessons in the classroom. In addition, the ALPLM Education Department's hands-on classroom application programs will provide ideas and methods for teaching historical content across the curriculum using digital resources, primary documents and material culture.

On Wednesday, Oct. 12th from 3 to 5 p.m. the ALPLM will offer a workshop on the Lincoln family in the White House. This Damned Old House - Abraham Lincoln in the White House will cover the adjustments the Lincoln's had to make in moving from Illinois to the White House and the impact of Washington's social scene on the family. The workshop examines President Lincoln's daily routine from the burdens of the Civil War to dealing with office seekers, his lack of privacy and the responsibilities of the presidency. Participants will also learn about Mary Lincoln's renovations of the White House and how her endeavors were viewed by her contemporaries. Practical ideas and activities will be offered for incorporating the Lincoln's experience into the classroom curriculum.

On Tuesday, Nov. 8th from 1 to 3 p.m. and Wednesday,

Nov. 9th from 6 to 8 p.m. the ALPLM Education Dept. will offer Political Cartoons in the Classroom. This two-hour workshop will show educators how to incorporate political cartoons in their curricula. Upon completion of this workshop, teachers will have a basic understanding of the history of political cartoons and be able to:

- identify the elements of cartoons - exaggeration, symbolism, labeling, irony and analogy;
- identify methods and techniques used by cartoonists to convey messages, including line, shading and form;
- interpret political cartoons to understand the cartoonist's point of view;
- identify online and print resources for finding political cartoons;
- and plan for utilizing political cartoons in the classroom.

All workshops are free and will be held in the first floor classroom of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library, 112 N. Sixth St. in Springfield. Two continuing professional development units (CPDUs) will be offered for each workshop.

To register, contact Carol Manning, Education Coordinator, by phone at (217) 558-8929 or via email at CarolManning@ILPLM.org. For additional information, visit the museum web site at www.alplm.org.

ESL & GED Classes

More than 3,000 students, representing more than 40 countries, will receive support from Moraine Valley this year, thanks to an $861,319 adult education grant from the Illinois Community College Board.

The grant reflects a 24 percent increase over last year's funding for the college's English as a Second Language (ESL), General Educational Development (GED) and literacy volunteer programs. Moraine Valley also offers GED classes in Spanish and citizenship preparation classes. The grant allows the college to offer free tuition. Students must be out of high school, and they must take a state test at the start of class to determine their level of education.

For more information, call the Adult Basic Education Dept. at (708) 974-5340.

Business Networking Event

Southwest Business Cooperative Networking Event will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 12, at the Hilton Oak Lawn Hotel, 9333 S. Cicero Ave., from 5 to 8 p.m.

The hosting organizations have united together to offer a networking event to enable its members to make new business contacts with surrounding area businesses. The Alsip Industrial Assn., Bedford Park Clearing Industrial Assn., Blue Island Chamber, Bridgeview Chamber, Burbank Chamber, Economic Development Council of SW Suburbs, Frankfort Chamber, Oak Lawn Chamber, Orland Park Chamber, Tinley Park Chamber, West Lawn Chamber and the West Suburban Chamber invite their members to attend.

As a courtesy to the venue, make reservations by Thursday, Oct. 6th, $25 per person. Contact one of the listed organizations for details.

Make A Difference With World Heritage

World Heritage, a non-profit student exchange program, is currently seeking a volunteer local community representative to provide high school exchange students with program support. The ideal candidate should enjoy fostering international friendships, be community minded, and enjoy working with teenagers. Community representatives screen potential host families, meet with local high schools, and provide support counseling for host families and students.

World Heritage also provides international opportunities for families to host a student and for an American teen to become an exchange student. If you are interested in one of these rewarding experiences, call Christina at 1(800) 888-9040 or visit the web site at www.world-heritage.org.

Run In Marathon On Behalf Of St. Laurence

Three St. Laurence High School alumni as well as thousands of runners will be taking to the streets on Oct. 9 in the grueling Chicago Marathon. The trio of St. Laurence alumni, Pat Tierney '84, Al Rodriguez '77, and Mike Cabanski '86, will also be running on behalf of St. Laurence. "We're running because of the challenge the marathon presents," said Tierney, "but we also thought this would be an interesting way to raise some money for the school. We'll have a bunch of supporters out on the course that day and members of the St. Laurence Cross Country Team will be spotting us along the way. It's going to be a great time." The Viking Marathoners are asking alumni and others to support their efforts by making a contribution to the school on their behalf. "A donation of a dollar or two would be outstanding," added Tierney. For further information or to support the marathoners, contact Dennis Foley at (708) 458-6900.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

A member of my VFW Auxiliary 2580 sent a letter to Senator Barack Obama regarding postage costs for shipping packages to our troops overseas. I thought you would be interested in hearing what the senator replied to Barbara Nolan's letter. "Dear Barbara: Thank you for your letter regarding postage costs for shipping packages to our troops overseas."

I also share your support for efforts to ease the financial burden of shipping packages to our servicemembers overseas. Although servicemembers can ship items back home for no charge, families of troops are spending hundreds and sometimes thousands of dollars on shipping necessities to their loved ones in Iraq, Afghanistan and elsewhere. One story that caught national attention earlier this year chronicled the struggles of a Methodist church in Tennessee that spent $20,000 on care packages to troops in Iraq until they had to end the program because of the astronomical costs.

In response to the growing number of complaints on this issue, some members of Congress have responded with legislation that would make U.S. postal deliveries to active duty troops cost-free. One such bill in the House of Representatives, H.R. 2874, allots 10 postage credits to each active duty soldier, who can then send them to his or her family to use for free shipments of care packages up to 10 pounds. Similar credits would also be provided to organizations like yours for free shipping of packages up to 70 pounds. These bills have been referred to the House Subcommittees on Government Reform and the Armed Services for review.

Solving this problem is not only an issue of respect for the sacrifices being made by our military families and the soldiers themselves, it is also a vital part of giving our troops the support they need to complete their missions. Troops receiving items from their families and charity organizations are being sent the message that they have support they deserve, and that can only increase their chances of success. Also, any soldier will tell you that having items around that remind troops of their homes are an essential part of staying mentally healthy and grounded in combat. I can assure you I will support sufficient solutions to this problem that lift families' financial burden of shipping to their loved ones overseas when these measures come before me in the Senate.

Thank you again for writing. I applaud your organization for taking such an active role in supporting our troops. Please stay in touch.

Sincerely, Barack Obama, United States Senator."

Congratulations to Dave Dohm of Tinley Park who retired recently as the chief warrant officer with Company B, 1st Battalion, 106th Aviation Regiment of the Illinois National Guard. Dohm flew helicopter missions while stationed in both Vietnam and Iraq. He lived in Oak Lawn when he joined the Army in 1965. He left the Army in 1970 and during that time he spent six years serving as an Oak Lawn police officer. He was with the Army when his unit was activated in April 2003 and prepared to go to South Korea. He ended up in Iraq instead. Best wishes and God bless you.

Navy Seaman Andre Jackson, a 1986 graduate of Thornton Township High School in Harvey, completed Maritime Security Operations (MSO) while on a scheduled deployment in support of the Global War on Terrorism while assigned to the amphibious assault ship USS Kearsarge homeported in Norfolk, Virginia. Jackson joined the Navy in July 2002.

Special Pass Available For Illinois Resident Armed Forces

The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) is offering an Armed Forces Special Pass to military members who live in Illinois and who have served abroad, including guard or reserve members called to active duty. The special pass provides camping, fishing and hunting fee exemptions for qualified military members. Guard and reserve members can apply if it's within two years of their return from abroad or release from mobilization.

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich signed legislation authorizing the IDNR to provide the fee exemptions, acknowledging the contributions of Illinois residents who are returning from service abroad or who were mobilized by the President as an active duty member of the United States Armed Forces, the Illinois National Guard, or the Reserves of the United States Armed Forces. The Armed Forces Special Pass provides qualifying military members, and guard and reserve members who were mobilized, to camp at IDNR campgrounds (camper responsible for utility, rent-a-tent and cabin fees) free of charge. The pass also offers a combined Sportsman's License and Habitat Stamp for hunting and fishing, and an archery or firearm deer permit if requested and available.

Military members are eligible for free sport fishing, hunting and camping for one year for each year (and portion of one year) served.

Madigan Sues Internet Con Artist

On Sept. 15th, Attorney General Lisa Madigan sued an Elk Grove Village company that allegedly uses the Internet to lure consumers to purchase closeout and liquidation goods that appear to have no obvious damage, but then sends consumers goods that are smashed or obviously damaged.

Chicago Liquidation Distributors, Inc., doing business as Chicago Closeout Liquidation Distributors, is named in the consumer fraud lawsuit. Bartosz Blonski, also known as Bart Blonski, also is named individually and as president of the company, and is alleged to have violated the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

According to Madigan's suit, shoppers visit www.liquidationdistributors.com to view an array of assorted closeout merchandise, sold by the pallet, lot or truckload. According to the Web site, this merchandise can be shipped within 72 hours of payment. Blonski's Web site also indicates his goods are "guaranteed" not to be obviously damaged.

According to complaints received from consumers by Madigan's Consumer Protection Division, when some of the merchandise arrived, it was either the wrong item or, in some cases, was damaged to the point of being unusable. Some consumers complained that the merchandise they purchased was not shipped at all.

Madigan's complaint includes an example of a Missouri consumer who, in September 2004, ordered a pallet of "mixed electronic equipment" represented online as including televisions, cameras and digital cameras. The consumer reports that he prepaid more than $1,866 and what he received was a chainsaw, lawn edger, leaf blower, broken watches, clothes dryer and a dishwasher. Much of the shipped merchandise was broken.

In total, more than a dozen consumers have reported monetary losses exceeding $42,100 to Madigan's office.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, asks the court to prohibit the defendants from advertising, offering for sale and engaging in the business of closeouts, liquidations and surplus merchandising in Illinois and from further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The suit also seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50 per violation found to be committed with the intent to defraud. Finally, Madigan's suit asks the court to order the defendants to pay restitution to consumers.

For more information about safe and secure Internet shopping, consumers can visit Madigan's Web site at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov and click on "Protecting Consumers" and read the informative publication "Shopping on the Internet." Consumers also can call the Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1(800) 386-5438, TTY 1(800) 964-3013.

Penny Social

The Auxiliary to McDonald-Linn Chicago Ridge VFW Post 177, 10537 S. Ridgeland Ave. in Chicago Ridge, will be hosting a "Penny Social" on Sunday, Oct. 2nd, with doors opening at 1 p.m. There will be the penny social tables, raffles and refreshments.

Call Pat at (708) 636-3220 for information.

Migratory Bird Walk

A "Migratory Bird Walk," a free, family program sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be Saturday, Oct. 8, 8 a.m., at Lake Renwick Heron Rookery Nature Preserve, in Plainfield. This is the first of a series of three weekly walks planned for October.

The lakes and abundant wetlands that make up Lake Renwick provide one of the greatest migratory bird spectacles in the Chicagoland area. A Forest Preserve naturalist will lead the hike in search of migrating waterfowl, herons, egrets, and songbirds.

Plan on attending more than one Migratory Bird Walk because different species will be migrating at different times; each week brings something new. Participants are encouraged to bring a bird guide and binoculars and to dress for the weather. The walk will be at a moderate pace, so wear sturdy hiking shoes or boots.

The hikes are intended for persons of at least seven years of age.

Lake Renwick Heron Rookery Nature Preserve is located on Renwick Road, one-half mile east of Route 30 (Plainfield Road), in Plainfield.

Joint Efforts To Raise Awareness Of Children's Vision Health

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 18th joined Chicago Cubs Manager Dusty Baker and doctors from VSP, the nation's largest provider of eye care coverage, at Wrigley Field for a pre-game exercise stressing the importance of monitoring and maintaining healthy vision in children. Under the Governor's leadership, the State of Illinois has extended health care benefits - including vision care - to over 165,000 children through the KidCare program. The Governor and First Lady have also worked to raise awareness among parents and medical professionals about the importance of early testing for amblyopia, or "lazy eye," a condition that can be cured if detected in the first few years of a child's life.

Prior to the start of Sunday's afternoon game against the St. Louis Cardinals, 50 children from the Jordan Boys & Girls Club and El Hogar del Niño participated in skills drills with the Governor, Baker, and volunteer doctors while also learning tips on how to protect and care for their eyes. Kids in attendance had the opportunity to participate in baseball drills while wearing goggles that simulate common eye conditions.

Throughout the day, messages on the Wrigley Field scoreboard, the Marquee as well as radio and television

Public Address Announcements informed the public on how to keep their eyes safe from disease and injury. Fans at Wrigley Field also received sunglasses to protect their eyes from UV exposure while enjoying the game.

Over 12 million children nationwide suffer from some sort of vision impairment, according to the American Academy of Ophthalmology, much of it caused by sports-related injuries and playing with toys and games that are inappropriate for their age.

Other common vision problems in children such as amblyopia, strabismus (crossed-eyes), nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism, can all be detected through regular vision screenings during pediatric appointments.

"Octobear Faire" Teddy Bear Show & Sale

What's soft, squishy and full of love? A teddy bear, and that's just what you'll see when you attend the 19th annual "Octobear Faire" at the Schaumburg Marriott Hotel, 50 N. Martingale Rd., over the weekend of Oct. 27th to 30th. Teddy bears and many other furry creatures both handmade and manufactured of all shapes, sizes and price ranges will be available for purchase in the showroom on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 29th and 30th. Teddy bear artists, retailers and major fabric suppliers from around the world will be present at the Midwest's largest internationally all-teddy bear show.

Also that weekend, 21 teddy bear artists and manufacturers will be nervously waiting to see if they have won the prestigious TOBY Award, the "Oscar" of the teddy bear world, at the 16th annual TOBY Awards Banquet on Friday evening, Oct. 28th.

Make and take workshops are being conducted over Thursday and Friday by a few of the exhibiting teddy bear artists for collectors who want to try their hand at making a bear. On Thursday, Oct. 27th, California artist John Paul Port conducts an all-day workshop where the class will create a 16-inch vintage candy container mohair bear designed by his mother, the grande dame of the bear world, Beverly Matteson Port. On Friday, Oct. 28th, Colorado artist Michelle Lamb will conduct two extreme makeover classes for teddy bears. With a few nips and tucks each bear will have an entirely "new" look. Then Wisconsin artist Pam Holton leads a morning class where the participants will make their very own Scarecrow Bear head pin. Pre-registration is required to participate in these classes. More information about the workshops may be obtained by calling ABC Unlimited Productions or visiting their web site: www.abculimitedproductions.com.

On Friday evening, Oct. 28th, ABC is pleased to be hosting the 16th annual TOBY Awards Banquet for Teddy Bear and Friends Magazine, one of the country's leading collectibles publications. Nominees from around the world will be present that evening to hear if they have won the coveted TOBY Award for their submitted entry. The public is invited, however, pre-registration is required.

On Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 29th and 30th, over 100 teddy bear artists from the United States, Canada, England, Germany, the Netherlands, and the Pacific Rim will be present to exhibit and sell their unique creations. Additionally, a few select retailers are included in the show to offer items from teddy bear artists who will not be present, leading manufacturers and clothing and accessories to dress up the bears in high style. Teddy bear making supplies and patterns will also be available to those wishing to try their hand at making bears of their own.

Financial Guidance For Hurricane Katrina Survivors

At the request of U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13), the U.S. Dept. of Treasury will convene an emergency meeting of the Financial Literacy and Education Commission (FLEC) to identify ways in which FLEC can coordinate federal agency and private sector efforts to provide financial guidance to survivors of Hurricane Katrina.

Biggert, a Member of the House Financial Service Committee and Founder and Co-Chair of the House Financial and Economic Literacy Caucus, spearheaded a letter sent recently to U.S. Secretary of Treasury John W. Snow requesting that the U.S. Dept. of Treasury convene an emergency meeting of FLEC to address the short and long term financial and economic concerns and needs of those affected by Hurricane Katrina. The letter requested that FLEC serve as a clearinghouse for federal and private-sector financial-related information for those affected by Hurricane Katrina.

A FLEC clearinghouse would provide financial-related information to Hurricane Katrina survivors so that they can quickly and easily learn about how to meet their financial obligations and address needs regarding housing, mortgage payments, insurance, credit cards, credit reports, identity theft, banking, avoiding financial scams, and tax relief, to name a few.

Launch Child Lures Prevention Program

In an effort to protect children and prevent child abduction and exploitation in Illinois, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, on Sept. 14th, launched the nationally recognized Child Lures Prevention Initiative, which teaches parents and children to recognize potential danger signs and make smart decisions to avoid child predators. The Child Lures Prevention Program, founded by renowned child personal safety expert Ken Wooden, will be introduced in all 3,200 public elementary and middle schools (grades 1-8) statewide in October as a resource to help protect children against predatory crime. Illinois is the first state to implement the program in schools on a statewide level.

The Child Lures Prevention school program teaches children life skills to keep them safe from sexual abuse, date rape, abduction, Internet crime, drugs, and school violence. The Program, which can be taught within the health curriculum annually, consists of a straightforward training video and Presenter's Instruction Guide with easy-to-follow scripted lesson plans, practice scenarios, follow-up activities, comprehensive assessment, and tools for parental involvement. A student video with four realistic dramatizations allows students to clearly visualize just how easily they may be lured into dangerous situations.

Each Illinois elementary and middle school will receive a package with two videos, one to prepare teachers to present the program, and one to present to children, along with a presenter's handbook and a parent's guide.

This school program is endorsed by the National Associations of Elementary and Secondary School Principals, and is used by the U.S. State Department's Foreign Service Institute. Scientific research conducted by Research and Education Service for the Round Rock.

In addition to the school program, over 500,000 Child Lures Prevention Parent Guides will be available at Chicago CVS Pharmacy locations and auto dealerships that are members of the Chicago Automotive Dealers Association.

IL Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka Provides Resource Guide To Katrina Evacuees

In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, Illinois State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka is distributing free copies of the office's "Financial Resource Guide for Illinois Women" to Gulf Coast evacuees who have landed in Illinois.

The guide, which was compiled by Topinka and her Advisory Board for Women's Issues, will serve as a supplement to the emergency information currently being provided by shelters, centers and service organizations helping evacuees. In addition to important telephone numbers and web sites, the guide provides information to help families address long term financial issues.

The booklet provides long-term information to help women from all social and economic backgrounds reach their full economic potential. It was designed to help women at any age and in any financial situation.

The guide contains more than 100 websites, agencies, books, articles and other resources where women can find practical help or information related to personal finances. It is divided into four parts: Life Scenarios, Fast Facts on Woman and Finances, Resources, and a Glossary of Financial Terms.

Nearly 15,000 copies have been distributed since it was first published in 2003. Revised last year, the guide is now in its third printing with a fourth printing underway. It is available by calling the Treasurer's Office at (312) 814-1700 or online at www.state.il.us/treas.

New Maps Now Available For Distribution

Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin announced the unveiling of the new state highway map at the Illinois State Fair last week. The new map is proving to be a bargain for taxpayers, costing the state about half of what it paid two years ago.

IDOT was able to reduce the cost to taxpayers by teaming with Best Western International as a corporate partner to offset printing costs. Under the deal, Best Western International pays the state $105,000 and gets to display its logo on the map, as well as map distribution areas throughout Illinois.

After payment for the corporate sponsorship, the total cost to the state for the maps this year will be about $170,000 for the 2.75 million maps produced, down from $328,000 when the map was last updated in 2003.

IDOT produces a new state highway map every other year. The maps are distributed to the public free of charge and are available throughout the state at IDOT rest areas, tourism information centers, government facilities, and other areas frequented by motorists. Maps will also be shared through the Illinois Office of Tourism as part of the Illinois Travel kit (available worldwide upon request).

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Sen. Durbin compared our Army guards at Gitmo, Cuba with NAZI SS guards at Hitler's death camps who murdered 6 million people. The SS burned Jews alive in their Synagogues in Poland and buried alive Poles and Gypsies. The SS machine gunned and murdered 86 captured American POWs during the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944. A great comparison, Senator Durbin.

Sen. Durbin avoided military service during the Viet Nam War. He has no military experience and no experience guarding Terrorists who believe if they kill an American guard they will go to heaven as a reward. Sen. Durbin knew when he attacked our guards that Army regulations forbid them from responding to him. He used our guards to take a cheap shot at President Bush and that's a fact.

Democrat Senators Durbin, Kennedy, Clinton, Schumer, Boxer, Dowd, Feinstein, Leahy and others like DNC Chairman, Howard Dean accuse on a daily basis our troops in Iraq of abusing Terrorists. Their every word is reprinted in anti American Muslim newspapers. Their every TV sound bite is rebroadcast many times over anti American Muslim TV stations. Al Qaeda uses our own Senators accusations against our troops to recruit suicide bombers.

Sen. Durbin said we misunderstood him and he's sorry for his poor choice of words in attacking our guards at Gitmo. I didn't misunderstand him. He carefully chose his words for their negative impact on President Bush. Sen. Durbin says that Democrat Mayor Daley was "duped" into criticizing him. Mayor Daley, were you "duped"? Was your son "duped" into joining the Army and serving our country?

I was a Democrat precinct captain for 40 years and am a three time Democrat candidate for the General Assembly. I'm a former Democrat candidate for Congress. I challenge Sen. Durbin to debate me at Chicago's Wright City College. He can defend his extreme, elitist, ultra Liberal, Secularist views and I will defend our traditional American values. A American Legion or VFW Post Commander can serve as moderator and he can choose five weekly newspaper editors to serve as a panel asking questions. Sen. Durbin, do you have the guts to defend your liberal views in person or will you continue to use the liberal press and media to agree with you?

Respectfully,
s/s Thomas W. Flynn
Democrat, ILNG & USMC

Arthritis Legislation Signed By Governor

In an effort to improve the lives of millions who suffer from the pain of arthritis, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Aug. 20th signed legislation that will increase awareness and research of this debilitating disease. One in five adults in the United States reports having doctor-diagnosed arthritis. Arthritis is the leading cause of disability in the United States, limiting daily activities for more than 7 million people. In Illinois, it is estimated that 3 million people suffer from arthritis and/or chronic joint symptoms.

"Millions of Illinoisans live with the daily pain and physical limitations caused by arthritis," said Gov. Blagojevich. "This new law will allow for more arthritis research and hopefully lead to new treatments."

House Bill 2380 creates the Arthritis Prevention, Control and Cure Act, which directs the Illinois Dept. of Public Health (IDPH) to establish, promote and maintain an arthritis program to raise public awareness and educate consumers, and to educate and train health professionals, teachers and human service providers.

The law also requires IDPH to establish a pilot program for the study of innovative arthritis public health projects and implementation of community health projects. Under the pilot program, IDPH would grant money to academic and health organizations to study arthritis. Grant applications would be reviewed by IDPH, the Arthritis Foundation and the Illinois Arthritis Partnership. An Advisory Council on Arthritis would be appointed to provide non-governmental input regarding the program.

In Illinois, 22.7 percent (approximately 2.1 million Illinois adults) of the state's citizens reported having doctor-diagnosed arthritis, and another 9.1 percent (more than 850,000 Illinois adults) reported possibly having arthritis, according to data collected from the 2002 Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System. The prevalence of doctor-diagnosed arthritis was higher among persons in rural communities, those with lower income and persons with lower education levels. An estimated 163,000 Illinois adults with doctor-diagnosed arthritis (13 percent) do not have health care coverage.

Research has shown that people who started disease-modifying medications within the first year of being diagnosed with arthritis were less likely to experience disability than people who started treatment five years after the start of the disease. However, of those Illinoisans with possible arthritis, 38 percent had never been seen by a doctor for their joint symptoms, and of those with doctor-diagnosed arthritis, 57 percent were not currently being treated by a doctor for their arthritis.

Residents Address Oak Lawn Village Board Regarding

Rumors Of Drug Trade

Tammy Lagonia, a spokesperson for the residents of Komensky between 103rd and 100th St. spoke in appreciation of all that has been done in the past few weeks, the police presence and the citations issued have improved the area. She reported that there are rumors of drug trade and even drug production in the area. Mayor Heilmann responded that this will not be a quick fix, that the village will continue to monitor the area, police will be present, landlords will be contacted, and a meeting will be set up between the residents, village personnel, and the landlords.

Tom Driscoll questioned the rumors of pumps or a liner for the retention pond in Crawford Gardens area. Trustee Rosenbaum reported that this problem is on the agenda of the Public Works Committee meeting scheduled for September 29th.

Scott Kirk and Steven Pelino were sworn in as police patrol officers. Fire engineers Gary Patrick and Phil Bruzan were promoted to lieutenants. Fire fighter/paramedics Mark Colantone and Michael McMillan were promoted to engineers, and fire fighters Timothy Radtke and Scott Tsilis were also promoted to engineers. Police Officer Joe Garrett, Fire Chief Ed Folliard, Fire Lieutenant Brian Tiernan, and Fire Engineer Scott Ralston received commendations for the work they did in New Orleans, aiding the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Trustee Olejniczak announced that the owners of the commercial property at 87th and Cicero have told him they intend to make improvements to the property. Trustee Olejniczak reminded that the village offers free fire wood at the public works site at 98th and Central and that free wood chips are also available.

The ordinance establishing a special service area for the Target Project/Municipal Parking Lot was again tabled amid comments and innuendos from residents and the other trustees about the "secret meeting" held between the Target representative and Trustees, Hurckes, Joy, and Rosenbaum. All three of the trustees denied violating the Open Meetings Act, stating that they met individually with the Target representative. Trustee Rosenbaum stated that to make an informed decision, you must have the facts, and that each of the trustees can hold meetings to ascertain the facts. Mayor Heilmann used his gavel frequently and reminded the trustees of respect. Village resident, Myrna Jurcev, stated that she was very familiar with the Open Meetings act and she believes that the trustees did not violate the act however considering the past election and how the voters reacted to the past board, it just looks bad.

The board approved changes in conference and travel expenses eliminating per diems in favor of documented receipts and suspended all travel and conference expenses. The board then entered executive session. The next meeting will be held on October 11th.

The board moved to executive session at 9:45.

Life Chain 2005 In Orland Park

The Orland Park Life Chain will take place on 96th Ave. (LaGrange Road) between 143rd and 153rd streets.

Standing publicly, Christians will create a silent, loving protest against abortion. More than 90% of women who have had an abortion say they wish they hadn't, and indicate that they wouldn't have if they had received the right information.

Each person holds a sign with a message for passing motorists such as: "Abortion Hurts Women," "Adoption: the Loving Option," "Abortion Kills Children," and "Jesus Heals and Forgives."

More than 30 churches will have members participating in this 16th annual Orland Park Life Chain. St. George Parish is the sponsoring church for the Orland Park Life Chain. Bill Beckman, Pro-Life Coordinator at St. George, is the coordinator for the Orland Park observance.

Many Life Chains are scheduled in the greater Chicagoland area & more than 900 will take place nationwide. For information on Life Chains scheduled in the Chicago area, contact Illinois Right to Life at (312) 422-9300.

New Carpenters' Training Center Opens

State, county and local officials were on hand recently as the Chicago Regional Council of Carpenters officially opened its new training center that will allow more than 500 inner-city Chicago residents to pursue a career in the area's largest skilled trade.

Named for Earl J. Oliver, the immediate past president of the Union who broke ground for the building in the Spring of 2004, but died before its completion, the center is the largest union training facility in Chicago, providing an additional 38,000 square feet of classrooms and open space where carpentry skills are learned.

It was President Oliver who first came up with the idea of a Chicago apprenticeship center in the mid-1990s, nearly a decade after the Washburn Trade School had closed, drastically decreasing the presence of union training programs in Chicago. Boldly leading the way for other unions, in 1996 Oliver announced that the carpenters, working together with management, would establish a center at the corner of Union and Cermak to ensure that Chicago residents had access to the trade and that Chicago, with its robust construction market, had a diverse and well-trained cadre of carpenters.

When the center opened in 1998, it was an immediate success. Within a year, the center was graduating more than 250 people from its pre-apprenticeship programs, and demand exceeded capacity. Now with the opening of the 38,000 square-foot addition, the Council doubled the number of apprentices that can be trained each year.

Carpenters earn steady and rewarding wages at all levels. Apprentices are paid while they receive an education, and earn between 40 and 80 percent of the journeymen rate, depending on their year in the program. Journeymen wages are $35.32 per hour for commercial and residential carpentry. This means even first-year apprentices earn wages of $14.13 per hour. Pre-apprentices receive benefits that include a stipend for five weeks of their training and money towards the purchase of tools and union dues upon the completion of training.

To apply for the Council's pre-apprenticeship program, a person must be at least 17 years old, reside in the 10-county Chicago area (Cook, DuPage, Grundy, Iroquois, Kane, Kankakee, Kendall, Lake, McHenry or Will counties), have successfully completed two years of required high school (a high school diploma or GED is preferred), have an original Social Security Card and be physically fit to work as a carpenter. Applicants must also pass an aptitude test. For more information, call the Chicago Regional Council of Carpenters at (847) 640-7373.

The Chicago Regional Council of Carpenters represents more than 47,000 men and women working throughout 81 counties in northern Illinois, Southeast Wisconsin and Eastern Iowa. It is one of the largest Regional Council of Carpenters in the United States. Since 1881, the Chicago Regional Council of Carpenters has been a positive force in building communities and improving the lives of its members and their families.

Durbin Proposes Saving On Drug Prices Bill

Pointing to a report by Families USA where seniors using Medicare drug discount cards were found to have paid significantly more for 49 of the 50 most frequently prescribed drugs than Veterans Administration (VA) patients, U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) on Sept. 27th called on Congress to pass his legislation to give Medicare the ability to negotiate on behalf of its beneficiaries.

Durbin said, "The report by Families USA points out a simple truth: there is strength in numbers. The Veterans Administration has a process for negotiating drug prices that is proven and effective and leverages the buying power of millions of veterans. It's time to replicate that success so seniors in Illinois and the nation can experience real savings on their prescription drugs."

The report found that the median price difference for the top 50 drugs was $220.44. Additionally, for the top 25 most prescribed drugs, Medicare beneficiaries using discount cards paid almost 60% more than the best available VA price. For example, the Medicare discount price for Plavix, a blood-clot reducing agent that is the most heavily prescribed medication for seniors, is $1,230.36, compared to the best VA price of $887.16 per year - a difference of $343.20, or 38.7%. For another drug, Protonix, the fifth most heavily prescribed drug for seniors, the VA best price is $253.32, compared to $827.40 under the Medicare discount cards - a difference of $574.08, or 226.6%.

Durbin said, "Giving Medicare the authority to negotiate on behalf of its beneficiaries is the right prescription for real savings on drug prices. Medicare has 25 times the number of people in its system than the Veterans Administration. My bill is good old-fashioned free market economics: if one buys in bulk, the price will come down."

Cash Donations Are Quickest And Best Way To Help Victims Of Hurricane Rita

Americans who are anxious to help beleaguered hurricane victims are urged by officials of the Dept. of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to consider cash donations as the most efficient way to assist victims.

That sentiment is shared by the National Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster (National VOAD) who listed the following toll-free donation numbers that have been activated by the respective states to receive calls from around the nation and world from persons who wish to contribute money, goods and services.

Louisiana - 1(866) 334-8305

Texas - 1(800) 707-6768

Officials said that cash donations allow voluntary organizations to both obtain goods and services locally and for some to issue direct financial assistance to victims so they can meet their needs. They also allow agencies to avoid the labor-intensive need to clean, sort, package, label and store donated goods. Donated money avoids, too, the expense of air or sea transportation that donated goods require.

Voluntary organizations provide a wide variety of services after disasters, such as clean-up, childcare, housing repair, crisis counseling, sheltering and food.

To find out what voluntary organizations are working in the impacted areas, and how to direct a cash donation to them, donors should go online to www.nvoad.org.

The Medicare Prescription Drugs Savings Act will reverse a provision in the Republican Medicare prescription drug bill signed by the President, which prohibits the Secretary of Health and Human Services from negotiating with drug companies for lower prices. The bill instructs the Secretary of HHS to offer a nationwide Medicare-delivered prescription drug benefit and to negotiate group purchasing agreements on behalf of beneficiaries who choose to receive their drugs through the Medicare-administered benefit.

St. James Trauma Center Reopening

Despite a lack of financial support from the state, St. James Hospital and Health Centers announced on Sept. 27th the reopening of its Level I trauma program on Oct. 1. As one of only two Level I Trauma Centers in the Southland, St. James is renewing this critical community service to protect the region's access to care.

With close to 50 percent of St. James' patients either uninsured or Medicaid-insured, state funding of Level I trauma care is vital to providing this service for the community. Level I trauma is the most intense type of care available, requiring 24-hour coverage of many physician specialties that are in short supply. Hospital leaders were forced to de-designate the trauma program on Sept. 1 due to the program's lack of state funding and physician coverage. Since that time, the Olympia Fields hospital has secured a new physician team.

Renowned trauma surgeon Dr. Gary Merlotti, will lead the team that will support the Level I program. Dr. Merlotti, formerly of Christ Medical Center, will start working immediately to get the Level I trauma team prepared for reopening.

St. James officials are calling on the state to secure regional health care planning in Illinois. The Certificate of Need (CON) approval process for new health care construction and expansion ensures that regional health care resources are not wasted on unneeded facilities and services.

The availability of emergency care and disaster preparedness plans have gained national attention in recent weeks. "The aftermath of Hurricane Katrina and Rita have shown us that community hospitals must be prepared in times of tragedy to quickly respond. In the face of such threats, protecting the state's Level I trauma network becomes more important than ever," said Merlotti. "We hope the state recognizes the importance of our effort to protect this essential service."

Smith Village Provides Senior Living

Thanks to suggestions and requests from area seniors, two popular floor plans have now been added to Smith Senior Living's selection of apartments for Smith Village. The two-bedroom Chestnut model and one-bedroom Cypress offer options for seniors seeking a carefree, independent lifestyle. "The new layouts are spacious, sunny and create a lovely and convenient living space," says Smith Village Marketing Director Bunny Sugarman.

In addition to viewing these new floor plans in Smith Village's Information Center at 10400 S. Western Ave., seniors can learn more about a very exceptional offer. The next five residents who reserve an independent living apartment will receive a $5,000 incentive that can be applied to their entrance fee or used for decorator upgrades. Plus, Smith Village's next five depositors will pay no monthly fee for the first two months after they move into their new home, a value between $3,600 and $6,000. With these two discounts, new depositors could save more than $10,000.

Smith Village in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood offers a peek at the future of senior housing. Each detail of the $65 million continuing care retirement community (CCRC) is designed to meet the changing lifestyle needs of seniors today and tomorrow.

The Chestnut is ideal for siblings, good friends and overnight guests. Opening the front door of the Chestnut, visitors step into an inviting area including a spacious living room, dining room and kitchen. The easy flow of the rooms allows for maximum living space in the 1,030 square foot home. Two complete bedroom suites make the Chestnut unique.

In the Chestnut, the master bedroom suite includes an 11'6" by 14'4" room, plus an enormous walk-in closet and large bathroom. The second bedroom is 10'6" x 11' and also features a large closet and a nearby bathroom with a bathtub. "The Chestnut has already been very popular because of its size," says Sugarman. "There is ample room for entertaining, storage and overnight visitors. A few who have reserved this apartment have already decided to use the extra bedroom as an office or for space to enjoy hobbies like painting or scrapbooking."

The Cypress offers ample room for a hobby area and storage. This new model is 1,007 square feet and is one of the largest one-bedroom models at Smith

Village. The Cypress includes a master suite with a walk-in closet, a full bath and a handy den. "We've really responded to our depositors' needs with this new model," says Sugarman.

A separate dining area is located between the kitchen and living room, providing ample space for dinner parties. The living room flows into the den, giving the apartment a spacious, open feeling. The Cypress also has a small room off the kitchen that is perfect for shelving, storage, or even as a large extra pantry. Most of the Cypress apartments have windows looking out to the lush green of Kennedy Park right across the street from Smith Village.

The independent living section of Smith Village features 152 gracious one and two-bedroom apartments, all with fully equipped kitchens, washer and dryers, and individual heating and cooling controls.

A sun-filled atrium lights the way to Smith Village Commons, where seniors can enjoy formal dining, a casual café and a private dining room to entertain guests. A day spa and salon, arts and crafts studio, state-of-the-art fitness center, cocktail lounge, computer lab and business suite, theater and library offer great social options. Linen service, housekeeping and maintenance make life easier. A unique healthcare package is also included that will save seniors thousands of dollars as well as give them peace of mind for their future, should a higher level of care ever be needed.

As a continuing care retirement community (CCRC), Smith Village offers a complete continuum of care for seniors. In addition to the independent living apartments, assisted living, memory support and skilled nursing care will be available right on campus.

Slated to open in early 2007, Smith Village is part of the Smith Senior Living family of premier senior living communities in the southwest sector of metropolitan Chicago. The not-for-profit organization established its first community in 1924.

Reservations are currently being accepted for the new independent living apartments on the campus. For more information, call the Information Center for Smith Village, (773) 881-4950, or visit www.SmithVillage.org.

112th Street Improvements

Construction is underway for the rehabilitation of 112th Place from Western to Oakley avenues. An entirely new street is being reset to a 34-foot width. New curbs and gutters will be included, as well as new water, gas and electric lines installed.

Construction of Smith Village, a $65 million continuing care retirement community (CCRC), is ahead of schedule and moving forward, according to Jim Fitch, special project manager for Smith Senior Living.

Construction of a new assisted living building along 112th Place is the first phase in transforming the highly respected, 80-year-old Washington and Jane Smith Community into Smith Village. The exterior of the building is now nearly complete and landscaping will begin in October. The interior is slated for completion in Dec. 2005.

Upon completion of this building, current Washington and Jane Smith residents will move to the new building. Then, the existing structure will be demolished to make way for the construction of spacious, sunny independent living apartments.

Slated to open in 2007, the independent living residences of Smith Village feature one- and two-bedroom apartments with fully equipped kitchens with fully equipped kitchen, ample closet space and comfortable areas for relaxing and entertaining. Each apartment will have its own heating and cooling controls, as well as a washer and dryer.

A sun-filled atrium will light the way to Smith Village Commons, where seniors can enjoy formal dining, a casual café and a private dining room to entertain guests. A hair salon, convenience store, housekeeping services and linen services all combine to make life easier. Additionally, an arts and crafts studio, business and computer center, library, club and game rooms, gardens and walking paths offer great social options.

Another unique amenity at Smith Village is a comprehensive healthcare benefit that supplements any health insurance plan. If a resident requires additional care, it can be provided right on campus, according to Bunny Sugarman, director of marketing for Smith Village. Residents can accumulate up to 100 free days in either assisted living or skilled nursing. People who enter the Smith Village community by moving into an independent living apartment also receive a 15 percent lifetime discount on assisted living or skilled nursing care, if needed, a benefit that both saves money and offers real peace of mind to residents and their families.

The community is led by Smith Senior Living, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to serving the lifestyle, housing and healthcare needs of seniors for nearly 80 years. The new community will provide independent living, assisted living, memory support and skilled nursing care with large apartments and a host of amenities. For more information, visit www.SmithVillage.org or call (773) 881-4950.

Co-Porkers of the Month

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) recently named House Majority Leader Tom DeLay (R-Texas) and Transportation and Infrastructure Committee Chairman Don Young (R-Alaska) Co-Porkers of the Month for their response to requests to offset the costs of Hurricane Katrina relief. According to a Sept. 14th Washington Times article, Rep. DeLay declared an "ongoing victory" in the effort to cut spending, and that the Republicans had "pared [the government] down pretty good." While claiming to be receptive to proposed offsets, Mr. DeLay said that "nobody has been able to come up with any yet." He added that cutting the 6,000 earmarks in the recently-passed $295 billion Transportation Equity Act - A Legacy for Users (TEA-ELU) would adversely affect "important infrastructure" and the economy, and it would be "right" to borrow the money to pay for Katrina relief.

Rep. Young had a much more curt response when asked by a Fairbanks Daily News-Miner reporter about redirecting the combined $450 million for the Gravina Island and Knik Arm (renamed Don Young's Way) bridges to hurricane victims: "They can kiss my ear." He then called such a request the "dumbest thing I've ever heard."

Rep. Young added insult to this injury to taxpayers - and common sense - by stating that Louisiana did quite well in the highway bill (failing to note changed circumstances, like the lack of a bridge over Lake Pontchartrain) and that he had helped the seafood industry raise $50,000 for hurricane victims. The money came from a Sept. 9th charity golf tournament in Roslyn, Washington, yet Young said, "I raised enough money to give back to them voluntarily, and that's it." These comments came several days after a spokesman for Mr. Young called the pork for relief idea "moronic."

Unfortunately, Rep. DeLay's and Rep. Young's comments will confirm what taxpayers already think about the lack of leadership to cut wasteful programs in the Republican-led Congress, which has presided over the largest increase in federal spending since the Great Society.

Both legislators have ignored savings that could come from CAGW's Congressional Pig Book, which identified 13,977 pork projects totaling $27.3 billion in the fiscal 2005 appropriations bill. Projects included $6.3 million for wood utilization research, $2 million for the buy back of the USS Sequoia Presidential Yacht, and $100,000 for the Tiger Woods Foundation. The highway bill included "important infrastructure" like $2.3 million for landscaping enhancements along the Ronald Reagan Freeway in Ventura County, $1.8 million to construct a visitor interpretive center at the Gray Fossil Site in Gray, Tennessee, and $432,000 to establish a transportation museum on the Navy Pier in Chicago. Rescinding such projects would do nothing to harm the economy or essential transportation priorities.

Reps. DeLay and Young, and their colleagues, have other resources at their disposal for cutting budget fat. CAGW's report Prime Cuts 2005 catalogues 600 recommendations throughout the government that if enacted could save taxpayers $232 billion in fiscal year 2006 and $2 trillion over the next five years. Recommendations range from ending corporate welfare to eliminating outdated and expensive agricultural subsidies. President Bush proposed cutting or eliminating 150 programs in fiscal 2006, saving taxpayers about $15 billion. The web site for the Office of Management and Budget meticulously documents the justifications for each recommendation. These proposals could be brought to the House floor for a vote with Mr. DeLay's help.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Peoples Energy has recently alerted All Points that the average winter heating season bill (November-March) for a typical residential dwelling is forecast at $1,475 for utility customers (this notice prior to Hurricane Rita!). This represents a 39% increase over last year. In addition to higher natural gas commodity prices, the increase includes a return to normal weather. Last winter was 7% warmer than normal. Bills may vary depending on actual gas costs and colder weather that could lead to increased customer usage. However, Peoples Energy's price forecast is in contrast to a preliminary estimate released two weeks ago by the U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA) that says an average national gas home-heat customer in the Midwest could expect to pay as much as 71% more for natural gas service.

There are a number of reasons why natural gas prices have been trending higher. The summer has been hotter than normal through most of the U.S., creating demand for electricity from natural gas fired electric generation facilities. Additionally, production is struggling to keep pace with overall demand. This, along with the as yet unknown long term effects of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita on natural gas production in the Gulf of Mexico, creates concerns in the market and leads to increased prices.

The cost of gas and related taxes make up as much as 80% of a monthly bill. About 20% of the bill is the charge to deliver the natural gas to customers' homes and businesses. The delivery charge is invested into the business to upgrade and maintain a 6,000 mile distribution system and meters and to provide quality customer service. Over the last 10 years, the utilities claim to have invested nearly $90 million to provide safe, clean and reliable natural gas service to over one million customers in the City of Chicago and its surrounding communities.

In light of the projected energy increases, Gov. Rod Blagojevich has named Ed Hurley, outgoing chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC), to serve as the new Special Director of Emergency Energy Assistance this winter. Hurley will be expected to marshal resources from the public and private sectors and to coordinate assistance to vulnerable populations impacted by record-high heating costs.

According to Gov. Blagojevich, "home heating costs are expected to increase by nearly 40% this winter. That's an additional $500 for the average Illinois family. We all feel the impact of the energy crisis - but for our senior citizens and families living on fixed incomes, the blow will be enormous. People's health and safety will be in serious jeopardy if faced with the choice of heating their homes or buying groceries."

Special Director Hurley will coordinate with state agencies to launch an awareness campaign explaining to the public how to stay warm and healthy during the cold months and steps they can take to improve their homes energy efficiency and reduce heating costs. He will also coordinate with local governments and organizations to identify the most vulnerable residents, register those who qualify for heating assistance and establish monitoring systems to check people's safety during cold periods.

The Special Director will also set up a complaint system that will assist the state in monitoring utility prices and shut-offs, as well as work with utilities, the I.C.C. and other state agencies to ensure the public's best interest is protected.

The Governor has announced that $4.2 million in grants have been awarded to Illinois by the U.S. Department of Justice for programs to help women who have been victims of sexual assault and domestic violence. The grants will support two centers in Central Illinois and the East St. Louis areas that will house law enforcement officers, prosecutors, judges and service providers, so that victims will not have to go from place to place to get legal assistance and social services they need. The program will also support shelters for domestic violence victims throughout the state, and training for law enforcement officers and prosecutors so that victims only have to testify once.

The federal funding will also support shelters for domestic violence in Chicago, Tinley Park. The grants will fund training that will help law enforcement officers, prosecutors and victim service advocates to respond more effectively to victims, and reduce the anxiety and humiliation victims often suffer when having to render their testimony more than once, or submit to evidence collection at different places. Police officers will also be able to provide victims at their home with a card to access the assistance centers.

The Governor further noted that a bill has been signed that allows victims of violent crime, including domestic violence victims, who must relocate for safety reasons to qualify for reimbursement for the first month's rent, security deposit and other reasonable relocation expenses.

The Cork and Kerry Tavern Octoberfest will be held this Saturday, Oct. 1st from 3 to 7 p.m. at 10614 S. Western Ave. The Octoberfest features an afternoon of German beer, food and music. Proceeds from this event benefit the Beverly Area Planning Association (BAPA) and the Beverly Arts Center. Both are non-profit organizations.

A $10 admission includes a German beer tasting featuring Ayinger, Erdinger, Paulaner and Goose Island beers, a free stein, two drink tickets and numerous door prizes. German food may be purchased and a German music band will entertain from 5 to 7 p.m. For tickets call (773) 445-2675.

Free Seminar Offers Insights Into The Dollars And "Sense" Of CCRCs

Local seniors can learn about important personal and financial considerations as they consider senior lifestyle and housing options. A free presentation, "The Dollars and Sense of Continuing Care Retirement Communities (CCRC)," will be offered on Wednesday, Oct. 5, beginning at 2 p.m., at the Smith Village Information Center, 10400 S. Western Ave. in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood.

Michael A. Flynn, chief financial officer for Smith Senior Living, which sponsors Smith Village, will discuss the financial facet of living at Smith Village. With 20 plus years experience as an accounting professional, of which 16 years have been in the long-term care profession, Flynn is an expert in the field. "CCRCs offer security on so many levels," says Flynn.

Flynn also will be on hand to show area seniors how to compare their current cost of living with monthly expenses at Smith Village. "It's amazing what people spend on the maintenance of their home, inside and out, as well as on so many other living expenses that will be covered in the Smith Village monthly fee," says Flynn. "On top of that, the myriad of services and amenities that are included add an exceptional value." The presentation will be followed by a question and answer session for answers to all financial questions from the Smith Village CFO.

In addition to learning more about this important factor in selecting a retirement option, visitors can enjoy light refreshments, view a scale model of the new Smith Village and find out how to reserve an independent living apartment. The new senior living community, now under construction along Western Ave. between 112th and 113 places, offers a peek at the future of senior housing. Each detail of the $65 million CCRC, the largest real estate development in Beverly's history, is designed to meet the changing lifestyle needs of seniors today and tomorrow.

Seniors are welcomed to reserve their choice of a new independent living apartment at Smith Village. This seminar is free, but reservations are suggested. For more information, phone the Information Center for Smith Village, (773) 881-4950 or visit www.SmithVillage.org.

IDOT Planning And Design Processes Ensure Quality Product For Taxpayers

The Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) announced it has received international recognition of quality excellence in its process management system for the planning and design of road and bridge improvements. The Department was formally presented its ISO 9001:2000 Registration certificate from NSF International Strategic Registrations, Ltd. (NSF-ISR).

The ISO 9001:2000 certification, based on standards developed by the International Organization of Standardization (ISO), recognizes IDOT for the quality of key processes involved in and supporting its road and bridge planning and design work.

"We sought ISO certification to demonstrate that IDOT pays attention to detail and provides Illinois taxpayers a quality product," said Timothy W. Martin, Illinois Secretary of Transportation. "It shows a higher level of accountability, and in order to ensure quality, we bring in outside auditors from the business world to examine our work and certify that we're meeting international business standards on process management. This registration recognizes that IDOT's process management system meets the recognized business test for effectiveness and efficiency, along with excellence in areas such as training, communications, customer satisfaction and document control."

NSF-ISR, an NSF International company, thoroughly assessed the IDOT quality management system and found it to be in compliance with ISO 9001:2000, an international standard that provides a universal baseline for quality process management. This registration will help IDOT maintain quality planning and design throughout the development process and maintain a high level of accountability to the public it serves.

To obtain ISO 9001:2000 certification, the Department has committed to provide the necessary resources to manage and execute its certified processes correctly based on documented customer requirements. IDOT must show evidence during rigorous audits that employees involved in the planning and design of roads and bridges are qualified and proficient in the work they do, that they follow the processes as they are spelled out in IDOT procedural manuals, and the IDOT staff strives to continually improve process efficiency and effectiveness to ensure a quality end product.

"Not only does ISO 9001:2000 registration confirm that all employees involved in the planning and design of roads and bridges were competent in the work they do, but it shows IDOT's continued commitment as they will be expanding their registration in the future," said Christian Lupo, general manager, NSF-ISR, a global leader in management system registrations.

In order to maintain the ISO certification, IDOT will be audited internally or externally each quarter over the next two years. IDOT will perform internal audits every six months to make sure the quality management system remains effective, and external auditors will come into the Department every six months as well to verify the system's continuing effectiveness. The Department also is working toward expanding its ISO certification in the future to include all aspects of planning, design and construction along with support services involving purchasing, training, personnel management and facilities maintenance.

"This certification shows that the men and women of IDOT are dedicated to meeting customer requirements and making sure we do it right, and do it right the first time," Secretary Martin said. "We are opening our management processes up to the public for scrutiny to guarantee consistency and quality in our roads and bridges."

Secretary Of State Jesse White Initiates Sting To Combat Fraudulent Use Of Disability Placards

In an ongoing effort to combat the improper use of disability parking placards, Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White initiated a two-day sting operation which netted 16 citations.

The operation took place recently on and around Post St. between Lake St. and Lower Wacker Drive in Chicago's Loop. White personally noticed a concentration of disability placards in this area and called in the Illinois Secretary of State Police Dept. who executed the operation and served the citations.

Persons who illegally manufacture or alter plates or placards, obtain plates or placards based on fictitious information, or knowingly transfer plates or placards to others so that they may use privileges granted to authorized holders of the plates or placards will face a Class A misdemeanor, which includes a maximum fine of $1,000, and will be subject to a fine of not less than $500 for the first offense.

A second or subsequent offense would be a Class 4 felony with a minimum fine of $2,000 and a maximum fine of $10,000. Currently, all offenses are Class A misdemeanors.

The Secretary of State may also suspend or revoke the license plates or placards of the persons who violate this provision.

Additionally, White initiated legislation (HB 1316) that created stiffer penalties for those caught improperly parking in a disability parking space. Beginning on Jan. 1st, 2006, violators could face a fine of up to $500 and a driver's license suspension.

The Secretary of State's office can also administratively suspend or revoke the driver's license of the driver and the license plates or placard. Suspensions and revocations were not allowed previously.

There are currently over 550,000 placards and over 90,000 disability plates in Illinois.

Reading Program

School District 143 has begun an exciting new reading program which will continue through May 5th. Everyone is invited to join the students as they "take flight on a mile long adventure." School District 143 students, staff, parents and community members will join together to read one mile of books.

For every book you read a section will be added to a caterpillar. The goal is to have the caterpillar grow to one mile long, which is 10,000 books. According to Superintendent Mike Hollingsworth, you can read any type of book you like, then obtain a section (circle) of the caterpillar. You may list the book you have read with the school children or if you have no one in school go to the library, 147th and Kenton, and receive your circle to be added to the caterpillar.

Each book read will earn a raffle ticket for a chance to win prizes. The prizes will be awarded every quarter mile. Watch for the progress in the Midlothian Messenger and the school caterpillar displays. You can turn in any book titles you have read starting with Sept. 15th.

Superintendent Hollingsworth said the program has really caught on and the children have already read many books and the caterpillar is rapidly growing each day.

Hold Music BYTES

Electroacoustic Concert

Lewis University will present the Music BYTES on Friday, Sept. 30th at 2 p.m. Open to the public and free of charge, the concert, which showcases some of the best electroacoustic music in the world, will be held in Ives Hall of the Oremus Fine Arts Center on the Lewis main campus located on Route 53 in Romeoville.

A biannual event, Music BYTES was first held in the fall of 2001 under the direction of Dr. Mike McFerron, Associate Professor and Composer-in-Residence at Lewis. Since its beginning, Music BYTES has presented numerous electroacoustic music compositions, including world premieres, new releases, and works by students.

This fall's concert will consist of music which is part of the "60X60: Midwest Composers" project. Robert Voisey, a composer living in New York, solicited stereo compositions that are one minute or less, and then compiled and ordered 60 of these works into one continuous 60-minute program known as "60X60" - 60 compositions, each under 60 seconds or less, creating a 60-minute concert.

WISCONSIN DNR NETS AND RELEASES ALBINO MUSKIE, BUT WON'T NAME THE LAKE: This spring, a DNR fisheries crew caught a white muskie in their fyke nets during population surveys. The fish was 32" long and 7.9 lbs., reports John Kubisiak, DNR fish biologist for Onieda County.

DNR crews, after measuring and weighing the fish made a fin clip for future identification and released the muskie. So the ghost fish will continue to haunt Onieda County waters and muskie fishermen, and the legend will grow.

CHICKEN SHOOT: Four times a year, the Palos Sportsmen's Club allows non-members to try out their shotguns, skill and luck in trap or skeet in special shoots. This coming Sunday, Oct. 2nd is one of those times.

The Chicken Shoot allows shotgunners to compete on the trap range against other shooters, of equal skill, to not only dust off their shotguns, and get ready for the hunting season, but possibly walk away with a frozen chicken ready for the oven.

The Chicken Shoot runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The club is located at 24038 S. Harlem Ave. in nearby Franklin, Illinois. Phone: (815) 469-4446. See you there! Due to a shoulder operation, I will not be shooting, but will be on hand to enjoy the festivities, and offer assistance where needed.

ILLINOIS RECOGNIZES ITS RESIDENT ARMED FORCES: The Illinois Department of Natural Resources is offering an Armed Forces Special Pass to military members who live in Illinois and have served abroad, including guard or reserve members called to active duty. The special pass provides camping, fishing and hunting fee exemptions for qualified military members. Guard and reserve can apply if it's within two years of their return from abroad or release from mobilization.

The pass offers a combined Sportsman's License and Habitat Stamp for hunting and fishing, and an archery or firearm deer permit if requested and available. Military members are eligible for free sport fishing, hunting and camping for one year for each year, and portion of one year served.

To receive an Armed Forces Special Pass from the IDNR, qualifying military members must appear in person at the Illinois Department of Natural Resources headquarters in Springfield, within two years of their return from abroad or release from mobilization, provide verification of dates of service, and provide a photo ID. "Kirby's comment: it seems unreasonable to require these returning heroes to have to travel all the way to Springfield to receive these passes. Why can't this be done at local IDNR regional offices throughout the state?"

TOP COURT FREES GUNMAKERS OF LIABILITY: A unanimous Illinois Supreme Court rejected the City of Chicago's attempt to blame gun makers for the criminal misuse of firearms within the city. In rejecting Chicago's case the court ruled that gun makers do not owe a "duty to the city of Chicago or its residents to prevent their firearms from ending up in the hands of persons who use and possess them illegally."

"This decision is the latest in a long list of appellate court decisions that have rejected politically motivated 'junk' lawsuits that have tried to blame the makers of lawfully sold firearms for the actions of criminals," said Lawrence G. Keane, senior vice-president and general counsel for the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the firearm industry's trade association. (Source: The Great Lakes Basin Report)

DEER HARVEST REPORTING REMINDER: Deer hunters are reminded that harvest-reporting requirements in Illinois have changed effective with the 2005-06 season. Successful hunters this fall must register their kill by 10 p.m. on the same calendar day the deer is taken by calling a toll-free telephone check-in system at 1(866) IL.CHECK or by accessing online check-in system at <http://dnr.state.il.us/vcheck>. Hunters will be provided with a confirmation number to verify they have checked in their harvest. This number must be written by the hunter onto the temporary harvest tag (leg tag). The deer must remain whole (or field dressed) until it has been checked in through the new check-in system.

Deer pins will be available free of charge. Successful deer hunters interested in obtaining a 2005-06 deer pin will be able to submit an application online and deer pins will be mailed to them. The online deer pin application will be available beginning with the opening of the archery season on Oct. 1st.

The changes are part of the implementation DNR Direct, Illinois' new automated license, permit and registration system.

SALT CREEK PUBLIC FISHING AREA OPENS: The Porter county Salt Creek PFA north of Valparaiso, Indiana is open just in time for the fall-winter run of Skamania, Chinook and Coho salmon in Lake Michigan tributary streams. Winter-run steelhead should be in the stream from November to mid-April.

Deer Hunters To Report Harvest By Telephone Or Web Site

The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) will require deer hunters, in most Illinois counties, to register their harvest by telephone or by logging onto the IDNR web site. This registration process will begin with the 2005-06 archery deer-hunting season, which starts on Oct. 1st. Harvest reporting through county check stations this fall will be conducted only during the firearm deer season in those counties where the IDNR will be doing surveillance sampling for chronic wasting disease (CWD).

Prior to this year, successful deer hunters were required to register their deer at a county check station by 8 p.m. on the same day it was harvested. Under the new reporting system, the temporary harvest leg tag that is part of the deer permit should be placed on the deer immediately upon retrieval and the deer must remain whole or field dressed until it is registered. Hunters will phone in or go online to report their harvest by 10 p.m. on the same day the deer is taken.

Except in CWD surveillance counties, successful deer hunters will register their harvest via a toll-free call to 1(866) 452-4325 or through the IDNR web site at <http://dnr.state.il.us/vcheck> by 10 p.m. that same day. Hunters either calling in or using the web site to register their harvest will be given a confirmation number to verify that they registered their deer. The number must be written on the temporary harvest leg tag.

Chronic Wasting Disease Sampling Planned For Start Of Archery Deer Hunting

The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) will continue surveillance for chronic wasting disease (CWD) in wild deer by testing tissue samples taken from adult deer provided by archery hunters who voluntarily participate in the effort by select northern Illinois counties. Tests will be conducted on samples from deer harvested by participating bow hunters in Boone, Cook, DuPage, DeKalb, Kane, Lake, McHenry, Ogle and Winnebago counties from Oct. 1st through Nov. 17th.

Only adult deer will be tested since it is unlikely that CWD would be detectable in deer less than six months old.

The voluntary monitoring program will help track the distribution and number of chronic wasting disease cases in Illinois deer. To date, CWD has been found in Boone, DeKalb, McHenry and Winnebago counties. CWD is a fatal neurological disease, involving deer and elk, which poses a serious threat to deer populations in areas where it occurs. There is no evidence that humans can contract CWD from eating venison and CWD is not considered a threat to human health.

All test results will be posted on the IDNR web site and will be accessible to participating hunters. Hunters submitting a deer that tests positive will be notified by phone as soon as results are available.

For more information, contact IDNR Wildlife Biologist Ray Eisbrener at (815) 675-2386, ext. 316, (Lake, Kane, Cook, DuPage and McHenry counties) or IDNR Wildlife Biologist Doug Dufford at (815) 535-2875 (Boone, DeKalb, Ogle and Winnebago counties).

The IDNR appreciates the assistance of hunters who volunteer to participate in this very important wildlife disease surveillance program. Hunters will also have the opportunity to have deer tested for CWD during the upcoming firearm deer season in Boone, DeKalb, Kane, McHenry, Ogle, Stephenson and Winnebago counties. Firearm season is from Nov. 18th to 20th and Dec. 1st to 4th.

Coaches Clinic

ASEP Coaches Clinic will be held in Naperville on Oct. 15th at Velocity Sports Performance and in Arlington Heights on Oct. 29th at the Holiday Inn Express for anyone interested in becoming certified to coach middle or high school athletics. The successful completion of the ASEP leader level program is required by the Illinois High School Assn. for all non-faculty coaches.

To register or for more information about this or future clinics, contact Jeff Kyle at (217) 586-4799.

Player Of The Week

St. Xavier University senior wide receiver Jarrod Nowman was named the Special Teams Football Player of the Week by the NAIA recently following an impressive outing in the Cougars' 37-14 road win over Malone College (Ohio). Nowman recorded 150 yards on four punt returns, including a 70-yard return for a TD just under a minute before halftime that put SXU ahead 34-0.

In addition to his national recognition, Nowman was named the MSFA Midwest League Special Teams Player of the Week as well. Senior linebacker Rick King also received recognition from the MSFA earning Defensive Player of the Week honors for the Midwest League. King did a little bit of everything, recording three solo tackles, two assists, one and a half tackles for losses totaling five yards, half a sack, an interception and two pass breakups as the SXU defense allowed only one offensive TD in the game.

Hunters should examine closely their deer permits for details on the information they will be asked to provide when phoning in or going online to register their harvest. Hunters will be asked to provide information about the sex and age of the deer they are registering, the number of points on antlered deer and whether they saw any bobcats or wild turkeys while in the field. In some cases, they may be asked for a measurement from the deer's antlers or hoof.

Hunters are reminded that while the way of registering deer is changing, checking in the deer they harvest is still mandatory.

Successful deer hunters will also have an opportunity to obtain a deer pin signifying their taking of a deer during the 2005-06 season. Those successful hunters interested in receiving a free deer pin may submit an application on the IDNR web site and their deer pin will be mailed to them.

The 2005-06 deer hunting seasons are:

- Archery - Oct. 1st to Jan. 12th (closed Nov. 18th to 20th and Dec. 1st to 14th in firearm counties)
- Firearm - Nov. 18th to 20th and Dec. 1st to 4th
- Muzzleloader-only - Dec. 9th to 11th
- Late Winter Firearm (select counties) - Jan. 13th to 15th, 2006

For more information on Illinois deer hunting permits and regulations, check the IDNR web site at <http://dnr.state.il.us/admin/systems/index.htm>.

Moraine Valley Hires Michael Kashirsky As New Baseball Coach

Moraine Valley Community College's baseball team is on deck for continued success after announcing that Michael Kashirsky, Windy City ThunderBolts bench and first base coach, will coach the Cyclones this spring.

"My goal is to reach every player and to have each member of the team reach their potential," Kashirsky said. "I want these guys to excel both on and off the field. I am committed to helping these student athletes reach the next level, both as a team and as individuals."

Kashirsky comes to Moraine Valley with quality experience as a player. He played for Providence Catholic High School from 1992 to 1995, helping the team earn regional and sectional championships, and in his last year as a high school player assisted the team in winning the Summer State Championship and qualifying for the Illinois' Elite Eight while earning Honorable Mention honors from the Chicago Sun-Times, the Chicago Tribune, the Star, and the Herald.

As a scholarship player for St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Indiana, Kashirsky spent an additional four years learning the fine points of the game and honing his skills as a team player. During his time at St. Joseph's, the Pumas' accomplishments were many, including 1996 College World Series runners-up and fifth place in 1998, and the 1999 Great Lakes Valley Conference Championship. He also earned individual recognition as a 1997 Academic All-American and the 1999 school record holder for fielding. While playing baseball for St. Joseph's, he earned a bachelor's degree in Science, majoring in Physical Education.

In 1999, Kashirsky signed as a Rookie League free agent with the Chicago White Sox before being called up to the Frontier League as a member of the 2000 Cook County Cheetahs. In 2003, after stretches in the Professional Canadian and Italian Baseball Leagues, Kashirsky signed with the Green Bay Bays in the Northeastern League, where he won Rookie of the Year honors with a batting average of .424.

Kashirsky brings several years of coaching experience to Moraine Valley. He has held a variety of assistant coaching positions for hitting, position and defense, as well as performing the duties of head coach for C.F. Swington's Fall League (a team consisting of players from Providence Catholic and Lincoln-Way Central). He also coached for two years at his alumni, St. Joseph's College, has served as interim manager and hitting coach for the Windy City ThunderBolts, and earned Chicago Pitch and Hit Amateur Coach of the Year honors for winning the national championship as head coach of the Upper Deck Cougars.

"I am extremely excited to face the challenges of coaching this team," Kashirsky said. "I cannot wait for the upcoming season. We have a great group returning and an outstanding freshman class."

"I want to thank Bill Finn, the athletic director, for extending me such a wonderful opportunity," Kashirsky said. "It is really a dream come true to be at Moraine Valley doing something that I truly love and to enjoy the benefits of being so close to home."

Kashirsky will replace former coach Al Budding, who retired after 19 years of coaching the Cyclones.

POLICE CALLS

On September 9th Lisa Taylor, 19, of Chicago was arrested and charged with retail theft and possession of an anti theft detecting device, after being observed by store security entering a fitting room with merchandise, then exiting the fitting room without the merchandise. The fitting room was checked for merchandise and none was found. Store security then stopped Taylor outside of the store and discovered merchandise valued at $178 in a back pack. The store sensors were covered in aluminum foil to prevent detection by the alarm system.

On September 11th Margaret Gannon, 54, of Chicago was arrested and charged with retail theft after being observed concealing jewelry, valued at $230 in a store bag then exiting the store without paying.

On September 12th David Michalski, 29, of Evergreen Park was arrested and charged with criminal trespass to property and theft after police received reports of a suspicious person carrying bundles of wire near 91st and Homan. Michalski had gained entrance to the Commonwealth Edison transformer site and had removed two bundles of wire.

On September 12th Lee Edmonds, 45, of Hazelcrest was arrested and charged with attempted deceptive practice after he attempted to open a checking account with a check drawn on a closed account.

A Run Of A Different Kind

Eight members of the Oak Lawn High School cross country team have gone on a run of a different kind. Already a year in progress, the boys are on a marathon quest to raise $45,000 for a trip to Kenya in the summer of 2006 where they hope to pitch in and make improvements to impoverished Kenya's Maseno Hospital. Thus far, they have raised an impressive amount of money, but are still $35,000 short of the finish line.

In 2001, Oak Lawn High School cross country coach Chris Repa, went on a mission trip to Tanzania. One of his runners, 17-year-old Dan Buys, had a similar experience in Nicaragua in 2003. The two got together over a year ago and, under the auspices of Youth Encounter, a Minnesota-based ministry and former connection of Repa, the dream began to formulate and become organized.

In a world where many people feel they have all they can do just to sustain their own lives, these boys are looking well beyond the tips of their own noses and crossing over into other's lives in a positive way.

The team has already jumped several hurdles, not the least of which was selling their respective parents on the idea of journeying to a foreign land. Then, they succeeded in collecting $10,000 in the past twelve months.

The problem is that their fund raising will need to kick into a higher gear in order to raise the remainder of the money for the proposed month-long trip. One of their strategies locally is selling pumpkins. They will be selling discounted pumpkins at Trinity Lutheran Church, 9701 Brandt in Oak Lawn, every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and are attempting to expand to weekend hours at an additional location, the Human Race Store, 15148 LaGrange Road in Orland Park.

Further, they are attempting to secure businesses or individuals to sponsor a run across the width of Illinois, tentatively scheduled for November.

No matter what happens, when it comes to life purpose and golden-heartedness, Dan Buys, Craig Maher, Keith Vandewerken, Will Stanko, Mike Zero, Andy Paluck, Matt Miller and Mark Miller leave most people in a cloud of dust.

In addition, a silent auction featuring beautifully arranged baskets filled with merchandise, gift certificates, crafts and services will be held, with all proceeds going toward college scholarships for deserving high school seniors in the Beverly, Morgan Park, Mount Greenwood, Evergreen Park and Oak Lawn areas. Wine and cheese will be served.

Pedro Maya May Be Sent Back To Prison

When police searched the house for suspects in the Frankie's Beef and Pasta double murder, they found more than they were looking for. Authorities found Pedro Maya hiding in the home that they were searching for his brothers, Edan and David. Edan and David were charged with the double murder of Jose Rodriguez, 21, of Worth and Carlos Flores-Lopez, 27 of Alsip. Both victims were shot while working at Frankie's Beef and Pasta on Friday, Sept. 16th.

It was stated that the police interviewed Pedro in connection with the killings since he reportedly worked at Frankie's, but was cleared due to lack of evidence. However, on a background check police reportedly found information that Pedro was deported in 2000 after he had gotten out of jail for the drug trafficking charges of cocaine possession with intent to sell.

According to Immigration and Customs officials, Pedro Maya did not have permission to return to the United States.

Edan Maya is being held without bond on first-degree murder charges. Allegedly Edan conspired with his 18 year-old brother, David and his friend Flugencio Osorio, 20. Edan, reportedly, was angry about Flores-Lopez getting his job at Frankie's.

Pedro Maya, according to authorities, will probably be sent back to prison for violation of his probation.

Christ Hospital Life Chain

Christ Hospital Life Chain 2005 will take place on Respect Life Sunday, Oct. 2nd, from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. around the hospital complex located at 4440 W. 95th St.

Life Chain is a national event held annually for the last 14 years with over 950 cities participating. On that day, virtually thousands and thousands of like-minded people across the United States send the message that abortion is NOT a choice at all, but a critical mistake. Life Chain is a prayerful, peaceful way for pro-life people to take the "Choose life" message to the streets. Silently standing side by side, they hold signs that give truthful but loving warnings and exhortations that "Abortion Kills Children," "Abortion Hurts Women" and "Jesus Forgives and Heals."

Last month, Gov. Rod Blagojevich signed the Illinois Born Alive Infants Protection Act, which paves the way for criminal penalties should Illinois hospitals and abortion clinics be found to leave live aborted babies to die without providing appropriate medical assessment and treatment.

Concert and Dinner

Trinity Evangelical Covenant Church, 9230 S. Pulaski, will host a "Pure Entertainment" Concert and Dinner Show on Sunday, Oct. 20, at 5 p.m. The concert will feature Lee Maloney from the Beautiful Sound Company who will present a program of "Pure Entertainment" on the organ. This will be a fun program with a number of surprises, including a sing-a-long. The evening is geared to family and friends who want to laugh and be entertained.

Maloney is the organist at the Chicago Theater and has played for the Ice Capades, Holiday on Ice and Ringling Brothers Circus. He has a wonderful repertoire and spirit of the lighter side of organ music. A free-will offering will be collected and child-care will be provided.

A ham dinner with all the trimmings will be held in Peterson Hall following the concert. Cost for the dinner will be $5. Reservations are necessary for the dinner. Call the church office at (708) 422-5111.

Guidelines For Handling Animals Displaced By Hurricane Katrina

The Illinois Dept. of Agriculture (IDOA) on Sept. 20th announced guidelines for individuals, animal rescue organizations, humane societies and shelters who are taking in animals displaced by Hurricane Katrina to follow in order to contain or prevent the spread of disease. IDOA also is creating an information database of all individuals and organizations bringing these displaced animals into Illinois.

The IDOA is asking that the following measures be taken to ensure displaced animals are free of disease and receive proper care:

- Animals need to be examined by a licensed veterinarian immediately upon arrival to Illinois.
- Animals should be quarantined until being examined by a veterinarian and treated according to the veterinarian's recommendations.
- Animals are required to either have proof of current rabies vaccination or be re-vaccinated upon arrival to Illinois.

St. Xavier University To Hold Depression Screening Day

Saint Xavier University will be holding a Depression Screening Day on Wednesday, Oct. 5, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the university's Chicago campus. Counseling and Career Services at Saint Xavier will be offering free, confidential screenings for depression, bipolar disorder, anxiety and post-traumatic stress disorder.

Screenings are free and open to the public. At the screening, attendees will fill out a questionnaire and have the opportunity to discuss their personal situation with a counselor. Questions that might be asked at a personal screening include: Have you lost pleasure in the things you used to enjoy?; Do you have trouble sleeping or eating?; Does your mood fluctuate between overly "high" to sad and hopeless?; Are you keyed up and anxious all the time?; and Are you having nightmares about something that happened in the past?

Chicago's "Most Preferred" Hospital

For the 11th consecutive year Chicago consumers have chosen Northwestern Memorial Hospital as their most preferred hospital, according to a survey of people living in the Chicago area conducted by the National Research Corporation (NRC). The NRC also announced that for the seventh straight year Northwestern Memorial is a winner of its Consumer Choice Award as a top hospital in the metropolitan region.

The NRC, a leader in healthcare performance measurement, asked consumers to rate hospitals using four criteria: best doctors, best nurses, best overall quality and best image and reputation. Several cities this year had co-winners, meaning there was a statistical tie between two hospitals; however, Northwestern Memorial is the exclusive winner of the Consumers Choice Award in Chicago. Consumers were also asked for their "most preferred" hospital for all household healthcare needs, and Northwestern Memorial again captured that title.

Of the 3,200 hospitals named by consumers in the study, Northwestern Memorial is one of 206 hospitals in 180 markets nationwide to receive a Consumer Choice Award. NRC CEO Michael Hays said winners are determined by consumer perceptions on multiple quality and image ratings collected in the company's annual Healthcare Market Guide Study (HCMG), the nation's largest and most comprehensive study of its kind. The NRC surveys more than 200,000 households representing 400,000 consumers.

Feast On Food Safety

Your family reunion is right around the corner, and there are going to be a lot of hungry mouths to feed. To help you satisfy them all, the Federal Citizen Information Center and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) have put together a handy, free package of publications full of food preparation and storage tips.

When cooking for a large group, it's especially important that the food is safely prepared, stored, and transported. If it's mishandled, you may have an uninvited guest at your reunion. Although invisible, bacteria can cause serious food-borne illnesses.

However, there are clear cut steps you can take to make your kitchen safe. To stop bacteria from spreading from the cutting boards to utensils, sponges and counter tops, wash your hands and kitchen surfaces often. Avoid cross-contamination by separating raw meat, poultry, and seafood from other foods in the refrigerator.

Just because your burgers look done on the outside, doesn't mean they are. Make it a habit to check all of your favorite foods, not just your holiday turkey, with a food thermometer. The Food Safety package has a handy chart of the USDA's recommended internal temperatures for meat, poultry, and egg dishes, along with guidelines for serving and storage times.

When transporting food, keep your cold foods cold - you don't want Aunt Millie's famous deviled eggs to go bad! For your hot dishes, it's a good idea to wrap and place them in an insulated container. And as soon as your meal is over, put all remaining leftovers in shallow containers and refrigerate or freeze them immediately.

Be prepared with the free Food Safety package. There are three easy ways to get free publications: visit www.pueblo.gsa.gov/rc/n28foodsafety.htm to place an order online or to read or print this and hundreds of other government publications for free; send one's name and address to Food Safety, Pueblo, Colorado 81009; or call toll-free 1-888-8 PUEBLO. That's 1 (888) 878-3256, weekdays 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Time and ask for Food Safety.

Get even more information and take advantage of federal resources online at www.FirstGov.gov, one's front door to federal and state government websites.

U.S. Dept. Of Transportation Names Famed Routes "National Scenic Byways"

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 22nd applauded the "National Scenic Byways" designation by the U.S. Dept. of Transportation for two storied transportation routes in Illinois: Route 66 and the Illinois River Road. The designation means that the routes are added to the national list of Scenic Byways and are eligible to apply for grant funding that can be used for marketing, visitor centers, landscaping and other amenities.

"Route 66 winds more than 2,000 miles from Chicago to LA and is so much more than just a highway. It's a symbol of our love for the open road and that can-do spirit of individualism and adventure that is such a vital part of the American way of life. The Illinois River Road is a window to our rich Native American cultural legacy and the natural splendors of our state. The new designations for these two routes will help us attract even more visitors to Illinois," said Gov. Blagojevich.

The announcement of the designation of two new Scenic Byways in Illinois was made in Washington D.C. on Sept. 22nd by U.S. Secretary of Transportation Norman Mineta, who was acting on applications submitted by two local groups - the Route 66 Heritage Project and the Peoria Area Convention and Visitors Bureau - through IDOT.

To make the Scenic Byways designation a reality, Gov. Blagojevich provided more than $500,000 in Opportunity Returns support through the Illinois Bureau of Tourism, which coordinated the strategic effort to highlight these important historical destinations as part of its efforts to grow tourism in Illinois. Both byways will bring new attention to existing tourism assets and complement the Mile After Magnificent Mile marketing campaign that highlights the state's 3-Day Getaway destinations.

The starting point of Route 66 is at the corner of Lake Shore Drive and Jackson Blvd. in Chicago. The route winds through Chicago on various streets to southbound Interstate 55. It travels along much of I-55 and its frontage road, except for a loop from Plainfield to Braceville along Old US 66 and another loop along Route 4 from Springfield to south of Staunton, where it again meets the primary route along I-55. The Illinois portion of Route 66 covers 420 miles and ends in East St. Louis at the Martin Luther King Memorial Bridge.

The Illinois River Road, known as "the Route of the Voyageurs," after the early French explorers, covers 271 miles through the heart of the state and runs from Ottawa to Havana. It includes much of Routes 26 and 29 on each side of the river.

IDOT and DCEO worked closely with the two local groups in applying for the designation. IDOT installed directional signing for both Route 66 and the Illinois River Road in 1996.

Once a road is designated as a National Scenic Byway, they receive national recognition on the www.byways.org web site and they are actively promoted as tourist destinations by the Federal Highway Administration.

IDOT Reduces Peotone Airport Footprint by 2,350 Acres

Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin announced recently IDOT has submitted a revised Concept Alternatives Report to the FAA that includes a reduction of the airport footprint by 2,350 acres and allows for the Peotone-Beecher Road to remain open. The submission also includes the final four chapters of the Concept Alternatives Analysis, the formal plan for the airport that includes the technical layout of the proposed airport.

"We've listened to the community and worked with the FAA, Will County and ALNAC to adjust the footprint of our preferred alternative that will release this area south of the Peotone-Beecher Road," Martin said. "We're resubmitting the Concept Alternatives Analysis with some changes recommended by the FAA in our existing chapters, and we're also including the final four technical chapters."

Late this spring IDOT submitted the first eight chapters of the Concept Alternatives Analysis and identified the preferred alternative, based on the proposal created by the Abraham Lincoln National Airport Commission. The technical layout includes a runway of approximately 10,000 feet in length and reduces the ultimate footprint to less than 20,000 acres.

IDOT was able to reduce the footprint by nearly 2,350 acres by removing a portion south of the Peotone-Beecher Road. This reduction is the result of moving the proposed crosswind runway to another location and the airport services area, which includes wastewater treatment, fuel farm, storm water management ponds and environmental mitigation sites.

The Concept Alternative Analysis is the third of five documents used as "building blocks" for the preparation of the Environmental Impact Statement by the FAA. IDOT will prepare and submit to the FAA a Master Plan and Airport Layout Plan based on the preferred alternative.

Following a joint effort between the Department of Defense, including the Military Health System (MHS), the Air Force and multiple government contractors, displaced medical providers from Kessler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss., received immediate access to medical information of TRICARE beneficiaries who were evacuated by Hurricane Katrina through the military electronic health record (EHR). The EHR, which consolidates the medical records of service members, retirees and their families from military hospitals around the world, gave medical personnel immediate access to essential patient information, including consolidated laboratory data and prescription information. The Program Office coordinated with the medical staff at Wilford Hall Medical Center, San Antonio, Texas, to form an emergency response team. Once established, the team made all necessary adjustments to the system to grant evacuated providers access to the EHR, including secure user accounts. "The Department of Defense has been driving towards better ways to document and protect health care information," said TRICARE Management Activity's Army Col. Vic Eilenfield, program manager for the Clinical Information Technology Program Office. "In the aftermath of Katrina, we are seeing firsthand the power electronic health records have for preservation of and access of information," he said.

Illinois Stands Ready To Receive Hurricane Rita Evacuees

As Hurricane Rita moved closer to the Gulf Coast, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Sept. 23rd authorized the Illinois National Guard to send aviation assets and personnel to Texas to help with rescue and response. The Illinois Army National Guard will send three UH-60 Black Hawk helicopters and four air crews (approximately 15 people) to Texas.

It's estimated more than 8,500 displaced victims remain in Illinois, with a large majority of them in the Cook County area, according to numbers reported by the Illinois Dept. of Human Services (DHS). The state has helped more than 4,400 people from the Gulf Coast states with transitional housing, medical care, cash benefits, food stamps, Medicaid and unemployment and veterans' benefits claims.

Plan For Library And Museum's "Front Yard" Revealed

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich and other officials broke ground Sept. 21st on Union Square Park, the fifth and final element of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum (ALPLM) complex. The complex also includes the Presidential Library, Museum, parking garage and Union Station. The park, which will feature an amphitheater, open lawn seating and a garden honoring the late Mrs. Lincoln, will serve as a gathering place for visitors.

Major elements of Union Square Park's design include a large open-lawn amphitheater and a Victorian-style garden honoring Mary Todd Lincoln. Benches, arbors, plantings and sidewalks provide areas for reflection and relaxation. The park will provide green space in downtown Springfield and act as a staging area for events coordinated by the ALPLM.

"As innovative as the museum it complements, the new Union Square Park will provide Springfield with a front yard - an outdoor performance stage - and a handsome oasis in the middle of an increasingly busy downtown," said ALPLM Director Richard Norton Smith. "It will integrate the ALPLM with the surrounding neighborhood, not just physically but programmatically as well. And it will go a long way toward realizing the full cultural, economic and aesthetic promise of this world class institution."

Union Square Park was designed by White & Borgognoni Architects and has a total budget of $2,650,000. BRH Builders of Springfield was awarded the contract for general construction and B&B Electric won the contract for electrical work.

Employees Donated $90,000 To American Red Cross Katrina Fund

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Sept. 27th that State of Illinois employees have donated more than $91,000 to the American Red Cross Katrina Fund. In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, the Governor encouraged state employees to contribute to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund.

On Friday, Sept. 2nd, the State and University Employees Combined Appeal (SECA) Statewide Coordinator Jodi Schrage sent the Governor's appeal via email to State Ambassadors used in the state's annual SECA campaign - asking all state employees to send in one-time gifts for the Red Cross and to attach a form that identified donor, agency and amount given. Less than three weeks after the initial appeal, employees had sent in personal checks totaling some $91,092.31.

SECA is a once-a-year workplace giving campaign, administered by the Department of Central Management Services and chaired by First Lady Patti Blagojevich, where state and university employees can donate to the charity of their choice through payroll deduction or a one-time gift. SECA raised nearly $3 million in 2004 for more than 2,000 charities. The 2005 campaign goal is $3 million and will run until Nov. 11. The more than $91,000 raised for Hurricane Katrina puts the state of Illinois on its way toward reaching that $3 million goal. For more information about SECA and its member charities, log onto the SECA website at www.secaillinois.org.

Donations are still needed to help victims of Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita. Donations to the Disaster Relief Fund can be made by calling 1-800-HELP NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions may also be sent to the local American Red Cross chapter or through a secure internet site at www.redcross.org.

Union Square Park is scheduled to be complete next summer. Meanwhile, renovation of the historic Union Station built in 1898, adjacent to Union Square Park, began in May. Union Station will serve as a gateway to the Lincoln Presidential Museum and Library Complex, as well as other historic sites in and around downtown Springfield. It will be home to a visitors' center, as well as office and meeting space. Interior and exterior renovation of Union Station includes replacing the clay-tile roof, new windows, new plaster, painting, opening up the passenger platforms and replacing the 140-foot clock tower. Recreating the clock tower is the featured aspect of the project. When completed, it will have four working clock faces. The tower was an original element of the station, but was removed in 1946. Approximately 20 percent of the work at Union Station is done and the project is expected to be complete in winter 2007.

The Presidential Museum, which immerses visitors in Lincoln's life and times and showcases the state's world-renowned Lincoln Collection, opened April 19 and has since welcomed nearly 350,000 people. The Presidential Library, the state's top historical and genealogical research facility, opened in October 2004.

Your Disaster Aid Check May Be At The Post Office

Hurricane Katrina disaster recovery officials are reminding evacuees from both Katrina and Hurricane Rita that it's important to notify the U.S. Postal Service of every change of address, so that they can receive vital mail including important documents like disaster assistance checks being mailed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The officials said that staying in touch with FEMA is one of several ways that evacuees can ensure that approved aid reaches them quickly. Evacuees who have registered for assistance with FEMA should report all changes of address by calling 800-621-FEMA (3362), TTY 800-462-7585, or going online to www.fema.gov. FEMA staff at Disaster Recovery Centers can also update disaster contact information.

There are three ways to change one's address - by phone, online, or in person.

Call 800-ASK-USPS (275-8777). Operators are available Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Visit www.usps.com, 24 hours per day and make the change.

Stop by any U.S. Post Office, and fill out a change of address form.

If a change of address notice has not been completed, the USPS will hold mail for 10 days. If mail is not picked up during that time, it will then be viewed as undeliverable. Undelivered disaster assistance checks that are returned to FEMA will be held by FEMA until the evacuee notifies the agency of his or her new address.

Proper identification is always required to safeguard the checks. The unique control number given to each applicant after registration helps ensure the integrity of the process. When possible, FEMA distributes financial aid through direct-deposit (electronic funds transfer) to avoid the problems of trying to reach displaced victims who make a series of temporary moves following a disaster.

File Lawsuit To Recover Unpaid Wages From Sewing Factory Owner

Attorney General Lisa Madigan and Illinois Department of Labor (IDOL) Director Art Ludwig announced that a lawsuit has been filed against the owner of a Chicago sewing factory for failing to pay more than $104,000 in wages to 80 employees for work they completed during a 10-month period.

This lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court on Sept. 21st, charges Jerry Franczak, individually and doing business as Sewing Systems, with violations of the Illinois Minimum Wage Law. Franczak operates the Sewing Systems factory, located in the 4100 block of West Belmont Ave. in Chicago, where employees produce uniforms.

A joint investigation by Madigan's office and the IDOL revealed that Franczak had failed to pay adequate minimum wage and overtime compensation to his workers. According to an IDOL report, between July 1, 2003, and April 30, 2004, Franczak underpaid 80 workers a total of $104,933.91 in wages. Individual workers are owed as much as $5,188.85 in wages.

"Illinois law provides protections for workers to ensure they are being paid adequate wages for their services. It is unacceptable for an employer to underpay his workers. My office, working with the Illinois Department of Labor, will continue to enforce Illinois' minimum wage laws by filing lawsuits when necessary to recover unpaid wages," Madigan said.

"The new minimum wage law championed by Governor Blagojevich benefits nearly half a million workers in this state who rely on fair wages to pay their bills and raise their families. Through the joint effort of the Illinois Department of Labor and the Attorney General's office, we will continue to protect underrepresented workers from violators and will strictly enforce this law," said Illinois Department of Labor Director Art Ludwig.

During the time of Sewing System's underpayments, Illinois' minimum wage increased from the federal rate of $5.15 an hour to $5.50 an hour as of Jan. 1, 2004 for individuals 18 years and older. As of Jan. 1, 2005, the minimum wage increased to $6.50 per hour. Employers also are required to pay time and a half for each hour worked in excess of 40 hours per week.

Lawmakers Act To Stop Proposed Privatized Student Loan Scheme Pushed On Illinois Schools

Lenders working behind the scenes to privatize graduate student loan programs at Illinois public universities now face state and federal action against their widely criticized School as Lender proposal. Lawmakers were pleased that University of Illinois officials announced recently they would defer any decisions on School as Lender pending the outcome of legislation.

State Representatives Jack Franks (D-Woodstock), Jim Sacia (R-Pecatonica) and State Senator Martin Sandoval (D-Chicago) on Sept. 21st unveiled a measure to protect Illinois taxpayers and students by preventing the controversial School as Lender contracts. The United States Senate, in budget reconciliation instructions, called for a moratorium on new universities adopting School as Lender effective Aug. 31.

Under the School as Lender model, lenders exploit taxpayer subsidies and outdated government loopholes to win guaranteed profits. Based on the Office of Management Budget's (OMB) current budget analysis, taxpayers would lose approximately $53 million annually if Illinois public universities which currently provide loans through late Illinois Senator Paul Simon's Direct Lending program switched to the subsidy program which houses School as Lender.

Under School as Lender, a bank agrees to provide money up front to a university which then lends those funds to its students. The school sells the loans back to the lender who uses a federal loophole to charge the government substantially more than what the loans currently cost to provide. Students lose benefits such as an income contingent repayment option and the possibility of loan forgiveness. The program duplicates another source of government loans, the Direct Lending program, which eliminates middlemen and saves taxpayer dollars. Under School as Lender, schools stand to profit from increased student indebtedness, putting students at risk of receiving biased counsel when deciding how much to borrow.

The OMB's current budget analysis shows that School as Lender costs taxpayers $8.91 for every $100 loaned. Under Franks and Sandoval's measure, any School as Lender contract at an Illinois public university would trigger an equivalent reduction in state appropriations so that taxpayers are not hit twice.

Louisiana Rebuilding Funds Potential Waste

The Council for Citizens Against Government Waste (CCAGW) recently criticized the $250 billion Hurricane Katrina Disaster Relief and Economic Recovery Act proposed by members of Louisiana's congressional delegation. As detailed by The Washington Post, the plan costs more than the Louisiana Purchase on an inflation-adjusted basis. The bill includes $40 billion for Army Corps of Engineer projects; many are unrelated to flood protection. CCAGW also called for strict oversight of all contracts awarded for hurricane cleanup and relief.

"The Louisiana delegation plan does far more than helping hurricane victims piece their lives back together," CCAGW President Tom Schatz said. "The federal government is being asked to turn over massive sums to a commission run by Louisiana residents to fund a wish list of projects. The potential for waste and abuse is colossal."

The request for $40 billion is 10 times the Army Corps' annual budget of $4 billion for the entire nation, or 16 times the amount necessary to protect New Orleans from a category 5 hurricane. The bill would create a "Pelican Commission" controlled by Louisiana residents that would prioritize projects. According to the Post, the legislation is based on a "working group dominated by lobbyists for ports, shipping firms, energy companies, and other corporate interests." The bill waives the normal cost-sharing requirements to shift the entire cost to the federal government. The bill suggests funding for potential boondoggles like the New Orleans Industrial Canal and the Port of Iberia, two projects that have flunked the Corps' cost-benefit analysis. The 440-page bill also includes items such as $8 million for alligator farms and $25 million for a sugar-cane research laboratory which has not yet been completed.

"The Louisiana delegation is raising questions about its credibility by including so many unrelated and low-priority projects. That doesn't help Congress decipher victims' real needs. The call for total federal funding is a non-starter given our massive federal deficit and debt," Schatz continued. "Future generations will inevitably have their disasters to pay for; it is irresponsible to borrow more money than necessary to pay for unnecessary pork projects and corporate welfare."

The $62.5 billion so far appropriated by Congress has auditors and investigators scrambling. According to The New York Times, the federal government is spending $263 million per day on the recovery effort. Of the $15.8 billion that has been allocated from a FEMA-managed disaster relief fund, $11.6 billion has gone toward contracts, individual aid, and federal agencies. Investigators are looking into $568 million in contracts for debris removal. Other causes for concern include price disparities, handshake deals made without any documentation, and contracts for politically-connected companies.

"Federal officials must do a much better job of oversight than they have in the past. It is important that no-bid contracts in the short term do not turn into long-term sweetheart deals. Furthermore, agencies need to hold more open competition in advance for products routinely needed in emergencies," Schatz concluded.

Denim Day In Oak Lawn

Oct. 7th won't be just another casual Friday at the Village of Oak Lawn. The denim worn on this date will have significant meaning to the employees electing to join millions of others across the country by participating in Lee National Denim Day. The grassroots event, created to raise funds for breast cancer, will celebrate its 10-year anniversary, and Village of Oak Lawn employees will in turn celebrate their participation.

Each year, Lee Jeans designates one day as Lee National Denim Day and invites people to wear denim to work in exchange for a $5 donation to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation. In celebration of the program's 10-year anniversary, this year's fundraising goal is $10 million, an amount to which the Village of Oak Lawn is working hard to contribute.

One hundred percent of every dollar raised through Lee National Denim Day goes directly to the Komen Foundation to support breast cancer research, education, screening and treatment programs that might otherwise go unfunded.

Seventy percent of donations from Lee National Denim Day help fund the Komen Foundation Award and Research Grant Program, which funds groundbreaking breast cancer research, meritorious awards, and educational and scientific conferences around the world. Fifteen percent of proceeds go toward local education, screening and treatment programs nationwide to fill gaps in communities other programs may overlook. The remaining funds raised on Lee National Denim Day help support educational efforts through the Komen Foundation's award-winning Web site, www.komen.org, which provides the latest breast health and breast cancer information.

Major Disaster Exercise

Sept. 21 at Noon a mock major disaster exercise was held at Miller Meadow Forest Preserve in Maywood.

There were three Packaged Disaster Hospitals that are stored at: one in the north at Lincoln Park Dog & Cat Clinic, one in the center at Pulaski Animal Hospital, 54th and Pulaski and the third stored in the south at the Markham Animal Clinic. Lincoln Park Dog & Cat Clinic is the Lead Veterinary component of the veterinary group. Dr. Susan L. Ferraro, 2665 N. Lincoln Ave. is in charge of the veterinarians. There was also the Cook County Disaster Vehicle (Sprinter) fully equipped with another packaged disaster unit.

Approximately 35 animal control vehicles at the site transported animals after they were triaged and identified to the three sites. Treatment and care by another group of veterinarians and technicians was available and pets were housed and kept until their owners came to retrieve them. Each team for each Packaged Disaster Hospital is staffed by 4-5 veterinarians and technicians at each holding facility, Animal Welfare League, 10305 Southwest Highway, Chicago Ridge, Anti-Cruelty Society, 157 W. Grand Ave., Chicago and the Chicago Animal Care & Control Center, 2741 S. Western Ave., Chicago all have 4-5 veterinarians and technicians continued to give treatment and care.

The Packaged Disaster Hospitals were transported to the disaster site by Cook County Animal Control however a small start up unit from each stored site was carried by the veterinarians assigned to the disaster site.

Many states have disaster plans for animals but supposedly this is, the only County Major Disaster Plan that is fully functional with the people and the medical supplies on hand and ready to be utilized. The plan is folded into the Cook County Plan under Kevin Phillips of the Cook County Sheriff's Department which supplied the communication equipment.

The City of Chicago also supplied their Spay Mobile which is a fully equipped operating room as well.

Cook County and President John H. Stroger Jr. is proud of the group's capability and is to be commended for his vision that allowed them to be prepared in this manner for the animal citizens of Cook County and their owners.

Dr. Susan Ferraro was in charge of the veterinarians. Dr. Gene Mueller was in charge of setting up the treatment centers after triage at Anti-Cruelty, Animal Welfare (Southwest Highway) and City of Chicago's Department of Animal Control. Dr. Dan G. Parmer, D.V.M. was the Director of the Disaster Program and also in charge of all the animal control trucks. There were 35 cities participating in this exercise with their trucks.

Cook County funded the entire Disaster Program Hospitals.

Make Informed Decision When Choosing Medicare Part D Prescription Drug Plan

Medicare-approved companies began marketing their Medicare Part D prescription drug plans on Oct. 1st. Attorney General Lisa Madigan reminds Medicare beneficiaries not to rush into a decision or feel pressured by a sales pitch for a particular prescription drug plan.

Madigan reminds Medicare recipients that while companies were allowed to begin marketing their plans on Oct. 1st, the enrollment period for Medicare Part D prescription drug plans is from Nov. 15th, 2005 to May 15th, 2006. The coverage will be available beginning Jan. 1st, 2006.

Insurance companies are working with Medicare to offer prescription drug plans. In Illinois, 16 companies have been approved by Medicare to offer stand-alone prescription drug plans. Each company will promote only its own plan, so Medicare beneficiaries must compare the plans to determine which one is best for them based on their own personal needs and circumstances.

Madigan warned Medicare beneficiaries not to rush into a decision or feel pressured by a sales pitch for a particular prescription drug plan. There is time to obtain free, trustworthy help to make a decision about a prescription drug plan.

To help determine which prescription drug plan is best for them, Medicare beneficiaries should make not of any current insurance coverage for prescription drugs, and consider whether the new plan would cover the prescription drugs they currently take and whether the beneficiary's pharmacy is included in the plan's network. In Illinois, personalized, local assistance with comparing prescription drug plans is available by calling the Senior Health Insurance Program at 1(800) 548-9034. Beginning Oct. 13th, prescription drug plans can be compared online at www.medicare.gov. The same comparison information will be available by calling Medicare at 1(800) 633-4227. Medicare customer representatives also will send printed, detailed versions of all the plans available in Illinois.

Madigan reminded Medicare beneficiaries to stay alert for fraud during this time. It is important for Medicare recipients to remember:

- Medicare beneficiaries should never give any caller or door-to-door solicitor their Social Security number, bank account numbers or personal financial information.
- No door-to-door solicitations are permitted unless the Medicare recipient has invited the caller to their home.
- Telemarketers must comply with federal and state Do Not Call laws.
- No payment for any Medicare Part D prescription drug plan should be made before Nov. 15th.
- When Medicare Part D prescription drug plan enrollment begins Nov. 15th, Medicare recipients should make sure they enroll with a Medicare-approved prescription drug plan. Consumers may call Medicare's toll-free number at 1(800) 633-4227 to verify if a plan is approved.

Consumers with concerns or information about people misrepresenting themselves or fraudulently promoting the new Medicare Part D prescription drug benefit should report the situation to Madigan's Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1(800) 243-0618.

Flood Damaged Cars

In the wake of major flooding caused by recent hurricanes, Attorney General Lisa Madigan on Sept. 28th warned that Illinois consumers need to watch out for flood-damaged vehicles that soon may be entering the used car market.

Preliminary industry estimates indicate that Hurricane Katrina has damaged more than 500,000 vehicles in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. That damage includes new and used vehicles on dealership lots, as well as cars and trucks owned by individuals and companies.

Madigan said while most automobile dealers are legitimate, there are some unscrupulous businesses and individuals who may try to sell flood-damaged cars without revealing a vehicle's true history. Scam artists may take these flooded cars and put them through a cleaning process that can make it difficult to tell initially that the car has been damaged by water.

A vehicle's title should, but does not always, reflect whether the vehicle has sustained flood damage or has been salvaged. Due to unscrupulous businesses and individuals, a vehicle's title does not always indicate if a vehicle has been damaged by water.

Each state has its own rules and regulations regarding when a vehicle's title must be branded as a "flood" or "salvage" vehicle. In Illinois, for example, a vehicle's title is branded as a "flood" vehicle if the vehicle has been submerged in water to the point that rising water has reached over the door sill and has entered the passenger or trunk compartment. A flood vehicle is considered a "salvage" vehicle under Illinois law if it has sustained water damage so that the cost of repairing the damage, including labor, would be greater than 33.3 percent of the fair market value of the vehicle without the damage.

In Illinois, a person who possesses or acquires a vehicle fitting either the description of a "flood" or "salvage" vehicle is required to apply for a new title with the Secretary of State's office. Despite these rules and regulations in Illinois and other states regarding when a vehicle's title must be branded, many titles do not reveal a vehicle's damage because some scam artists ignore these laws to make a quick buck.

Another reason a vehicle's title may not indicate flood damage is the practice of "title washing." Scam artists return flooded vehicles to the market by moving the vehicle and its title through several states. Some states do not pick up or recognize title brands from other states that would notify a purchaser of prior damage. Therefore, scam artists or unscrupulous dealers are able to obtain a new title that makes the car look "clean."

Consumers can visit Madigan's Web site for additional consumer protection information at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov or call the Consumer Fraud Hotline in Chicago: 1-800-386-5438 and 1-800-964-3013 (TTY); Spanish-language hotline at 1-866-310-8398.

Just Like Humans, Your Pet Needs A Fire Protection Plan

October is National Fire Prevention Month, meaning your furry friends need a game plan when it comes to preventing fires just like you do. And you can "fireproof" your pets in a variety of ways, says Alice Blue-McLendon of Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. She offers some tips to safeguard your pet against fires.

- Make sure appliances are unplugged if not being used. "Many dogs like to chew on electrical cords, and this can either short out and start a fire or injure the dog," says Blue-McLendon. "Rabbits are also fond of chewing on cords. If you have a pet that likes to chew, it's a good idea to store appliances in a safe place when not in use."
- Make sure your pet cannot reach appliances, such as irons or hair dryers when in use. "Cats sometimes like to jump on top of ironing boards and if the iron is on, it can be tipped over and may start a fire," she adds. "Always unplug appliances that produce heat - such as irons or hair dryers - if a pet is in the house."
- Never leave a burning candle unattended in a house with a pet. "This is asking for trouble," Blue-McLendon believes. "Always extinguish a candle if you leave your house with your pet inside."
- Beware of all fireplaces. "Some pets like to get near a fireplace for the warmth, and if the fireplace doors are not closed, it is not uncommon for sparks to harm the pet, even singe the hair or catch the pet's hair on fire," she notes. "You should have some type of barrier between the fire and the pet, just as you would if you had a small child near the fireplace."
- Portable heaters can be deadly. "During cold months, some homeowners use portable heaters in a room to help keep it warm. If tipped over, these can most definitely start a fire," says Blue-McLendon.
- Watch those barbecue grills. "When finished grilling food outside, people will often leave the grill unattended with the coals still very hot, capable of starting a fire quickly. Either make sure that pets cannot get near the grill or make sure all coals have cooled down," she explains.

- It's a myth that animals don't like fire. "You cannot assume animals don't like fire," Blue-McLendon adds. "In fact, many animals like the warmth, and many domesticated animals such as dogs and cats like to be near heat, such as a fireplace. They are attracted to the flickering light, just as a small child might be."

If your pet does get burned, she recommends putting cool water on the burned area quickly followed by cold compresses until veterinary help is obtained. If necessary, a topical cream that is also vera-based could also be applied to minor burns, but prompt treatment by a veterinarian is usually necessary, she says.

"In general, use the same guidelines for your pets around fire that you would use for small children," Blue-McLendon explains. "You always want to be careful if your kids could face any chance of getting burned, and the same is true for your pets. A lot of common sense goes a long way."

Family Violence Conference

Cook County Chief Judge Timothy C. Evans joined Fifth Municipal District Presiding Judge Anthony S. Montelione and Sixth Municipal District Presiding Judge Ronald C. Riley to announce the hosting of the Sixth Annual Family Violence Conference on Monday, Oct. 17, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Doubletree Hotel-Alsip, 5000 W. 127th St. Sponsored by the Fifth and Sixth Municipal District's Family Violence Coordinating Council, the free conference is offered to agencies and individuals in south and southwestern suburban Cook County who work with victims of family violence. The conference is also open to the public.

Leslie Brown of Leslie's Place in Chicago, is the conference keynote speaker. A former battered woman, Brown served time at Dwight Correctional Center until former Governor Jim Thompson granted her clemency in 1988. She is the founder of Support Advocated for Women (SAW), an aftercare program for female offenders which also provides free transportation for children to visit their mothers who are incarcerated.

The conference will also feature an original play production that is based on actual accounts of victims and interviews with people who try to stop the horror of domestic violence. The play is part of the conference's morning presentation and will be discussed during the course of the conference.

The theme of the Sixth Annual Family Violence Conference is Women In The System: Creating a Coordinated Community Response. Topics to be covered in conference workshops are the following: Stalking and Harassment: Dynamic Laws and Investigations; Dynamics of Trauma: A Victim-Centered Perspective; Recognizing and Managing the Effects of Vicarious Trauma; Domestic Violence Women's Perpetrator Groups; and Meanings, Effects and Context of Violence for Teen Girls in Dating Relationships.

Registration is now open. Note on-site registration will not be available. Continuing education credits through Oakton Community College and South Suburban Family Shelter are available.

For more information, contact Jean Tobin, Fifth Municipal District FVCC coordinator, at (708) 974-6822.

Approve Miers Nomination

Focus on the Family Action Chairman James C. Dobson, Ph.D., issued the following statement recently regarding President Bush's nomination of Harriet Miers to replace Justice Sandra Day O'Connor on the United States Supreme Court:

"We welcome the president's nomination of Harriet Miers to the U.S. Supreme Court. He pledged emphatically during his campaign to appoint judges who will interpret the law rather than create it. He also promised to select competent judges who will 'not use the bench to write social policy.' To this point, President Bush's appointments to the federal bench appear to have been remarkably consistent with that stated philosophy. Based on the information known generally about Harriet Miers, and President Bush's personal knowledge of her, we believe that she will not prove to be a lone exception.

"On the other hand, one cannot know absolutely about matters of integrity and philosophy until a jurist is given the tremendous power and influence of their position. As Lord Acton said: 'Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely.' Sadly, that seems to have happened to Justices Souter and Kennedy. All we can say now is that Harriet Miers appears to be an outstanding nominee for the Supreme Court.

"We look forward to learning more about her at the confirmation hearings."

Durbins Statement

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently made the following statement regarding President Bush's nomination of Harriet Miers to the U.S. Supreme Court:

"Harriet Miers has had an impressive career as an attorney. She has helped break new ground for women attorneys in Texas."

"The Senate will now begin to see if she is worthy of filling Sandra Day O'Connor's seat on the Supreme Court."

"Because Ms. Miers has not taken public positions on many important legal and constitutional issues, the Senate confirmation hearings will be particularly important."

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

As is normally the case this time of year the Governor's office inundates our editorial department with a variety of newsworthy stories. Here are a few items that we feel you should know. Initially, we've received word that Governor Blagojevich has answered a request from Louisiana for additional National Guard forces to assist in the ongoing hurricane relief effort. He has authorized another 350 Illinois National Guard soldiers to travel to Louisiana to help provide security and public order in the greater New Orleans area.

The soldiers are from Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 202nd Air Defense Artillery of Kewanee and units of 2nd Battalion, 122nd Field Artillery of Chicago. They will be known in New Orleans and surrounding communities as the Illinois Army National Guard Soldiers of Task Force 2-122.

The governor's office also announced that the dropout rate for Illinois students the past year showed the greatest one-year improvement since 1994, the first year the State began tracking this information. As the dropout rate fell to an all-time low of 4.0 percent, the graduation rate increased to 87.4 percent, the highest rate in the State's history. These improvements follow the implementation of a new Illinois law increasing the dropout age in Illinois from 16 to 17. The law took effect on Jan. 1, 2005.

For comparison the 2000 U.S. Census found more than 200,000 people in Illinois between the ages of 16 and 24, dropped out of high school. The report also found in Illinois, one out of every two Latinos and one out of every five African-Americans in the 16 to 24 age-range is a high school dropout. In the 2001-2002 school year, 17,400 students - more than 17 percent - dropped out of Chicago Public Schools.

The Manhattan Institute's November 2002 study found that, while Illinois' graduation rate of 77 percent was higher than the national average of 69 percent, the state's African-American and Latino students had only a 57 percent graduation rate.

The new law which raised the minimum dropout age from 16 years old to 17 years old - seems to be giving parents, schools and students an additional year and additional opportunities to encourage students to utilize the classroom setting. Let's hope these percentages continue to improve.

On the political front, Illinois state Democratic Party leaders have announced that their 2006 election slate will be comprised of all of its present Democratic office holders plus a newcomer for the present Republican state treasurer's office.

Governor Rod Blagojevich, Lt. Governor Pat Quinn, Attorney General Lisa Madigan, Secretary of State Jesse White and Comptroller Dan Hynes will seek re-election statewide. Joining them will be Knox County State's Attorney Paul Mangieri, a downstate county prosecutor, who will attempt to wrestle the state treasurer's office away from present Republican Judy Baar Topinka.

State Republican leaders have their work cut out for them as former Illinois Governor Jim Edgar announced last Friday (9/30) that "after a lot of thought, a lot of anguish, we have decided I will not be a candidate for governor." The popular former governor, Edgar had been the choice of many movers & shakers in the G.O.P. who felt he gave the state ticket its best chance to unseat Democratic Gov. Rod Blagojevich. A variety of announced contenders for the Republican nomination will now try to earn the public's trust and nomination. They include State Senator Steve Rauschenberger of Elgin; businessman Ronald Gidwitz; businessman James Oberweis; and State Senator Bill Brady of Bloomington. Other potential candidates include: DuPage County States Attorney Joseph Birkett; former State Senator Patrick O'Malley of Palos Park; and present State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka, who is being pressed by Gov. Edgar to head the state ticket. The GOP nomination for governor will be decided in the March 21st primary election.

Cook County Board President John Stroger made it official Friday (9/30) when he announced that he will seek a fourth term as the county's chief executive in 2006. President Stroger has been an elected member of the County Board since 1970 and has served as president since 1994. Stroger had been rumored to seek re-election but continually suggested to reporters the past few months he wished to speak with Democratic Party leaders before finalizing his decision.

For the first time in eight years, Stroger is expected to be challenged. At present, County Commissioners Mike Quigley and Forrest Claypool have both indicated that they will oppose President Stroger in the Democratic primary on March 21st. We will keep you posted on any further development or possible candidates.

Cook County property tax bills should be in our mail boxes any day now. For those who want to know sooner, Treasurer Maria Pappas has posted the amounts due on her Web site. Illinois Cares Rx Caravan

Because of changes in the federal Medicare prescription drug program, in just more than a month seniors across the state will have to choose from nearly 20 different prescription drug plans. But, the choice for Illinois seniors and persons with disabilities will be clear. Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich today announced that the State of Illinois is partnering with two prescription drug plans, UnitedHealth Group and PacifiCare, to coordinate the new Illinois Cares Rx prescription drug program. Illinois Cares Rx will fill in the gaps created by the new Medicare Part D program. The Governor also announced the second wave of outreach events for his Illinois Cares Rx Caravan to inform seniors and persons with disabilities about upcoming changes to Medicare and updates to the state prescription drug program.

This month the federal government announced the 17 Medicare Prescription Drug Plans that will compete for enrollees in Illinois, many offering multiple plans. The marketing for these plans is set to begin in October. In order to ensure that the combined Illinois Cares Rx and Medicare benefits were administered in a manner that required no extra steps for beneficiaries and pharmacies, the Department of Healthcare and Family (HFS) invited companies sponsoring the Medicare drug benefit to submit proposals for seamlessly coordinating the two benefits. UnitedHealth Group and PacifiCare both submitted proposals that met the needs of HFS and Illinois seniors.

The Governor also announced that the Illinois Cares Rx Caravan would continue to travel statewide making an additional 130 stops to inform seniors and persons with disabilities about upcoming changes to Medicare and updates to the state prescription drug programs. A wide variety of organizations, elected officials, state agencies, areas agencies on aging, senior centers and municipalities will participate in the events to offer area residents one-on-one assistance to educate them about what the plans have to offer and clear up any concerns or confusion about the upcoming changes to Medicare.

The nearly 250,000 SeniorCare and Circuit Breaker beneficiaries in Illinois will be automatically enrolled in Illinois Cares Rx and randomly assigned to one of the two coordinating companies' Medicare plans with the option to switch plans before January. Advocates for seniors and many healthcare professionals feared that the large number of plans would cause widespread confusion among seniors. By narrowing it down to two comprehensive plans and automatically assigning seniors to them, HFS hopes to reassure beneficiaries that with Illinois Cares Rx they will see no disruption in coverage come January. The Governor's goal is to provide a safety net for seniors and persons with disabilities when their out-of-pocket costs for prescription drugs go up under the federal program.

The federal Medicare Modernization Act helps seniors by paying 75 percent of prescription drug costs up to $2,250 after a $250 deductible with an average $32 per month premium. Beneficiaries are responsible for all of their costs between $2,250 and $5,100, with the plan paying 95 percent of costs beyond that top threshold. The gap where a beneficiary has to pay all the drug costs between $2,250 and $5,100 is commonly referred to as the "donut hole."

The new "wrap around coverage" provided to Illinois seniors and persons with disabilities through Illinois Cares Rx will help cover the increased costs of the Medicare program, including premium costs, coinsurance, coverage during the "donut," and the deductible.

For example, a senior whose income is around $19,900 for a family of two (160 percent of the federal poverty level) who has annual drug costs of $5,100 would have to spend over $4,000 in out of pocket costs if the new Illinois program did not exist, but less than $1,000 with the new Illinois program. A senior who has $1,800 worth of drug spending would spend $120 on average in the new Illinois program but over $1,000 in Medicare if they did not receive assistance.

Illinois Cares Rx will cover those who were previously enrolled in either the SeniorCare drug program or the Circuit Breaker pharmaceutical assistance program. Through this program, Gov. Blagojevich is ensuring that both groups will receive similar coverage to what they previously received. In addition, those who are not eligible for Medicare will have their current SeniorCare or Circuit Breaker pharmaceutical benefits maintained in the Illinois Cares Rx program. The Illinois Cares Rx program will be administered by HFS and the Illinois Department on Aging.

As many as one-quarter of the 20.3 million seniors in the United States who will be using the federal benefits without low-income assistance are expected to have drug costs high enough to bump them into that coverage gap. Since taking office, Gov. Blagojevich has been a proven leader when it comes to providing access to quality health care for Illinois families from young children to senior citizens, in stark contrast to methods taken by several other states such as Michigan and North Carolina. Both states are eliminating their state prescription drug programs and transferring people completely to the Medicare drug program, which will significantly increase their out-of-pocket expenses.

The Illinois Cares Rx program is part of Gov. Blagojevich's long standing effort to make sure that more people get more health care and better benefits, protect coverage for those who have health care, and help hospitals, doctors and nurses provide better health care. Under the Blagojevich administration, Illinoisans benefit from a wide array of programs designed to assist them with the high cost of prescription drugs: SeniorCare, Circuit Breaker (soon to be Illinois Cares Rx), the Rx Buying Club and the I-SaveRx drug importation program.

Illinois seniors and persons with disabilities who want to find out more about the Illinois Cares Rx program law should call the Department on Aging Help Line at 1-800-252-8966 or the Senior Health Insurance Program at 1-800-548-9034.

Jewish Community Hosts Drive For Toiletries

With an eye to the longer-term needs of hurricane survivors from the Gulf States, the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago is embarking upon a drive for personal hygiene products.

Held in partnership with Lutheran Social Services of Illinois (LSSI), the drive is focused on a Thanksgiving delivery of food and toiletries for people who were evacuated from their homes. LSSI is collecting nonperishable food, while the Jewish Federation is collecting toiletries.

Community members are asked to donate the following new and unopened toiletries to the lobby of the Jewish Federation building, One S. Franklin St. in Chicago: toothbrushes, toothpaste, dental floss, mouthwash (plastic bottles only); tampons and sanitary napkins; razors, disposable razors, shaving cream; deodorant, soap and moisturizer; baby and adult size diapers and wipes; shampoo, conditioner and moisturizer (especially ethnic brands, such as Optimum, Dark and Lovely, Organic Root Stimulator, and Luster's Pink Lotion).

The Federation also is continuing to accept monetary donations to help hurricane survivors. To date, the Jewish Federation's Katrina Relief Fund has received contributions from more than 4,000 community members totaling some $1.5 million.

The Federation established the fund on Aug. 30th in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, and now will extend the fund to benefit survivors of Hurricane Rita as well. The Federation is passing on 100% of all funds received to agencies providing human services to both Jewish and non-Jewish residents of the areas affected by the hurricane.

The Federation is collecting funds in conjunction with a national effort coordinated by the United Jewish Communities (UJC). The UJC is working with local Jewish federations in the affected regions to help coordinate relief efforts. Here in Chicago, the Federation's affiliate agencies also are assuming a role in the emergency assistance efforts.

Individuals wishing to make donations to help the hurricane victims should make checks payable to Jewish Federation Katrina Relief and send them to: Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund, c/o Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago, One South Franklin Street, Room 625, Chicago, IL 60606.

MIGRATORY BIRD SEASON (DUCKS, GEESE AND DOVES) OPEN, YOU MUST BE "HIP." Illinois hunters are reminded of the requirement to register with the Harvest Information Program (HIP) before hunting. HIP is the method by which state wildlife agencies including IDNR are developing more reliable estimates of the number of all migratory birds. In Illinois, those who hunt ducks, coots, geese, brant, doves, woodcock, rails and snipe are required to participate in HIP.

Hunters may register online through the IDNR web site or by going to www.wetland.net. Hunters may also call 1(800) WETLAND (1-800-938-5263) to register with HIP. Word is out that the IDNR and Federal Wardens will be checking waterfowl hunters for compliance with HIP. All it takes to comply is a phone call and writing down the number given to you in the place provided for your HIP number in the designated place on your hunting license.

POTENTIAL LINE CLASS RECORD WALL-EYE: Scott Ruiter of Muskegon, Michigan, a member of the Michigan Anglers Association, has a walleye record pending with the IGFA. He landed his fish through the ice on Muskegon Lake this past winter using 6-lb. Test line. The fish weighed 15 lbs. 4 oz.

Using live minnows, Ruiter landed a dozen perch on his next hook-set he thought he had snagged a log. The log turned out to be the 15 lb. 4 oz. walleye, which took 30 minutes to land, and is now a pending record on 6-lb. Line class.

MICHIGAN SPORTSMEN IN ANTIS-CROSSHAIRS: Animal rights advocates have turned in a sufficient number of signatures to place Michigan's mourning dove hunt on the 2006 ballot.

On June 2nd, the Michigan Board of State Canvassers certified more than 275,000 signatures to ban dove hunting gathered by the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) and its 'paid' signature gatherers. Anti's needed only 225,000 valid signatures to place a question before Michigan voters in November.

The HSUS's new legislative arm, HSUS Fund for Animals, announced a campaign last year to raise $100,000 to put the future of Michigan's dove hunt on the 2006 ballot. In previous anti-hunting campaigns, HSUS used paid signature gatherers to qualify issues for the ballot. The anti's appeared to have employed the same tactic in Michigan. This action contradicts the anti's claim that the Michigan anti-dove campaign is a locally driven grassroots effort. (Source: The U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance)

THINGS TO KNOW BEFORE YOU NEED A TOW: Prudent skippers can prepare for breakdowns, groundings or accidentally running out of fuel long before the need for on-water towing assistance arises. Boat U.S. Towing Services offer these tips:

- * Carry correct type of anchor with enough line to keep you safely in one spot while you try to correct the problem or wait until help arrives.

- * A VHF marine radio is the best way to call for help. While a cell phone is a good backup - especially if your towing service has a 24-hour dispatch service - other vessels won't hear your call for help, and you may be out of range. Hail your towing service over VHF channel 16 or ask the U.S. Coast Guard to help you contact them.

- * Give the tow service position by chart or GPS coordinates, nearby navigation aids or local landmarks. Describe situation clearly, giving the nature of the problem, boat name, size, distinguishing features, number of persons on board and other useful information. If an emergency, contact the Coast Guard immediately.

- * When the towing vessel gets underway, the captain will contact you. Once you request assistance, you're committed to a verbal contract. If you get going again on your own, advise the tow captain immediately or you may have to pay for the cancelled tow.

ROGUES FACE STIFF CHARGES OVER DEER AND TURKEY POACHING: A two-year investigation proved unlucky for 13 men accused of illegally killing deer and wild turkeys in Wisconsin. The DNR issued a total of 106 citations. The investigation was launched due to involved citizens who reported hearing gunshots at night.

The majority of citations involve shooting deer at night with the aid of a spotlight, hunting deer during the closed season, road hunting, and numerous safety violations including loaded and uncased guns in a vehicle and hunting within 50 feet of the road.

Turkey-related charges include hunting turkeys without a valid permit, hunting turkeys with a rifle, road hunting, discharging a firearm from a vehicle, and loaded and uncased guns in a vehicle.

Together, the 106 citations carry a total of $36,416 in fines and a possible 41 years revocation of hunting privileges.

St. Rita's Donahue Selected As 2006 U.S. Army All-American

Recognized as one of the top football players in the nation, St. Rita Senior Ryan Donahue of Evergreen Park has been named a 2006 US Army All-American. Donahue will join a stand-out list of athletes playing in the US Army All-American Bowl on Saturday, Jan. 7, at the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas. The classic East vs. West match-up will be played at 12 p.m. (CST) and will feature the top 78 prep football student-athletes in the country.

Donahue is a standout punter at Saint Rita High School and was one of 400 players nominated nationally and one of 78 selected to participate by the U.S. Army All-American Bowl Selection Committee consisting of Scout.com, the web's largest independent sports network and Tom Lemming, one of the nation's most respected recruiting experts.

As a U.S. Army All-American, Donahue is being considered for the PARADE All-America High School Player of the Year honoring the nation's best prep football player at the 2006 U.S. Army All-American Awards Dinner on Jan. 6 in San Antonio. This honor is high school football's equivalent to the Heisman Trophy.

Stock Rainbow Trout At Three District Lakes

The Forest Preserve District of Cook County is pleased to announce that rainbow trout will once again be stocked into Axehead and Belleau Lakes. Additionally, for the first time in District history, an additional 1,000 pounds will be stocked into Horsetail Lake located in the Palos area. The trout being stocked are an average of one-half pound and considered to be at a size proper for catching.

A total of 3,400 pounds will be stocked at the three sites. The breakdown is as follows:

- * Axehead: 1,350 pounds.
- * Belleau: 1,050 pounds.
- * Horsetail: 1,000 pounds.

All three lakes will be closed to all fishing on Monday, Oct. 10th and will reopen at dawn on Saturday, Oct. 15th. Closing the lakes will allow the trout to disperse prior to reopening. There is a five trout per day creel limit with no size restrictions. No more than two lines per person with no more than two hooks per line may be used. A valid Illinois fishing license with an Illinois Inland Trout Stamp is required by anglers 16 years of age or older. An Illinois fishing license is not required for disabled persons with a State of Illinois disabled identification card showing a class 2 or 2A disability, a Veterans Disability Card or active military personnel.

For further information, contact the Forest Preserve District of Cook County's Dept. of Resource Management at (708) 771-1335.

Sports Valve

By Brad Allen

A valve is a device used to control the flow of things. Sports Valve is designed to cutoff the flow of life's trials and tribulations if only for a little while - as we twist open the valve labeled, "World of Sports." Here, we are released from our daily pressures.

It is the entrance into our little fantasy world where we can scream and shout and develop love-hate relationships with strangers who wear our team's colors and whose assignment is to reward our emotional investment in them by triumphing over utterly humiliated rivals.

It's a place where we develop uncanny allegiances to these icons because they happen to represent where we are from even though they themselves aren't from here.

No, it doesn't necessarily make any sense. And God knows, when one of our players leaves and puts on another team's uniform, our loyalty terminates in a nanosecond. Jerry Seinfeld put it best when he said, "We root for laundry."

But the point is that we get to blow off steam as we hope for vicarious glory and rant and rave over things that don't really matter. Come the next morning, once back to reality on the other side of the valve, we are more relaxed and better able to cope with the flow of life's trials and tribulations again. We are none the worse for wear from the day before because nothing overly bad ever really happens in the sports valve. Well, maybe just little things.

Like when our football team's coach handicaps his rookie quarterback by masterminding a game plan the oversimplification of which is matched only by its predictability. That's exactly what I'm talking about - it's the perfect opportunity for us to release steam by shouting out something like, "Why don't you just wrap up your young QB in a pretty red apron and drop him in the middle of a ring full of angry charging bulls, for God sake!"

Anyway, my column will always lead off with the professional sports section of the valve where blowing off steam is what it's all about.

Amateur Sports Valve

Then we'll move onto amateur sports where we honor the accomplishments of local college and high school athletes. Given that they play more for the love of the game I treat them in a much warmer and fuzzier manner. In fact, this is the portion of the sports valve where we sort of decompress and detoxify and celebrate sports in a purer, more innocent context.

It is such a pure and honest form of athletics that I'll go so far as to say that there is usually more passion and living-of-life packed into two or three short hours of an amateur sporting event than there is in a month of ordinary living. In my twelve years of coaching, win or lose, that was always true.

In any event, I will need your help for the amateur sports valve! If you know of any outstanding sporting feats or sports-related human interest stories, I urge you to write or type something out and submit it to me via Fax at (708) 385-7811, attention Brad Allen, Sport Valve. Make certain it is either a) Statistically eyebrow-raising, i.e. three home runs in a game, five touchdown passes, a hole-in-one, a long winning streak, etc; b) A touching story where an athlete has had to overcome some sort of adversity or handicap in order to compete; or c) Extremely funny. For instance, many years ago, I delivered a pitch in a high school game to a hitter that weighed over 300 lbs. He swung! Everybody heard the resounding crack of the bat, but it was such an overcast early Spring type of day that nobody saw where the ball went, including me! After a few seconds, I felt a numbness in my left armpit. When I glanced down at it, I noticed that there was a baseball stuck there.

Tip of The Week

Finally, before departing the sports valve each week, I will leave you with a sports tip like the one below. Having coached and trained young athletes, I have a pretty good supply of tips. A lot of them, you probably never heard before. Coaches and ex-athletes, you are also welcome to fax in some of your old secrets as well.

Have you ever seen a kid swing so late that he actually hit the ball - as the catcher was throwing it back to the pitcher?

Well, if you know anyone that has a problem with bat speed, here is the tip of the week.

When you stride, pay attention to how your front foot is landing! If it lands with toes pointing too much toward foul territory and not enough toward fair territory, bad things will happen.

Your foot will restrict your ankle from turning. Your ankle will restrict your knee from turning. Your knee will restrict your hip from turning. Your hip will restrict your torso from turning, thereby robbing you of the rotary force needed to swing fast and fluently.

So, if you have a problem getting around on fastballs, make sure you land on the ball of your foot with your front-foot toes pointed out toward the field. Your swing will gain speed and power and, suddenly, that aspirin-sized fastball will start looking more like a big, slow beach ball. Now you know the trick! Baseball is probably the most notorious sport when it comes to cleverness and tricks triumphing over athleticism.

Free Independent Schools Fair

The Independent Schools Fair, an event to introduce families to the programs of top schools on the South Side and elsewhere in the Chicago area, will be Sunday, Oct. 23, from noon to 3 p.m. at the Chicago Historical Society Museum, Clark St. and North Ave.

The Independent Schools Fair is free and open to the public. Admissions representatives will be available to discuss opportunities at the schools. Families visiting the Fair will also be able to visit the museum for free. There will be special entertainment for children. The Fair, which is being held for the 15th year, has become a popular event for families looking for excellent schools for their children.

"This Fair is a wonderful opportunity for families to become acquainted with individual independent schools, to learn more about the rich variety of programs they offer," said Carol Parham, Admissions Director of Chicago's Ancona School and coordinator of the Fair.

"Some independent schools use traditional, classical curricula, some are specialized for gifted students or those interested in the arts, and others offer nontraditional programs. By visiting with individual admissions directors, parents can identify the schools that are best for their children," she added.

These South Side schools will be represented at the Fair: Ancona School,

$1 Per Person

Only $1 per person is being asked of Oak Lawn residents for Hurricane Katrina relief. Village President David Heilmann reported that if every resident would give just $1, the village could raise as much as $57,000.

Heilmann also put the call out to village business to make donations and, perhaps, set up matching grants. Any donations collected will go to the American Red Cross.

Checks may be made payable to the Village of Oak Lawn. They can either be mailed or dropped off at Village Hall, 9446 Raymond Ave. or the Oak Lawn Bank at 5665 W. 95th St.

Letter To The Editor

Letter to Taxpayers:

Homeowners in south suburban Cook County will soon be receiving their second half 2004 real estate tax bills. That tax bill will reflect the increase in your taxes from 2003. Double check your bill to ensure you are receiving the exemptions to which you are entitled. If your assessment was increased more than seven percent last year, then the exemption you are entitled to under the new seven percent tax cap should be reflected in an increase in your homeowners exemption over and above the $5,000 you are automatically entitled to by state statute. Seniors should also make sure they are receiving the $3,000 exemption they are entitled to. If either exemption is not reflected on your tax bill you should immediately contact the Cook County Assessors office at (312) 443-7500 or (312) 603-5300 to tell them about the mistake. They will then help you get a new tax bill that takes your exemptions into account. You can also request help from your local township Assessor's office.

South suburban property owners will also soon receive or have recently received their triennial notice of reassessment which will affect tax bills they receive in 2006. Now is the time to appeal your assessment at the Cook County Board of Review. Contact my office at (312) 603-3644 to request a complaint form. We're here to help.

Sincerely,

s/s Maureen Murphy

Commissioner, Cook County Board of Review

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

FRUITS, VEGETABLES MAY PROTECT AGAINST LUNG CANCER

According to a report released several weeks ago from the University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, a diet rich in fruits and vegetables appears to provide protection against lung cancer. The agents believed responsible are plant-derived compounds known as phytoestrogens - found in soy, grains, carrots, spinach, and broccoli to name a few.

The compounds have demonstrated a protective effect against some solid tumors in the past, but until now little research focused on dietary intake and lung cancer. "Our main findings were that patients with lung cancer tended to consume lower amounts of phytoestrogens than the healthy people without the disease," the report revealed.

The apparent benefits were discovered in both people who never smoked and those who were still smoking—but it was less evident in people who had quit smoking, for reasons that weren't clear. According to US government statistics, smokers are 20 to 30 times more likely than nonsmokers to contract lung cancer, one of the deadliest types of cancer.

The findings were based on a look at over 1600 lung cancer patients and over 1700 matched healthy people with similar backgrounds who were interviewed 1995 through October 2003. The study was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, September 2005.

First Step To Good Health

The American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on School Health (AAPCOSH) considers school the second most important environment for child development. Thus, the availability of soft drinks at all school levels is believed to have a great impact on child health. In an editorial in the Journal of Pediatrics, Robert Murray, Director of the Borden Center for Nutrition and Wellness at the Ohio State University Children's Hospital contends that children who choose soft drinks in place of milk take in less protein, calcium, zinc, vitamins A and C. In addition, he notes research that shows that for each soft drink consumed daily, a child's risk of obesity increases by 60 percent. Although experts agree that obesity is a multi-factorial problem, curbing the availability of soft drinks in schools is a simple change to make to improve the health of students everywhere. As children return to school, parents and community health professionals are encouraged to work with school officials to make healthy beverages, like water and low fat milk, more available for students.

Traffic Fines Give Illinois Trauma Centers A Boost To Help Critically Injured

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Sept. 30th that by the end of the month, Illinois trauma centers will receive almost $5 million in new funding to help care for the critically injured. The money from the Illinois Dept. of Public Health's (IDPH) share of the Trauma Center Fund builds on funding trauma centers already received from the Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS). In fiscal year 2005, HFS distributed a total of $9.1 million to trauma centers. The funds for the trauma centers are generated by an additional $5 fee that is imposed on traffic fines of $55 or higher and a $100 surcharge that is imposed on convictions or orders of supervision for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

IDPH and HFS distributed $14 million in total to more than one hundred trauma centers around the state. The money generated by traffic fines, convictions and orders is deposited into the Trauma Center Fund and each Department awards the trauma centers in different ways. DPH awards half of the receipts to hospital trauma centers in the geographic region where the traffic violation occurred. The amount each hospital receives from the regional share is based on the total number of trauma patients for whom the hospital provides care. HFS, however, distributes the funding to trauma centers based on the number of trauma patients cared for by the hospital who are covered by Medicaid. HFS also receives federal Medicaid matching funds.

To be eligible for the funds, a hospital must be designated a Level I or Level II trauma center by the DPH. A Level I trauma center has trauma surgeons in-house 24 hours a day and offers other surgical specialties. A Level II trauma center has trauma surgeons available to respond to the hospital within 30 minutes and other surgical specialties are made available or by transfer agreements with other facilities.

Since fiscal year 1994, the DPH has distributed approximately $42.7 million and HFS has distributed approximately $84.2 million to the state's trauma centers from the Trauma Center Fund.

Local recipients of DPH funds are: Children's Memorial Hospital, Chicago, $19,322.18; Christ Hospital, Oak Lawn, $279,652.13; Cook County Hospital, Chicago, $162,581.63; Cook County Hospital-Pediatric, Chicago, $22,231.57; Illinois Masonic Medical Center, Chicago, $96,407.01; Mt. Sinai Hospital Medical Center, Chicago, $137,425.38; Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Chicago, $81,616.40; St. James Hospital & Health Center, Olympia Fields, $84,091.11; University of Chicago Hospital, Chicago, $26,675.11.

Receiving HFS funds are: Children's Hospital of Illinois, $154,253.68; Children's Memorial Hospital, $315,415.39; Christ Hospital & Medical Center, $616,738.37; Foster G. McGaw of Loyola University, $193,185.03; Good Samaritan Hospital, Downers Grove, $90,207.06; Hope Children's Hospital, $402,312.63; J.H. Stroger Hospital of Cook County, $791,463.91; MacNeal Memorial Hospital Assn., $83,701.50; Mt. Sinai Hospital Medical Center, $753,980.24; Northwestern Memorial Hospital, $239,012.39; University of Chicago Children's Hospital, $192,782.56; University of Chicago Hospital, $74,402.67.

Northwestern Memorial Participates In Global Trial To Test Effectiveness Of Heat Therapy On Cervical Cancer

Doctors at Northwestern Memorial Hospital and the Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center of Northwestern University are testing the effectiveness of an investigational device that delivers hyperthermia, or heat therapy, to persons with locally advanced cervical cancer. Hyperthermia is a non-invasive method of increasing tumor temperature to make radiation therapy and/or chemotherapy more effective in destroying cancer cells. The American Cancer Society estimates that in 2005 about 10,370 cases of advanced cervical cancer will be diagnosed in the United States.

The research study is a two-arm phase III prospective randomized trial. Participants with invasive cervical cancer will receive either treatment with chemotherapy and radiation or treatment with chemotherapy, radiation and hyperthermia. Additional clinical trial sites are located in Holland, Norway, Italy, Germany, and elsewhere in the United States.

"Various radiation and chemotherapy treatments have made a real impact in the fight against cervical cancer. Just as encouraging is prior published research, conducted over the past several years, which has demonstrated that combining existing radiation and chemotherapy programs with hyperthermia may further increase response rates and overall survival," said Dr. William Small, Jr., radiation oncologist, Northwestern Memorial Hospital and the Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center; assistant professor of Radiation Oncology, Northwestern University's Feinberg School of Medicine; and the principal investigator on the arm of the study being conducted at Northwestern. "Hyperthermia is a non-invasive regimen that has possible serious side effects, but is generally well-tolerated."

Hyperthermia sensitizes tumor cells to the effects of radiation and chemotherapy, offering improved outcomes in selected patients, compared with results in those being treated with radiation and/or chemotherapy without hyperthermia.

Various hyperthermia systems have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat superficial tumors, or those within 3 centimeters of the skin (such as breast cancer). The benefits of "deep" hyperthermia as an anti-cancer modality have been documented by published research. An important study published in the April 1st, 2000 issue of The Lancet demonstrated that the addition of hyperthermia to standard radiation treatment significantly increased response rates for a number of advanced tumors of the cervix, bladder and rectum. In that study, the most significant findings pertained to cervical cancer, as 83 percent of participants experienced a complete response with hyperthermia plus radiation, compared to 57 percent with radiation alone. Three-year overall survival was 51 percent in the group receiving hyperthermia and radiation, compared to 27 percent in the group receiving radiation alone.

Participants must be at least 18 years of age and have histologically confirmed carcinoma of the cervix. Those interested in participating in this clinical trial should call (312) 926-8400 for more information.

Food Allergy Education

First Lady Patti Blagojevich on Sept. 29th announced that Illinois schools will now be better equipped to prevent potentially life-threatening food allergy reactions in children. The First Lady launched a new awareness campaign targeted at educating school personnel and students on the dangers of food allergies. Working with The Food Allergy & Anaphylaxis Network (FAAN), the state will offer food allergy educational kits to the approximately 5,000 K-12 schools and licensed child-care centers in Illinois. The kits will help schools keep kids with food allergies safe from reactions. Illinois becomes the first state in the nation to offer a statewide food allergy educational program.

According to FAAN, peanut allergy in children has doubled in the past five years, and the estimated number of Americans with food allergy has increased from 6 million to approximately 11 million. With reports of increased food allergy issues, the First Lady urged parents and school personnel to become better educated on how to identify and avoid the potentially life-threatening effects of food allergies.

According to FAAN, more than 11 million Americans have food allergies and approximately three million children under the age of 18 years old, or 1-in-25 American children, have a food allergy. There is no cure for food allergies, so individuals must be mindful and avoid foods that pose a health risk. Although an individual can be allergic to any type of food, eight foods account for 90 percent of all food-allergic reactions: milk, eggs, peanuts, tree nuts (walnut, cashew, etc.), fish, shellfish, soy and wheat.

The kits distributed to schools will include "The School Food Allergy Program," a multi-media training guide created by FAAN which will help school personnel develop a comprehensive plan specifically geared towards successful management of food allergies in their schools.

Letters will be mailed to Illinois schools encouraging school personnel to order their educational kit. The distribution of the kits will come at no cost to the state or local schools, and has been underwritten by a generous private donation. Schools that are interested in obtaining the free training guide should contact FAAN at 1(800) 929-4040 or via the web at www.foodallergy.org.

National Family Caregivers Month Honors And Celebrates Family Caregivers

This November, organizations across the United States will celebrate and recognize family caregivers during the annual National Family Caregiver Month. With over 50 million family caregivers across the U.S., the number of people who chose to care for their loved ones themselves, versus placing them in a nursing or care facility, is growing rapidly.

This year NFC Month has adopted the theme "The Caring Every Day Campaign" and offers three steps family caregivers can take every day to make their lives better and improve the care they give their loved ones: Believe in Yourself; Protect Your Health and Reach Out for Help.

To help family caregivers reach out for help and in support of patient and caregiver health and safety, the National Private Duty Association (NPDA) - an endorsing organization of NFC Month - is providing support and resources to assist family caregivers with providing quality and educated care.

In order to avoid caregiver burnout and provide quality care, it sometimes becomes necessary for family caregivers to seek out respite or supplemental care from a professional caregiver. Unfortunately, because the private duty home care industry remains unregulated in most states, the quality of care between professional providers can vary greatly. This leaves patients and family caregivers vulnerable to fraud, abuse or financial pitfalls. With a little knowledge about the differences in models of home care and what that means for the client, family caregivers who need extra support can rest assured that they are choosing safe, reliable and trustworthy help.

Most private duty providers fall into one of two categories: a registry that uses independent contractors (also known as a referral service or a nursing registry) or a private duty agency. The differences in these two models of home care can have important consequences for the consumer legally, financially and even physically. The key difference comes down to the issue of who employs the caregiver.

Registries act as "matchmaker" services, assigning independent contractors to clients who need home care by matching the client with a care worker from the list of workers registered with them. The worker is never hired by the registry as an employee; instead the registry serves as a middle man to match an independent worker to a person who is seeking home care services.

Since registries and companies who place private personnel do not actually employ their care providers, they don't assume the same responsibility for the worker as someone employing a caregiver. Instead, when a client hires an independent home care provider, the client becomes the legal employer of the caregiver. This means that the client is liable for things such as workers compensation, unemployment taxes and social security. Additionally, since the home care worker is a contract worker, the company who helped place them cannot manage them and in some cases does not perform background checks on the worker. This puts the consumer at risk for abuse and fraud without any legal protection from an agency.

Private duty agencies, however, employ their workers and take full responsibility for the supervision and training of those workers. Agency caregivers are bonded, insured and if need be, licensed. The agency also does the accounting and bookwork, provides the supervision and discipline, carries the insurance and tries to ensure that all shifts are covered.

Most Important Meal Of The Day

"Breakfast is the most important meal of the day." Researchers reviewed 47 studies to determine if there is any truth to the saying. The research review revealed that breakfast consumers are more likely to have better overall diet quality. Breakfast provides a number of nutrients essential to children's growth and development that were not provided at other meals throughout the day. For instance, a breakfast of cereal with milk provided more fiber and calcium than other meals. Although children who ate breakfast consumed more calories, they were less likely to be overweight than children who didn't eat breakfast. In addition, children who ate breakfast had better academic performance and school attendance and less tardiness. As for parents, the research showed that those who ate breakfast had children who ate breakfast, emphasizing the influence parents have on their children's eating behaviors. The researchers advocate a healthful breakfast for all children consisting of high-fiber whole grains, fruit and dairy foods.

Veterans And Soldiers

The Patriotic Pillow Project presents Make A Difference Day on Saturday, Oct. 22nd, at Hannum School gym, 98th and Tripp in Oak Lawn from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This open house sewing event is being held to make Patriotic Pillows to comfort our healing heroes, along with heartfelt hand written messages of support, gratitude, respect, and concern.

Christina Finn and her husband Daniel Finn, a disabled veteran of the Vietnam War, started this project to make pillows for wounded G.I.'s back home from overseas. They acquired pillows from the airlines and have had volunteers sew the covers nationwide. "Each individual pillow was created to thank a very special recipient for their sacrifice and service to our nation. Each pillow contains a thank you greeting for our healing hero so they may be reminded of how much we care and appreciate all that they have done to spread democracy and freedom to suppressed peoples who would otherwise not have such opportunities," said Christina and Daniel Finn. A lot of time is spent doing research trying to find recipients but the Finn's goal is to deliver a pillow to each and every wounded G.I.

The pillow covers are handcrafted quilted replicas of our Nation's flag. At this time the Finn's have received over 1,000 pillows and have delivered over 500 finished gifts. The pillowcases need not be perfect, they will not be judged, just loved, they said. If you would like to help make the pillowcases come to Hannum School on Oct. 22nd or contact Christina at The Patriotic Pillow Project, 3400 W. 111th St, PMB # 494, Chicago, IL 60655, or call her cell phone at (708) 837-4510 or email Christina@patrioticpillowproject.com.

Discovering The Days Of Awe

"May you be inscribed in the book of life!"

At this time of year, Jews around the world greet each other with this blessing. It's Rosh Hashanah or the New Year, a time for family celebration. It's also the beginning of what's often called the High Holy Days, but more properly referred to as the Days of Awe. These culminate ten days later with Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement. This is a solemn day of fasting, prayer and reflection on how one has lived in the past year - for better or for worse - as well as an opportunity to resolve to improve in the year to come.

I started thinking about these holidays recently, when I was reviewing a "Christopher Closeup" program I taped with Dr. Marc Gopin. He's the director of the Center for World Religions, Diplomacy and Conflict Resolution at George Mason University in Virginia. He is also a rabbi and the author of Healing the Heart of Conflict. He is a man who has traveled the globe helping people deal with the anger and grief that come with the disputes and disagreements that plague families, communities, and nations.

Our conversation centered on how we can make peace with ourselves and one another. Since reflection, reconciliation and forgiveness are so much a part of the Days of Awe, it occurred to me that, whatever our religious beliefs, we all need to spend time looking at ourselves and at our relationships with others in order to nurture our relationship with God.

I was struck by Dr. Gopin's assertion that no conflict or resolution can take place - or even begin - unless we start with ourselves. "If you don't examine yourself and your own side, then you continue to obsess about the subject of the fight rather than seeing your contribution to the fight or your potential contribution to the healing," he continued. "I think self-examination is an old moral and spiritual principle from the world's great religions. A basic ancient phrase says, 'Who is respected?' A person who respects all human beings. That's self-examination. That's what I need and it's probably what they need, too. It's the Golden Rule. It's Leviticus 9:19: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' But you can't express all that love for neighbor unless you're working on what you need for yourself."

Loving and forgiving those who have caused us harm is difficult, even painful. Asking for forgiveness, is perhaps even more so, since it means admitting our own mistakes - sometimes, major ones. Yet, I think forgiving ourselves may be harder than either.

Of course we should do the best we can with our lives. But, that's not the same as demanding a perfection that belongs to God alone. We all fail. We all fall. Yet the God who created us out of love offers us forgiveness, just as surely, if we ask for it with a sincere heart.

Another Christopher friend, Rabbi Harold Kushner, has written many thought-provoking books which address various aspects of the human condition. In How Good Do We Have to Be? He writes: "Life is not a trap set for us by God, so that He can condemn us for failing ... At the end, if we are brave enough to love, if we are strong enough to forgive, if we are generous enough to rejoice in another's happiness, and if we are wise enough to know that there is enough love to go around for us all, then we can achieve a fulfillment that no other living creature will ever know."

Plan To Make Illinois Schools Better

The Illinois State Board of Education has submitted its Comprehensive Strategic Plan for Elementary and Secondary Education in Illinois to Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich and members of the Illinois General Assembly. The plan, a five-year road map for the State Board of Education, focuses on helping schools meet the needs of their students to prepare them for long-term success after high school. The Board developed the plan with input from education constituents in open forums held around the state in May, June and July. The plan was required for the first time this year as part of the governor's sweeping education reform law that he signed in September 2004.

With the goal of helping schools and districts improve the way they teach children, the State Board focused on three primary goal areas for the plan. While the goals in the plan are not intended to cover all the functions and priorities of the Board, they represent those areas that will have the greatest impact on children in Illinois schools. The three goals in the plan are:

- Enhancing literacy, which includes fluency in reading, math, science and global awareness.
- Improving educator quality for all children, spanning teacher preparation, recruitment, retention & professional development.
- Expanding data-driven management and school support practices, for example, providing schools access to online educational research to help them develop school improvement plans, building on success achieved in other schools, districts and states.

Within these goal areas, specific objectives address areas from early childhood and teacher recruitment to best teaching practices and shared service initiatives for schools. Each strategic objective directly relates to the topic areas set forth in Public Act 93-1036.

Progress on meeting each initiative in the Strategic Plan will be tracked through a template throughout the Agency and reported to the State Board of Education on a quarterly basis. The State Board will evaluate the overall appropriateness of the plan on an annual basis, making needed changes & additions to ensure that it remains a compelling document to lead educational change in Illinois.

Property Tax Bills On Website

Cook County homeowners can see their property tax bill amount on the Cook County Treasurer's website and pay the bills on-line almost five days before they arrive in the mail, Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas said.

More than 1.6 million bills for the 2nd installment of tax year 2004 have been mailed. The due date is Nov. 1, Pappas said.

Property owners can visit www.cookcountytreasurer.com to obtain the amount of the bill and pay on-line from a checking or savings account, Pappas said.

"Now that our website accepts payments year-round, property owners have greater flexibility and convenience in paying property taxes on-line," Pappas said, advising owners to have their Property Index Number (PIN) ready.

Pappas said taxpayers also can call (312) 443-5100 and use English, Polish or Spanish to obtain the amount of the bill for financial-planning purposes.

Website visitors who still have not paid the first-installment bill from earlier this year will see how much is owed for both that bill and the new bill. Payments for both installments can be made on-line and in any amount (overpayments are rejected), Pappas said.

Besides on-line, bills can be paid: at more than 250 Bank One (Chase) locations; by direct debit from some 250 community banks; or by mail (return envelope comes with the bill).

Pappas urged homeowners to make timely payment to avoid state-imposed delinquency penalties of 1.5% per month.

Find Jobs For Hurricane Victims In Illinois

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that a partnership between state government and the private sector is helping find jobs for people displaced by two major Gulf hurricanes who are now living in Illinois. The Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES) contacted the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and Illinois employers with 250 or more employees to ask them to identify job openings for hurricane evacuees living in Illinois. More than 70 companies responded to the call and have identified hundreds of jobs.

"When we opened our doors to thousands of people displaced by Hurricane Katrina - and now victims of Hurricane Rita as well - 23 took on the responsibility of helping them get back on their feet. We're providing housing, health care, food, clothing and we're helping to find them jobs. By working with our friends in the private sector, we're matching job skills to jobs available. I'm proud of the way this state responded to the wide range of needs hurricane victims are facing after the disaster on the Gulf Coast," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Major corporations like General Electric, Harris Bank, Aon Corporation and Caterpillar are among the more than 70 companies that responded to the state's request. IDES is using its free online job matching service, Illinois Skills Match to help match people to potential jobs.

"IDES was asked by our affected sister states to identify jobs that may suit those who had to evacuate their communities. Our goal is to use Illinois Skills Match to quickly match Katrina evacuees with suitable employment and help them recover from this disaster as quickly as possible," said IDES Director Brenda A. Russell.

Russell also notes that jobs listed at IllinoisSkillsMatch.com are open to all Illinois residents. IDES uses Illinois Skills Match to help employers find qualified employees with the right skills. Only a few of the jobs listed with ISM are restricted to hurricane evacuees; the vast majority are available to the general public. IDES will also work with employers who are targeting jobs for hurricane evacuees to identify qualified Illinois residents for these jobs if a qualified hurricane victim is not found.

The state is working to ensure evacuees are aware of the job assistance created to help them. IDES staff is providing direct assistance to the evacuees in IDES local offices and at emergency sites throughout the state. The IDES website, www.ides.state.il.us, is set up with a number of links to maximize the possibilities of matching available jobs with the appropriate candidates.

In addition to the Illinois Skills Match, links from the IDES homepage include other Katrina-related employment sites. The U.S. Department of Labor's America's Job Bank has a special site, Katrina Recovery Jobs Connection (www.jobsearch.org/katrinajobs). CareerBuilder, a website affiliated with the Chicago Tribune and other national newspapers, has a section set up for Katrina victims at www.katrina.jobs. Chicagojobs.com, associated with 19 newspaper publishers in the greater Chicago area, is a website devoted exclusively to Chicago area jobs, has a special site at www.Chicagojobs.com/Katrina. All the Katrina-related sites are free to employers and evacuees.

Acute Scrapbook Bringing Villages Together

Acute Scrapbook located at 11642 S. Pulaski in Alsip will be sponsoring a fundraiser for victims of Hurricane Katrina who have been relocated to Tinley Park. In an effort to help with the New Beginnings of these displaced families and individuals, Acute Scrapbook will be having a Free Crop to raise donations on Sunday, Oct. 9th from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the VFW Hall, 119th and Cicero Ave. in Alsip (donated for the event).

Susan Swanson, owner of Acute Scrapbook, is encouraging the community to welcome these survivors with open arms and hearts. For the first hour of the crop, there will be a "Make-n-Give" instead of a "Make-n-Take." With the help and support of Alsip's Mayor Patrick Kitching, attendees will be making accordion-style albums to deliver to the Village of Tinley Park along with other donations. The Village of Tinley Park states that gift cards and cash donations are most needed. For your protection, all checks should be made payable to The Village of Alsip, New Beginnings Relief Fund. "We are looking for all of our community's seasoned croppers, as well as those just starting out, to come help our fundraising effort. Also, we are looking for area businesses to donate items which can be raffled for further donations," said Swanson.

There will be food donated from the area's restaurants, along with contests and raffles to keep the croppers cropping! If you choose not to attend, donations will also be accepted directly at Acute Scrapbook. A list of contributors will also be published. For more in-depth details, or to make a pledge and reserve your seat to crop, contact Susan Swanson of Acute Scrapbook at (708) 59-SCRAP. Thank you one and all for your support.

Congressman Lipinski's Aid To Katrina Victims Grows

U.S. Rep. Dan Lipinski is coordinating a Katrina Relief Effort and is seeking both donations and volunteers to help his Gulf region convoy.

Lipinski said that his particular relief effort is being directed toward the residents of Ocean Springs, Mississippi where one out of three homes were completely destroyed and that 50% of their town's tax base has been eliminated.

Lipinski said that all people from across his district are getting involved - from business leaders to students in need of fulfilling their community service requirements.

Cleaning and construction supplies are badly needed in the Gulf region because of the Katrina's destruction and now mold growth; so a special plea goes out to any businesses or manufactures of such items, he noted.

A band of volunteers will depart Thursday, Oct. 20th, for Ocean Springs where they will escort and unload all donated goods and arrive back to Chicago late Sunday night.

Lipinski said he understood and listened to the frustration of Americans by the government's inability to help the victims.

Other ways for people to become involved are through helping with the boxing and loading of donated items and assist with the collection of donations from now until departure.

Some suggested items, but not limited to are: baby formula, powdered milk, non-perishable foods, brooms, mops, dust pans, shaving cream, razors, toothpaste and toothbrushes, soap and shampoo, non-perishable foods, new underwear and new socks, rubbing alcohol, band aides and other medicinal needs, air mattresses, large tarps, deodorant, hair brushes and combs, adult and infant diapers, mouthwash, baby wipes, feminine hygiene products, and most of all bleach.

Lipinski also encourages business owners or supervisors to chair an employee drive, "It's a great way to promote civic participation," Lipinski said.

He is also offering business owners throughout his district a 50-gallon fiberboard drum to place in their establishments so that their customers can participate, too.

Any three of his congressional offices are accepting donations: Chicago, 6245 S. Archer Avenue; La Grange, 19 Hillgrove, and Oak Lawn, 5205 W. 95th St, which is open late during the weekday and on weekends.

There are also scattered drop off locations throughout the district for constituent convenience.

Those interested in volunteering or seeking details about the whereabouts of other drop off locations, contact Catherine at (708)424-0853 or at LipinskiHelps@yahoo.com.

POLICE CALLS

On October 21st Mark Anderson of Oak Lawn was arrested and charged with two counts of battery, criminal damage to property, and theft after taking a motorized scooter from in front of an apartment building in the 8900 block of Sproat. The owner and a friend, who saw Anderson take the scooter chased him through the neighborhood in an attempt to retrieve the scooter. Anderson dropped the scooter, damaging the side, and attempted to jump a fence, which he also damaged. As the owner and the friend caught up to Anderson he pushed the owner to the ground and punched him. He then pushed the friend, just as the police arrived.

On September 22nd Donald Jakos, 50, of Oak Lawn and Donald Houde, 41, of Bridgeview were arrested and charged with being under the influence of alcohol in a park after officers observed the two men in a park for a second time. The two had been discovered earlier sleeping on benches and officers watched as they exited the park. A while later they again observed Houde sleeping on a bench and discovered Jakos in an outhouse.

Illinois "All Kids" Health Coverage

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich unveiled a landmark proposal that would make Illinois the first state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state. At a meeting with several middle-income families from the Chicago area who all make too much to qualify for state-funded healthcare, but cannot afford the high cost of private insurance, the Governor laid out his plan to ensure that every child in Illinois has access to affordable health insurance. Of the 253,000 children in Illinois without health insurance, more than half come from working and middle class families who earn too much to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough to afford private health insurance. The Governor's program would make comprehensive health insurance available to children, with parents paying monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescription drugs at affordable rates.

Over the past two and a half years, the Blagojevich Administration has worked to expand health coverage for low-income, working parents and their children. Since January of 2003, 170,000 more children in Illinois received health insurance, and Illinois is now ranked as the second best state in the nation by the Kaiser Family Foundation for providing health care to children who need it (Illinois is also now the top ranked state in the nation for providing health care to adults who need it).

Participants in the new program will pay monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescriptions, but unlike private insurance that is too expensive for so many families, the rates for All Kids coverage will be based on a family's income. The state is able to offer All Kids insurance coverage at much lower than market rates for middle-income families by leveraging the significant negotiating and buying power it already has through Medicaid.

The state will cover the difference between what parents contribute in monthly premiums and the actual cost of providing health care for each child, expected to be $45 million in the first year, with savings generated by implementing a primary care case management model (PCCM) for participants in the state's FamilyCare and All Kids health care programs. Participants will choose a single primary physician who will manage their care by ensuring they get immunizations and other preventative health care services and avoid unnecessary emergency room visits and hospitalizations. Patients with chronic conditions like asthma or diabetes will have a single care manager to make sure they are getting the treatments and ongoing care they need to avoid acute care. Primary care physicians will make referrals to specialists for additional care or tests as needed.

By ensuring patients get adequate preventative care on the front end, fewer people will need expensive specialized care or emergency care for critical conditions. In children, preventative care is especially important. For example, infants with stomach flu (gastroenteritis) who receive appropriate primary care can avoid being hospitalized for dehydration. Providing a timely exam and appropriate antibiotic treatment for children with ear infections (otitis media) can prevent chronic ear problems, loss of hearing and the need for surgically placed tubes to relieve fluid build up. Treating children with bronchitis or minor lung infections in a primary care setting can help to avoid more expensive hospitalization treatment of pneumonia, including intravenous antibiotics and respiratory treatments. And early identification and appropriate treatment of children who have chronic illnesses, such as asthma, will result in fewer expensive emergency room and inpatient care visits.

Oak Lawn Board Of Trustees Once Again

Table Target Ordinance

On Tuesday, October 11th the Oak Lawn Board again tabled action on an ordinance providing for the establishment of a Target Project-Municipal Parking Lot Special Service Area. Mayor Heilmann stated that he has been in correspondence and has requested a meeting with Target. But as yet no meeting has been scheduled. The mayor requested that the board table any action on the ordinance until such a meeting is held. Residents in attendance, applauded the mayor's comments.

The board approved a request from the Information Services Manager to waive the bidding process to purchase a critical replacement/upgrade to the village's IBM Series 400 System computer server for the Emergency-911 communications area from Comtech Group. The new system will cost $71,373 and will include hardware, maintenance, and installation. According to Carol Faye, Information Services Manager, the replacement plan will save the village approximately $30,000 a year in maintenance fees and offer improved reliability for the system overall.

The week of October 21st through October 28th has been proclaimed Red Ribbon Week in the village of Oak Lawn. The kickoff ceremony will be take place on Friday, October 21st from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. on the Village Green.

October 14th through October 21st has been proclaimed "Operation Safe Streets" week. Chief Smith and the Oak Lawn Police Department remind that while the weather is still nice, kids are out walking and riding their bikes to school. The responsibility is on drivers to be more aware of what is going on around them. To help ensure the safety of the children extra patrols in the areas around schools will be conducted both before and after school. Officers will aggressively be enforcing all traffic laws including the use of seat belts.

The board adjourned to executive session at 8:30 p.m. The next regular meeting will be held on October 25th.

Operation Safe Streets

A message from Chief Smith and the Oak Lawn Police Department:

Here we are into another school year. While the weather is still nice kids are walking and riding their bikes to school. The responsibility is on the drivers of motor vehicles to be more aware of what's going on around them. Things to keep in mind while driving are:

- Children are small, making it difficult for them to see motorists and for motorists to see them. This is especially true around obstructions like parked or moving cars and buses.
- Children have underdeveloped peripheral vision, so a child won't see a motorist approaching from the right or left as soon as an adult will.
- Children have difficulty judging a car's speed and distance, leading them to misjudge how far away from them a moving car really is.
- Children often think, if they can see a car, the driver can see them.
- When backing out of a driveway or leaving a garage, watch out for children walking or bicycling.
- Watch for children walking in the street, especially if there are no sidewalks in the neighborhood. Also, watch out for children playing and when approaching a bus stop.
- Be alert. Children arriving late for school or a bus may dart into the street without looking for traffic.
- Drivers need to look for pedestrians as well as cars when turning left at a green light or making a right turn on red. Pedestrians have the right-of-way in these situations.

To help ensure the safety of our children, the Oak Lawn Police Department will be conducting extra patrols in the school areas both before and after school. Officers also will continue their school checks during the school hours. We will be aggressively enforcing our school speed zones throughout town. Please watch out and obey all crossing guards and stop signs. Police officers will also be making sure that everyone riding in a motor vehicle is wearing their seatbelt or using an appropriate child restraint seat by conducting seatbelt enforcement zones.

Our goal for conducting Operation Safe Streets is not to write tickets, but to ensure the safety of everyone. This will help make our streets a safer place to travel. It is for your safety and the safety of your passengers that you should wear your seatbelts and slow down going through town.

This information has been sent out to schools. While we encourage safety every day, this operation will be conducted from Oct. 14th through 21st.

Direct Voter Accessibility is the Best Way

As an elected official my priority is to be as accessible as possible to residents year-round. Whether meeting with residents, groups or knocking on doors I want individuals to know that they can always approach me about issues that are important to them.

With technology today citizens have more ways to contact their public servants than ever before. In the Oak Lawn Park District we are utilizing part of that technology to communicate with the community through our web site at www.olparks.com.

Direct contact with elected officials is extremely important and a simple administrative change I plan to work with the park board on is allowing each board member, who chooses, to have an e-mail, phone number, and mailing address listed on the Oak Lawn Park District web site under the web page that shows the members of the park board.

This simple change will allow residents to easily share their thoughts with us on a variety of issues as well as help us to improve your parks and more effectively utilize your taxpayer dollars.

Until this change is officially made I encourage all residents of the Oak Lawn Park District who have questions, comments, ideas or concerns to contact me through e-mail at MaryListens@hotmail.com, by phone at (708) 203-1412, or by mail at P.O. Box 322, Oak Lawn, IL 60454.

Alert Consumers To Children's Product Recalls

Attorney General Lisa Madigan joined the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) on Oct. 5th in alerting consumers about two recent recalls of children's costume jewelry products that were found to contain high levels of lead.

Madigan announced that approximately 145,000 Disney Princess Bracelet Key-rings and 455,000 Dollar General Necklace & Earring Sets have been voluntarily recalled. The bracelet key-rings were being sold at various retailers nationwide, including Walgreens and Wal-Mart, and the necklace and earring sets were being sold at Dollar General stores nationwide.

Madigan said consumers should stop using the recalled products immediately and contact the product distributors for a refund. For the Disney Princess Bracelet Keyrings, consumers should contact Monogram International at 1-800-736-1941. For the Dollar General Necklace and Earring Set, consumers should contact Dollar General at 1-800-678-9258.

The Illinois Department of Public Health's Web site also provide a direct link to www.recalls.gov, where citizens can find up-to-date recall information about past and current recalls.

Tax Relief For Hurricane Katrina Victims

For victims of Hurricane Katrina, there may be tax relief on the horizon, federal and state recovery officials said today.

Because of a special Hurricane Katrina relief bill enacted by Congress and signed into law on September 23rd, Katrina-impacted taxpayers who lived in counties at the time of the hurricane that were later declared disaster areas no longer have to deduct 10 percent of their adjusted income and a $100 deductible to claim disaster losses on their federal taxes.

Under the legislation, Katrina victims who can itemize deductions will be able to claim their entire disaster loss, minus any insurance payments or other reimbursements. Some tax filers may find that hurricane losses enable them to itemize deductions when they might not have otherwise qualified to do so.

The new law also allows Katrina victims to withdraw up to $100,000 without tax penalties from certain retirement accounts, such as 401(k) plans and Individual Retirement Accounts, to pay for disaster-related needs. Suspends limits on individual cash contributions made to qualified charities beginning August 28, 2005 through December 31, 2005. Provides a tax benefit for people who volunteer to take Katrina victims, a $500 deduction for each person they house for at least six months, up to a cap of $2,000.

IDOT Receives Clean Air Award

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) has received a clean air award from the Partners for Clean Air for its groundbreaking Clean Air Construction Initiative. The Clean Air Construction Initiative is currently being utilized on the Dan Ryan and Kingery Expressway projects in reducing and monitoring emissions, as well as playing a part in the extensive community outreach program.

Last April, IDOT announced the Clean Air Construction Initiative, a major pollution reduction effort on the Dan Ryan and Kingery projects. The groundbreaking initiative was a result of recommendations from the Health and Environmental Focus Groups and partnerships with the U.S. and Illinois Environmental Protection Agencies.

The award was presented to IDOT by Darwin Burkhardt, Chair of Partners for Clean Air.

The Clean Air Construction Initiative calls for heavy construction equipment on the Dan Ryan project to be retrofitted with devices designed to reduce harmful emissions or use ultra low sulfur diesel fuel (ULSD) which is significantly cleaner than regular diesel fuel. IDOT also instituted idling limits and dust controls in order to reduce construction-related air emissions.

According to traffic studies, the Dan Ryan expressway is one of the busiest and most dangerous in the nation. It carries more than 300,000 vehicles daily, which is more than double what it was intended to carry when it was built more than 40 years ago. With nearly 8,200 accidents and more than 25 deaths reported over a three-year period, the expressway is averaging approximately seven accidents daily.

The four-year $600 million Dan Ryan Expressway (I-94/90) reconstruction project spans from 31st St. to I-57/Halsted St. As part of the reconstruction, IDOT will add expressway lanes, improve local access roads and reconfigure the Skyway interchange to allow for safer driving conditions. We're On the Move to Improve the Dan Ryan Expressway. For more information, visit www.danryanexpressway.com.

People who have registered for disaster assistance by calling toll-free 1-800-621-3362 or (TTY) 1-800-462-7585 can talk with an IRS representative at any of the disaster recovery centers set up in Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina and Kentucky to help Katrina victims.

The IRS also has established a toll-free hotline for hurricane victims at 1-866-562-5227 which operates from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday. There, callers can find out about available tax relief, get free copies of their tax return transcripts and receive disaster tax kits. To calculate a federal casualty loss deduction, go to the IRS website at <http://www.irs.gov> or read IRS Publication 547, "Casualties, Disasters and Thefts."

For state income tax waivers or other benefits for Katrina victims, evacuees should check with the state tax office where they formerly resided. Property tax reductions may also be available in certain jurisdictions. For that information, evacuees are urged to consult the tax office in the county or parish where their property is located.

Launching Out - With Columbus

Light One Candle
The Christophers

A long, long time ago, meaning when I was in school, Columbus Day used to be a pretty big deal. Our local Knights of Columbus council would throw a grand party to celebrate the occasion, and in school we had the usual pageants appropriate to the day. I was never chosen to play the Admiral himself, or to intone those magic words: "Sail on...and on!" But the kid who did get the part enjoyed celebrity status, at least for a while.

Like a lot of other things, Columbus Day isn't what it used to be. Oh, we still have a wonderful parade here in Manhattan, and there's still a holiday to enjoy. But political correctness has taken its toll. Columbus shouldn't be held up as a hero, his detractors tell us; the land he "discovered" was here all along, and the Indians who lived here were the real owners - Native Americans, in the truest sense of the phrase. And we keep hearing that Columbus might not have been the first European to reach these shores, after all. Claimants we never heard of in the old days have been put forth in recent years, forcing everyone to take a second look, at the very least, at the Columbus legend.

For some of us, though, the legend dies hard. By any standard Christopher Columbus was a hero in his own day, and the thought here is that he should still be seen as one now. In a sense, he's something of a namesake for us, The Christophers, and his first name carries the same meaning - "Christ-bearer" - that defines who we are and what we try to do.

That makes all the more remarkable a passage that I came across in You Can Change the World, the best-seller written back in 1948 by our founder, Maryknoll Father James Keller. In a series of "Reminders for Christophers" that he used to close the book, Father Keller listed as number 12 "Be Daring, Not Timid." To help make his point he cited Luke's Gospel passage in which Jesus dared Peter and his fellow fishermen to get away from the shallow, warm water close to the shore and "Launch out into the deep!"

"Taking Christ literally, he did 'launch out into the deep,' into the dangerous waters far from shore," Father Keller wrote. "And Peter carried that daring into everything he did for the rest of his life. Those who would be true Christophers will have to be equally daring, avoiding all timidity."

The application is obvious. I have no idea how familiar Christopher Columbus might have been with that particular passage of the Bible or indeed with the Scriptures in general. But daring? That's something else. Among those who go down to the sea in ships, he was the most daring sailor of his day, and perhaps of all time. No one in the history of seamanship is better remembered for listening to, and ultimately accepting, that most arresting of challenges: "Launch out into the deep."

As I say, Columbus Day isn't what it used to be. On top of everything else it's one of those "Monday holidays," which have come to mean very little beyond long weekends and trips to the mall.

Try to remember, though, the epic daring, the courage that made it a holiday in the first place. As for me, I'm still practicing "Sail on...and on!" Just in case.

Action Is Needed

In a letter to President Bush, U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) joined his colleagues in urging the President "to convene immediately a summit at the White House of oil and gas company CEOs to call on them to be good corporate citizens by reducing their prices."

Durbin said that Illinoisans can expect to continue to see their energy costs rise unless the President takes bold and decisive action. Durbin warned that unless consumers in Illinois see a reduction in the price of gasoline, they could pay an additional $6 billion this year alone.

Reminding the President of his close ties to the oil and gas industries, the Senators continued, "We have never before had a President, Vice-President or Administration as close to the oil, gas and energy industry as yours is. This was demonstrated when, at the beginning of your administration, you convened a White House energy task force to draft a national energy policy. As we now know, large parts of that policy were drafted by your friends, allies and supporters in the oil, gas and energy industries."

Mayor Daley and Cook County Assessor James Houlihan co-sponsored the 7 percent cap which held the increase in this year's property tax bills to around two to four percent. In fact, in numerous cases, this year's tax bill is actually lower than that of two years ago.

Daley has suggested that the purpose of the 7 percent cap "was to prevent homeowners from being hit with huge tax increases as a result of skyrocketing real estate values. And it has worked."

However, Daley also pointed out that assessments are expected to continue their steep increase when Chicago homes are reassessed next year. "Property taxes will probably increase by double-digit percentages as they have in the past if the General Assembly fails to make the 7 percent cap permanent," he said.

Daley has requested that the City Council pass a resolution in favor of a permanent cap and has urged Chicagoland homeowners to encourage their respective legislators to make the cap permanent. He has also urged Cook County Assessor Houlihan to reform the assessment procedure in the County, and he called on the General Assembly to reduce the reliance on local property taxes to fund educational programs.

State Rep. Monique Davis (D-Chicago) has told All Points that she will bring area businesses and state agencies together with motivated job seekers at a job fair in Blue Island this Saturday, Oct. 15th. The event will take place at Eisenhower High School, 12700 S. Sacramento Ave., from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The event is open to the public and any organization interested in having a booth should contact Davis' constituent service office at (773) 445-9700.

Cook County Board of Review Commissioner Larry R. Rogers, Jr. has announced that on Saturday, Oct. 15th, he will hold a forum for property owners in Bremen Township who are interested in appealing their property tax assessments. Property owners should bring a copy of their tax bill to Mae Jemison Elementary School, 3450 W. 177th St. in Hazel Crest. The program will begin at 11 a.m.

"Appealing your property tax assessment is easy and straightforward, and my staff will help you through every step of the process," said Commissioner Rogers. "No citizen should have to pay more than their fair share of property taxes."

All property owners who file an appeal will be given full consideration and if supported by evidence the Board will consider reducing the assessed value of the property.

There is no fee to file an appeal, and in most cases an attorney is not necessary. The Board of Review does not set the tax rate, assess taxes, or collect taxes. The Board serves as an independent Board mandated to review assessment appeals.

For more information, call Commissioner Rogers' office at (312) 603-5540 or visit www.CookCountyBoardOfReview.com.

Recently, Congressman Dan Lipinski joined with members of the U.S. House of Representatives to pass the Manufacturing Technology Competitiveness Act of 2005 (H.R. 250). The legislation - which originated in the Science Committee - is designed to stimulate manufacturing, jobs and innovation in the U.S.

Congressman Lipinski, a member of the Science Committee, supported the bill because it funds the Manufacturing Extension Partnership (MEP) - a job creation program strongly supported by Committee Democrats - and it authorizes programs under the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST).

Dollar for dollar, NIST programs are among the most successful federal investments and have a direct impact on the U.S. economy. The NIST program with the most direct impact on the U.S. job market is the one major program this bill fails to fund - the Advanced Technology Program (ATP).

Since 2001, nearly 150,000 manufacturing jobs have left Illinois, and federal grant programs such as MEP and ATP are instrumental in helping manufacturers remain competitive in a tight market. A survey of the two MEP centers in Illinois revealed that this program helped create or retain nearly 3,000 jobs and yielded more than $25 million in savings for Illinois manufacturers for fiscal year 2003 alone.

According to Congressman Lipinski, "MEP and ATP are programs that have demonstrated success time and time again. I will continue to support these and other programs that will help Illinois workers and manufacturers."

Expand Prescription Drug Monitoring

The Illinois Dept. of Human Services (IDHS) has received $350,000 from the U.S. Dept. of Justice, Bureau of Justice Affairs, to expand and enhance the Illinois Prescription Monitoring Program. Since 1986, Illinois has monitored Schedule II controlled substances, which include painkillers such as morphine and hydrocodone. The expansion of the program will monitor Schedule III through V drugs, which include codeine, vicodin and Valium and other prescription drugs.

The Dept. of Justice awarded more than $6.2 million to 22 states to support prescription drug monitoring programs, which help prevent and detect abuse of pharmaceutical controlled substances, particularly at the retail level.

The IDHS Office of Clinical, Administrative and Program Supports, Bureau of Pharmacy and Clinical Support administers the Illinois Prescription Monitoring Program. In 2000, the program moved from a paper-driven monitoring program for Schedule II prescription drugs to an electronic system. By converting from paper to the electronic reporting system, IDHS expanded its monitoring from 300,000 prescriptions annually to more than 1.7 million, while saving $500,000 in costs. The expansion of the program will allow IDHS to process more than 5 million transactions and track 7,000 different medications.

Elks Auxiliary Speaker

Dawn Porter, Associate Clerk, Suburban Bureau for the office of Dorothy Brown, Clerk of Circuit Court of Cook County, will speak before the Chicago Women's Elks Auxiliary on Wednesday, Oct. 19th at 8 p.m. at the Elks Club, 4428 Midlothian Turnpike in Crestwood.

Diane Moore, coordinator, announced that Porter will explain the workings of the Clerk's office and services available to Cook County residents.

Jewish Federation Collects For Earthquake Relief

In the wake of the earthquake that has devastated South Asia, the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago is collecting donations to funnel humanitarian aid to the victims.

The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee's (JDC) South Asia Earthquake Relief Fund will be the Federation's primary recipient of contributions for use in the international relief effort. JDC is working with partner agencies on the ground in Pakistan, India and Afghanistan to identify immediate needs and long-term rebuilding programs most needing support.

Both Jewish Federation and JDC are passing on 100% of all funds received to agencies providing human services, without deducting any administrative costs.

Individuals wishing to make donations to help the victims should make checks payable to Jewish Federation South Asia Earthquake Relief and send them to: Jewish Federation South Asia Earthquake Relief Fund, c/o Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago, One South Franklin Street, Room 625, Chicago, IL 60606.

In addition, contributions can be made by credit card via JUF's website at <http://www.juf.org> or by calling (312) 444-2854.

"Our community has an outstanding track record of providing timely, non-sectarian relief in the wake of disasters worldwide," said Jewish Federation President Steven B. Nasatir. "As the Jewish community's central address for meeting human needs, the Federation is proud to provide a vehicle for emergency relief from our community."

The department has also decreased the length of time that prescription information is made available to law enforcement and regulatory agencies from six months to 15 days. The prescription error rate has been reduced to less than one percent.

Expansion of the Illinois Prescription Monitoring Program will increase the capacity of doctors to review a patient's medication history for therapeutic and clinical reasons. Law enforcement and regulatory agencies will have timely access to a broader array of information on controlled substances that could potentially be diverted for illegal uses.

The expansion of the Illinois Prescription Monitoring Program will continue to adhere to the strict privacy guidelines of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) of 1996 and all related Illinois laws.

Artist Showcase

The Illinois Arts Council (IAC) is pleased to announce that the annual Artist Showcase will be held on Friday, Nov. 4th in Tinley Park at the Holiday Inn Select Hotel and Convention Center, 18501 S. Harlem Ave. Illinois not-for-profit organizations that plan to present artists' performances and host artist residencies in the next year will want to take this opportunity to meet nationally and internationally recognized artists from every region of the state.

The Artist Showcase will be held in cooperation with the Rockford Area Arts Council. Each year the Showcase features the artists from the IAC's Arts-in-Education and Artstour Rosters, making it one of the most comprehensive "showcases" for artists in the region. During this lively event, artists creatively display their work in convention-style booths and selected artists conduct short presentations. Showcase attendees have the opportunity to meet a wide variety of exceptional artists representing every art form. They can also attend an application workshop to learn how to apply for IAC funding to bring these artists' programs to their sites. It is highly recommended by both artists and attendees. A past participant of Artist Showcase stated that the event was "Excellent! Price was right and it was jam-packed with great info."

This event is an invaluable resource for representatives of not-for-profit organizations such as schools, PTOs/PTAs, libraries, universities, museums, community centers, park districts, Main Street communities, and arts presenters. The location in Tinley Park provides an excellent opportunity for artists and presenters from throughout the state to convene in a convenient location just southwest of Chicago at the intersection of I-80 and Harlem Ave.

Detailed information about the Artist Showcase is available at the IAC web site, www.state.il.us/agency/iac. The web site also contains detailed descriptions of the artists on the Arts-in-Education and Artstour Rosters and the IAC's grant programs. To request an Artist Showcase registration form, contact the Arts-in-Education department at (312) 814-6780 or aie@arts.state.il.us.

FLY FISHERMAN LANDS 188 POUND TARPON: As tarpon go, a 188-pounder is a monster catch by any tackle. But for a fly fisherman it's like landing an impossible dream. For Kirk Holland it was the catch that became a reality in the Florida Keys.

The 188 lb. 12 oz. tarpon that measured 6'4" in length was caught on March 29th, northwest of Islamorada. Holland was using a 16-pound test tippet on a 12-weight flyrod, and he knew the tarpon was close in weight to the existing world record, a 190 pound tarpon caught on Florida's Gulf Coast in May 2003.

The heaviest tarpon ever landed on fly tackle was a 202 lb. fish caught in May 2001 on a 20-pound test tippet. But to qualify for an International Game Fish Association record, the tarpon had to be weighed on certified scales on land. Kirby's comment: I can appreciate what Kirk accomplished, having done battle with many 100+ pound tarpon on "heavy tackle" in Costa Rica, and the Florida Keys.

GUN CLEANING TIPS FROM BIRCHWOOD CASEY: With hunting season in full swing, now is a good time to clean and inspect your firearms. Shawn Nathan, Sporting Goods Marketing Manager for Birchwood Casey, offered these tips for gun care: "First of all, check to be sure it's unloaded. You would be surprised how many people forget to unload their guns before they put them away. It is always a good idea to clean your guns before you put them away at the end of the season, but oftentimes this is overlooked. To properly clean your firearm it helps to have a good working knowledge of how to disassemble the gun. This makes it much easier to clean small parts or hard to get at areas. For someone who is unsure about the procedure, you can have a knowledgeable friend help, or take the firearm to a gunsmith for cleaning."

"At Birchwood Casey, we have what we call our 3-step cleaning process. First, you need to break down the materials that accumulate in your gun each time you fire it. Lead, copper, plastic, carbon and powder can ruin your barrel and affect accuracy. Our Bore Scrubber 2-in-one bore cleaner was designed to safely soften and remove these materials. You can spray it directly into the bore, or use a patch soaked in the solution. Just be sure and have the barrel pointed downward at the muzzle to keep the solution from running into the gun's action. Let the cleaner soak for a few minutes and then run a wire brush up and down the bore about 10 times. You can soak small parts in Bore Scrubber to make them easier to clean."

"The second step is to remove all of the foreign oil, residue and film from your gun. You can use our Gun Scrubber Synthetic Safe Solvent/Degreaser to flush out all the grit and residue that was broken down by the Bore Scrubber. Gun Scrubber has a high-pressure jet action to get into hard to reach areas, like the trigger assembly. It dries quickly, so there is no rinsing involved."

"Once your firearm is clean and oil-free, you will need to put a protective coating back on it to prevent rust. Our Barricade Rust Protection has been specifically formulated for use on guns. Wipe down or spray all the metal surfaces. Barricade is actually designed to drive out moisture from metal pores and leaves a protective barrier."

"All of the products are safe to use in your home shop. There is a Gun Care Guide available on our web site at <http://www.birchwoodcasey.com> that can be downloaded free. It covers the 3-step process, as well as outlining some of our other products."

■IT COULDN'T HAPPEN TO A NICER GUY: On Sept. 23rd, 2005, Don Dziedzina of New Lenox, Illinois received the Illinois Outdoor Writer of the Year Award at the Southern Illinois celebration of National Hunting and Fishing Days.

The National Hunting and Fishing Days Committee along with the Illinois Department of Natural Resources selected Dziedzina to receive this award for his continuing efforts to promote conservation, fishing, hunting, and other outdoor sports here in Illinois through his many outdoor columns.

Don has regularly published columns in three monthly outdoor magazines and eleven weekly publications. He is also the producer and host of the Illinois Outdoors Television Show, and co-host of the All Outdoors Television Show.

■RAT-L-TRAP (EVERY TACKLE BOX HAS AT LEAST ONE) INVENTOR DIES: Bill Lewis, who invented one of fishing's most popular bass lures, died on June 17th at his Alexandria, La. home after a lengthy illness. He was 85.

Working in his kitchen in the late 1960s, Lewis created the Rat-L-Trap lipless crankbait that revolutionized the sport of bass fishing. Bill Lewis Lures and the Rat-L-Trap became an industry leader.

His 'Traps' earned him three Best Lure Design Awards, and BASS honored Lewis by listing him one of the most influential persons in bass fishing history.

Moraine Valley Women's Volleyball Team Netting A Good Year

The Moraine Valley women's volleyball team is "setting" itself to compete for the Skyway Conference championship this year. The squad retained four experienced veterans and recruited six of the area's high school prep players.

Coach Gloria Coughlin believes the Cyclones show a good deal of promise and expects them to perform well throughout the year.

Returning players from last year include Jessie Synowiecki (Oak Lawn High School), the team's primary outside hitter. Synowiecki was named to last year's All-Skyway Conference team and the All-Region IV team, and has continued her successes this season. She was named to the all-tournament teams at the College of DuPage Invitational and the College of Lake County Invitational. Lauren Gerdes (Carl Sandburg High School) is a returning middle hitter who has helped the team immensely in middle blocking and hitting, and works very hard to control the net for the Cyclones. Jess Bennett (Andrew High School) also returns to the team this year as an aggressive server and an up-and-coming defensive specialist. Kozue Irei (Japan) also returns to the Cyclones this season, and is seeing action as the Libero - a "free" player that can switch in and out for any back row player at any time - and is a spark for the team, exhibiting great dig and service skills.

New to the Cyclones this year are Natalie Wigginton (Evergreen Park High School), a true middle with experience who Coughlin expects to be an offensive force and good blocker. Kelly McKinney (Oak Lawn High School) is the setter for this year's team. Also on the roster is Megan Zagata (Queen of Peace High School), a second-year student who is playing her first year this fall. She is a terrific defensive player according to her coach, but this year takes on the offensive left-side attacker role. Coughlin expects that her power and precision will lead to a very successful junior college volleyball career. Jennifer Carroll (Maria High School) also is a first-year right-side hitter and blocker. She is the main blocker against the opponent's best hitters and is continually working to strengthen her hands and shoulders to stop and slow down the opposing team's hitters. Finally, Kristyn Rapacz (Maria High School) is a first-year player who is working hard to fill roles as a left-side hitter and defensive specialist. Rapacz has a powerful serve and has already proven to be an offensive weapon from the service line.

Review Of Tour Boat Safety

In the wake of the Sunday, Oct. 4th tragic boating accident in New York, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich directed the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources to immediately review tour boat operations and regulations in Illinois to make sure the state is doing everything necessary to keep passengers safe. The governor directed the IDNR to report back to him in 30 days with any recommended changes to the Illinois Boat Registration and Safety Act. The department will examine several areas of the law, including the placement of life jackets, passenger/crew ratio, passenger seating and other safety requirements.

The Ethan Allen, a 40-foot glass-enclosed tour boat carrying 47 elderly passengers, overturned on Sunday on Lake George. Reports indicate the boat capsized so quickly that none of the passengers had enough time to get to the life preservers on board. Authorities confirmed 20 people died in the accident.

Because the IDNR is responsible for licensing all boats in Illinois, the department will evaluate:

- Placement of personal flotation devices, or life jackets, in relation to passenger seating
- Increased safety requirements for senior citizens and people with disabilities
- Appropriate passenger-to-crew ratios
- Placement and attachment of seating to prevent sudden shifts in weight
- Frequency and scope of safety inspections

If indicated by the National Transportation Safety Board report, Gov. Blagojevich will direct the Dept. of Natural Resources to undertake a comprehensive review of the Illinois Boat Registration and Safety Act.

Sports Valve

By Brad Allen

Welcome inside this week's sports valve. Sneak away from the world for a while! Shut the valve behind you. Thoughts of bills, un-mowed lawns, etc., aren't allowed in.

Pro Sports Valve: This column will be sub-titled, "Confession of a Cub Fan." And don't hold it against me that I'm a Cub fan. I have an alibi! As a small child, through an odd chain of events, I found myself on the field at Wrigley shootin' the breeze with Ernie Banks before a game. During the game, I got to sit in the pressbox with Jack Brickhouse. Then they fed me free hot dogs all afternoon until, unsuspectingly, I grew addicted to the Cubs before I had a chance to reach the age of reason.

That said, you'd think I would automatically root against the Sox. First and foremost, I'm rooting for the Dodgers and Tigers. No, I'm not delirious from Cub fever. I'm rooting for the Dodgers because of their managerial opening. A lifetime supply of toothpicks might just lure Dusty Baker safely away from my Cubs. Meanwhile, the Tigers are trying to sign our pitching coach, Larry Rothschild. Take him! I want a coaching staff that changes players from atrocious to ferocious - not vice versa.

Anyway, my confession is this: I was also pulling for the White Sox in the division series and I'm rooting for them again in the LCS! No, I haven't shamelessly switched allegiance and jumped on the Sox bandwagon. However, I will be tailing the bandwagon from a distance in my little blue Cubmobile just to see where it goes.

Why? First of all, White Sox success may have a shaming effect on the Cubs brass, thereby motivating them to make some moves based on a desire to put more wins on the board even if there are already butts in the seats. Secondly, from a baseball purist standpoint, I honestly admire what Kenny Williams and Ozzie Guillen have done. When it comes to structuring a successful batting order, I'm a staunch traditionalist. Your top two hitters must benefit your team with stolen bases and/or on-base-percentage, but even more so with intangibles - driving up pitch counts, putting physical and mental strain on opposing pitchers, diverting their attention from the middle of your order and causing opponents to play catch-up ball. So, the Sox went out and got the fastest guy in the majors in Podsednik and a disciplined Japanese hitter in Iguchi. Brilliant! That was just one of many moves I applaud the Sox for, and look where they are!

But do I want the Sox to go so far as to win the World Series? I'm undecided. After all, it is sort of an ongoing race between the Sox and Cubs to be the next to win it all. Actually, it's been more like a turtle race, but the Sox turtle appears to be scampering toward the finish line while the Cub turtle is frustratingly motionless.

Amateur Sports Valve: As I await your faxes (708-385-7811) telling me of local dramatic, athletic college and high school feats, I'll convey one of my experiences as we enter the purer-spirited amateur section of the sports valve.

When my son was ten, I coached his Bad News Bears style little league team. We got stronger as the season progressed and were coming off a series of dramatic unlikely playoff wins, the last of which saw us erase a 19-4 deficit despite being down to our last six outs.

We were staging another glorious rally in the next game, when the league officials walked up and declared an arbitrary time limit on the game. We had cut the other team's lead from 12 to 6, but were granted only five more minutes to stay alive in the playoffs. I argued to no avail.

When the opposing teams' pitcher finished tying, re-tying and double-knotting his shoelaces, my son, Paul, stepped up to the plate crestfallen over having been cheated out of a chance to win. He was a valuable, scrappy player, but he was still a little guy and had never homered.

The pitcher pitched. Paul swung. I don't know how he even saw the ball through his tears, but he made contact and the ball soared shockingly over and beyond the left fielder, bouncing to the next diamond. Rounding first, my son was beaming from ear to ear. Around second, the tears began streaming down his face again. As he made the turn at third and headed for home, his face twitched uncontrollably back-and-forth between smile and frown. When he crossed the plate, I ran to hug him, but I stopped. He had suddenly disappeared beneath a pile of eleven strangely elated teammates who had raced out of the dugout to share in the joy of his first ever home run even though their championship hopes were dashed artificially.

Sports Tip Valve: This tip has to do with increasing your threshold of pain. My old Tae Kwon Do master taught me this one. Growing up in Korea, he used to run up and down a mountain in his underwear in the dead of winter. Then, in the blazing sun of summer, he'd bundle up and do the same. Acclimating himself to such extremes, he claimed, desensitized him to pain. Fortunately he wasn't desensitized to the fact that there is a distinct shortage of mountains in Chicago. So, he told me, "Do the next best thing, grasshopper." That's when he told me about the shower trick. (Not advisable during water restrictions).

You simply get in the shower and gradually turn the faucet until you can barely stand the cold. Then, go the other way until you can hardly take the heat.

The second thing the master taught me was "never charge face-first into a 6'3" 3rd degree blackbelt's side kick." Well I remembered the shower trick, but I forgot the second thing. But believe it or not, I felt no pain. Later, I literally had to have my lip sewn back on after I caught a mouthful of foot during a match, but I was un-phased - thanks to the shower trick! In fact, I even got the last few shots in before my trip to the hospital. The black belt was declared the winner, but I still think my profuse bleeding unfairly prejudiced the decision. Exiting valve.

Runners At Risk For Nail Fungus

Citing the health risk of nail fungus to the growing population of runners in the U.S., the Road Runners Club of America (RRCA) is sponsoring "Best Feet Forward," a nationwide, year-long campaign to educate America's 10.4 million runners about the prevention and treatment of this progressive and potentially serious infection.

The "Best Feet Forward" program is rolling out to 20 marathons and other major running events throughout the country in 2005. A key part of this fun and energetic mobile health education program is the "Toe Truck," sponsored by Penlac Nail Lacquer (ciclopirox) Topical Solution, 8%. The Penlac "Toe Truck" is traveling to most of the events to provide runners and their families with free foot screenings by local podiatrists as well as information about foot and nail care. It will be stationed at the Chicago Marathon's Health and Fitness expo in McCormick Place Convention Center on Oct. 7th and 8th. This health education initiative is supported by Dermik Laboratories.

Runners, and in fact all exercise enthusiasts, are at risk of developing nail fungus because of the following risk factors, which are common to the running population:

- Nail trauma associated with running can make the nail bed more susceptible to fungal growth.
- Sweaty socks and tight athletic shoes promote a warm, moist environment that can contribute to the growth of the fungus.
- Because nail fungus is contagious, warm, moist environments such as communal showers and gym locker rooms are places where the fungus can be contracted.

Runners may have an increased risk of getting infected with nail fungus because of a greater exposure to specific risk factors, such as walking barefoot in contaminated areas (locker rooms and communal showers), exercising and wearing sweaty athletic socks.

If a person develops a fungus nail infection, an appropriate diagnosis is key for treatment. There are some physical signs that help medical professionals determine if a nail condition is due to fungi or some other problem. Because the fungus can invade the nail and spread, it is important to stop the progression of the disease at the first symptoms of infection. The successful treatment of nail fungus does not happen overnight, especially considering that the nails, particularly toenails, grow slowly. No matter which treatment is used, it can take about six months for fingernails to grow out and up to a year or more for toenails.

Effective treatments for nail fungus, including both oral and topical medications, are available by prescription. People should visit their doctor and find out what treatment is most appropriate for them.

Host Basketball Exhibition For Hurricane Victims

Moraine Valley Community College will play Trinity Christian College in a basketball exhibition game on Monday, Oct. 24th, in the Moraine Valley gym, 10900 S. 88th Ave., Palos Hills, to raise money for victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Admission to the contest will be $5 per person or $20 per family of four or more with 100 percent of the proceeds going to help the displaced victims of Katrina. Additional cash donations will be accepted as well. Game workers and referees are donating their time for the event.

"Some of our athletes asked me if they could forfeit their meal money for the Katrina victims. That got us started thinking of ways we could help," said Bill Finn, Moraine Valley Athletics director. "With basketball season starting soon, we contacted our friends at Trinity Christian College who eagerly jumped on board. The game workers will be predominately Moraine Valley student-athlete leaders."

For more information, e-mail Josh Reinhart, sports information contact, at reinhart@morainevalley.edu; or call (708) 974-5742.

On The Team

Kathleen D. Griffin and Mary Leyden of Orland Park and Mary Gallagher of Palos Park were members of the 11 member team from Countryside, IL who joined recreational league tennis teams from across the country as they competed for a national title at the USA League Tennis 4.0 Senior National Championships in Palm Springs, CA, held the weekend of Oct. 7 through the 9th. The championships were held at the Riviera Resort and Racquet Club and the Moore Tennis Academy. The championships determined the No. 1 men's and women's teams in the country at the 4.0 level.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the USA League Tennis Program. Established in 1980, it has grown from 13,000 participants in a few parts of the country in its first year, to over 570,000 players across the nation today, making it the world's largest recreational tennis league.

In USA League Tennis, players are grouped into six different ability levels, ranging from beginner (2.5) to advanced (5.0), based on the National Tennis Rating Program. Play consists of singles and doubles matches with the outcome based on team scoring. Players progress through a series of championships at the area and sectional levels culminating with the national championships. USA League Tennis is open to any USTA member age 19 and over. The league provides players with the opportunity to improve their skills, have fun, meet other players, travel throughout the country and compete in a USTA national championship.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

RAISING HEALTHY YOUNG EATERS

What's the best way to raise children with good eating habits? According to pediatric nutrition experts, it's all about taking a middle of the road path and exercising moderation with food. Avoid extremes when it comes to decisions about what to eat such as being too strict or giving total freedom. Your child, according to nutrition experts, will be more likely to grow up automatically regulating food intake if you respect the following assignment of responsibilities.

Your job as a parent. Be certain your house has good, healthy food for meals and snacks. You can count on children getting enough junk food when they are away from home.

*Make daily meal and snack times consistent. This way your child will use food for nourishment rather than to meet emotional needs.

*Provide regular family meals for children. Children who eat frequent family dinners have healthier diets—more fiber, calcium, and iron and less saturated fat. Family meals are the ideal opportunity for you to demonstrate positive eating behaviors and healthy food preferences since children acquire food habits from those around them. Eating together also strengthens family ties and enables your children to develop emotional security.

*Create a healthy emotional atmosphere when it comes to food and dieting. Food should be a health and nutrition issue rather than a weight issue for every member of the family. Don't pressure your child to be a certain weight, and don't single out a child to be fed differently because of weight. If an overweight child decides independently to lose weight, you may be a support person.

*Be a good role model. If you have a healthy relationship with food, your child is more likely to grow up with one. Set an example for your child that food is for health and nourishment rather than for entertainment or emotional needs.

*Encourage your children to be physically active. Limit their time in front of the television and playing on the computer, and involve them in fun types of exercise.

Your child's job. Let your child decide what to eat from the healthy foods you have made available. Don't make an issue of whether he or she tries a new healthy food or not. Serve new foods on a regular basis, since children are more likely to try a new menu item as it begins to look more familiar.

*Be a nurturing, attentive parent. Work on family issues so your child will be less likely to eat because of stress.

*Lastly, allow your child to choose how much to eat. If you limit the amount of food, your child may lose the ability to automatically regulate food intake.

Above all, after much observation and attempts to do the above, if you suspect a serious eating problem, do not hesitate to contact your child's pediatrician. Don't try to be the judge yourself.

Your child's job. Let your child decide what to eat from the healthy foods you have made available. Don't make an issue of whether he or she tries a new healthy food or not. Serve new foods on a regular basis, since children are more likely to try a new menu item as it begins to look more familiar.

Breast Cancer Screenings

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women. It is curable if found in the earliest stages. Today, nearly 2 million women have been treated for breast cancer and are living normal lives. It is important that women take the time to schedule yearly mammograms and educate themselves for a healthy future.

Cook County Commissioner Joan Patricia Murphy and the Dept. of Public Health will be conducting eligibility requirement screenings for women without insurance to qualify for free testing. The Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer Program will provide these important testing services at no cost at many medical locations throughout the area if you meet the eligibility guidelines. If screened through this program and found to have cancer, your treatment may also be covered through a special fund. All women over 40 years should stop by Commissioner Joan Patricia Murphy's information booth at the Crestwood Family Health Fair and see if they are eligible for the Breast and Cervical Cancer Program. Short educational lectures on breast cancer prevention will also be available throughout the day. Knowledge is the key to wellness!

The 8th annual Family Health and Fun Fair is being hosted by the Crestwood Fire Dept. on Saturday, Oct. 22nd. Doors open at 9 a.m. till 1 p.m. at the Nathan Hale Middle School, 5220 W. 135th St.

For more information, contact Community Outreach Coordinator Patrice Capuzzi at (708) 389-2125.

Open Massage Clinic

The South Suburban College Massage Therapy Dept. is opening a Student Massage Clinic starting in October for Massage Therapy Month. The Massage Therapy Clinic officially starts on Saturday, Oct. 15th and will continue for six consecutive Saturdays through Nov. 19th. The times for booking a 45-minute, full-body (table) massage are 8:30, 9:30, 10:30 and 11:30 a.m.

The cost of the full-body massage is only $25, a fraction of the typical cost for this massage. Additionally, 20-minute chair massages cost just $10. Appointments are needed for all massages and are open to the SSC faculty, staff, and especially the public. The Student Massage Therapy Clinic is located in Room 3152 of the main campus building at 15800 S. State St. in South Holland.

The SSC Massage Therapy Program provides students with the foundation of knowledge in theory and practice of current massage techniques. Students are well prepared to sit for the National and State licensing exams.

To schedule an appointment for a massage at the Clinic, call (708) 596-2000, ext. 2458.

Raise Funds To Fight MS

Organizers from the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and Chicago Tribune Charities raised a record-breaking $1.1 million at the 2005 Dinner of Champions, an annual benefit that raises much-needed funds to support research into a cure for multiple sclerosis (MS). The benefit was held on Thursday, Sept. 29th.

North Shore resident William A. Osborn, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Northern Trust Corp., served as Honorary Chairman for the signature fundraising gala, which was held at the Hilton Hotel in Chicago and featured entertainment by jazz legend Ramsey Lewis.

In line with the theme for the evening, gala attendees were encouraged to "believe in a world without MS" and to help the NMSS make that day a reality.

As part of the evening's event, organizers announced that the James Cantalupo Memorial Research Grant has designated funds for the creation of one of four pediatric MS Centers that will be built in the United States to ensure promising care and treatment for children with MS. As a result of funding from the grant, families will be able to see, in one visit, a pediatric neurologist, an MS neurology specialist, a pediatric psychiatrist and neuropsychologist, and an MS specialist nurse. Pediatric MS Centers will play a critical role in helping parents deal with the effects MS has on a child's educational, medical and social development.

Cole Named President

Courtney Cole, director of Physician Services at St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island, has been named president of the Illinois Staff Physician Recruiters (ISPR) group. This professional association supports in-house physician recruiters throughout Illinois in their efforts to locate and retain quality physicians for their respective health systems, hospitals and clinics.

She will serve a one-year term as ISPR president. Prior to becoming president, she served two years as ISPR vice-president. She currently chairs ISPR's annual Midwest Recruiters Conference and Physician Job Fair.

ISPR is comprised of more than 75 Illinois health systems, hospitals and clinics. The association provides networking opportunities, educational programs and communications mechanisms to link interested physician candidates with in-house recruiters. Cole has been a member of ISPR for the past four years.

Take Huge Step In Fight Against Breast Cancer

To celebrate breast cancer survivors in Illinois while remembering those who lost their battle to this disease, the American Cancer Society is hosting its sixth annual Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk on Oct. 16th along Chicago's lakefront.

Serving as one of the largest support groups for Illinois breast cancer survivors, the inspiring and heart-warming five-mile walk is expected to draw more than 10,000 survivors and supporters in an effort to educate the public on the disease and raise funds during Breast Cancer Awareness Month this October.

According to the American Cancer Society, an estimated 9,000 women in Illinois will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year and nearly 2,000 will die from the disease, which is the most commonly diagnosed cancer for Illinois women.

Starting at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 16th at Montrose Harbor, located at the northwest corner of Lawrence Ave. and Simonds Drive in Chicago, the Society's Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk is free and non-competitive, but participants are encouraged to collect donations and pledges. For more information on this event, call (312) 279-7376 or e-mail Chicago.strides@cancer.org.

More Than Just Calcium

New research confirms that children need more than calcium for strong bones. Such evidence emphasizes the need for children to eat a variety of nutrient-rich foods. Milk is naturally rich in calcium, protein, phosphorus and magnesium, making it the ideal food for strong bones.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. The chance that a woman will be diagnosed with breast cancer over her lifetime is 1 in 8. However, many men are diagnosed with breast cancer too. The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) continues conducting research into breast cancer to discover potential causes and to develop better diagnostics and treatments for this disease. Mammograms every year for women aged 40-70, especially for high-risk women who have had a first-degree relative diagnosed with breast cancer, are encouraged in order to help detect breast cancer at the earliest and most treatable stages. However, a VA study urges discreet use of mammograms for women older than 70, as the radiation exposure from mammograms may outweigh the potential benefits for elderly women in very poor health. Mammograms may detect cancer, but they do not prevent cancer. While the causes of breast cancer are still unknown, here are a few tips that may help reduce the risk of developing the disease.

Don't smoke, exercise regularly, and maintain a healthy weight. Studies show that excess weight may increase the risk of breast cancer; Eat fresh fruits and vegetables daily. The fiber, antioxidants, and other nutrients found in fresh fruits and vegetables may help reduce the risk of breast cancer and some other cancers; Conduct self-breast examinations monthly. Seventy percent of all breast cancers are found through self-breast exams. Reduce the negative stress in your life. Keeping a positive, relaxed outlook may be beneficial for the immune system, therefore, reducing the risk of some diseases.

Protect Homebuyers Against Discrimination

Building on his commitment to fight discrimination in Illinois, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Oct. 3rd announced a Fair Housing program to help protect homebuyers against discrimination in housing, and inform housing providers and community organizations working on housing issues about Illinois' new anti-discrimination laws. The Illinois Dept. of Human Rights (IDHR) will work with other state agencies to conduct a series of seminars over the next few weeks in Chicago, Decatur, Peoria and Rantoul, in partnership with Catholic Charities, the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, Access Living and Dove, Inc.

The Fair Housing training seminars will inform homebuyers, tenants, landlords, property owners, advertisers, housing advocates and community organizations about Illinois' anti-discrimination laws. Presentations will focus on discrimination during real estate transactions involving residential and commercial property to help homebuyers recognize and protect themselves from housing discrimination. Seminars will also include an overview on fair housing; housing rights of persons with disabilities; sexual harassment in housing; information on discriminatory occupancy codes; and information on how to file discrimination charges with IDHR.

Many Illinoisans face housing discrimination due to their race, color, national origin, physical or mental disability, religion, or because they have children. African Americans and Latinos experienced more than three million incidents of illegal housing discrimination in 2003 nationwide, and IDHR completed investigations of over 250 housing discrimination complaints in 2004 alone. Latinos in Illinois are under-represented in the percentage of homeowners, according to a study by the National Fair Housing Alliance. To address this issue, IDHR is partnering with organizations such as LULAC and Access Living that serve Latino clients and communities to conduct presentations in Chicago in both English and Spanish.

The training seminars will also include information from the Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA), the state agency that finances the creation and the preservation of affordable housing across Illinois. IHDA will distribute information on the governor's homeownership program I-LOAN Mortgage, which provides low and moderate-income families with down payment and closing cost assistance, and interest rates that are at least a half percent below the market rate.

Designed to help first-time homebuyers gain the stability and security that come from homeownership and begin to build equity in their homes, the I-LOAN Mortgage is a key component of Gov. Blagojevich's comprehensive housing plan, Building for Success. In 2003 Gov. Blagojevich created a task force to develop specific strategies to effectively use state resources to best meet the affordable housing needs of Illinois residents. He recently announced that IHDA has committed $175 million to the I-LOAN Mortgage program.

The Illinois Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation (IDFPR), which oversees bank and mortgage lending practices, will provide information that arms potential homebuyers against the trap of predatory lending - loans that cost more than a borrower can or should pay usually including excessively high interest rates and fees.

Rainfall Above Normal

Last month was the seventh warmest September since 1895 and the third warmest September on record in northeastern Illinois. It was also the fourth consecutive month of temperatures above normal and the seventh warmest June-September on record.

September rainfall averages 3.91 inches, 0.73 inches above normal, but rainfall since March averaged 18.90 inches, 7.12 inches below normal making this Illinois' sixth driest March-September since 1895. While most of the state enjoyed the extra rainfall in September, rainfall north of I-80 was only 2.79 inches, 0.54 inches below normal. Nashville had the highest one-day precipitation total with 3.58 inches on Sept. 20. Lebanon had the highest monthly total with 10.11 inches.

Now that October has arrived, the first fall frost becomes a concern for gardeners. Based on 1971-2000 averages, the first fall frost usually occurs between Oct. 7 (northern Illinois) and Oct. 21 (southern Illinois), with an average date of Oct. 14 in central Illinois (see map at http://www.sws.uiuc.edu/atmos/statecli/frost/avg_frost_map.GIF). An interesting feature of the map is the delay in the first frost date by about a week in the Chicago area, probably due to a combination of the warmer urban setting and the moderating influence of Lake Michigan.

Traffic Safety Hints

By Secretary of State Jesse White

It is increasingly common to see drivers engaged in a casual phone conversation as they drive down Illinois roads and highways. Having a cellular phone on-hand is a good security measure, but using a cellular phone improperly can create a serious traffic safety hazard.

To prevent your cellular phone from becoming a dangerous distraction, always remain focused on developing traffic conditions and use your cell phone in a safe and responsible manner.

Q. What precautions should I take when I use my car phone?

A. Make safe driving your number one priority by buckling-up; keeping your hands on the wheel, your eyes on the road and using a hands-free microphone. Also familiarize yourself with the operation of the phone while the car is parked; position your car phone where it is easy to see and reach; use the speed dial for frequently called numbers; pull over if you need to dial a number; never take notes while driving, pull over if you must read or write; and use voice mail to pick up your call if it is inconvenient or unsafe to answer the phone.

Cellular phone usage can lead to a significant increase in the time it takes to respond to a dangerous situation. It is best to use your cellular phone when your car is stopped. If you must use your phone while driving, dial in short segments, check the traffic situation and then dial again. Never allow your conversation to distract you from responsible driving.

On Medicare? You May Qualify For Extra Help To Pay For Prescription Drug Costs

By: John Flynn
Social Security District Manager

Medicare's new prescription drug program, which goes into effect in January 2006, is not just for older Americans. If you or someone you know is a Social Security disability beneficiary who is entitled to Medicare, the new prescription drug coverage program is available to you, too.

Open enrollment for the new plan runs from November 15, 2005 to May 15, 2006. But Social Security is now taking applications from Medicare beneficiaries who may be eligible for extra help to pay for monthly premiums, annual deductibles and prescription co-payments under the new prescription drug program. The extra help can save qualified beneficiaries an average of $2,100 per year.

To qualify for the extra help, a person or married couple living together must have limited income and resources. For an individual, your total annual income must be below $14,355 and your resources valued below $10,000. The limits for a married couple living together are higher, $19,245 in combined annual income and $20,000 in resources. These resources can be slightly higher—an additional $1,500 per person—if you will be using some of the money for burial expenses.

If you receive disability benefits from Social Security and are working, some of your earnings might not count towards those income and resource limits. In fact, less than half of your wages would be counted. If you have expenses for things that you need in order to keep working, they could be deducted from your earnings, too.

Social Security is now mailing letters to nearly 19 million Medicare beneficiaries who we have identified as potentially eligible for this extra financial help. The letter includes an application and a return-addressed, postage-paid envelope. If you get this application, please read it, complete it and return it to Social Security.

If you did not get a letter and application in the mail, but think you might qualify for the extra help, go to our website at www.socialsecurity.gov. Or you can contact Social Security at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-9778).

Some beneficiaries will automatically qualify for the extra financial help. Anyone who has both Medicare and Medicaid or Medicaid and Supplemental Security Income, or anyone, whose state pays his or her Medicare premiums, will not have to complete an eligibility application.

Also, it is important that all beneficiaries understand that even if they qualify for the extra help, they still need to enroll in a Medicare-approved prescription drug plan to obtain both coverage and the extra help.

Girl Scouts Are Ready For Action

As the school year is getting underway, Girl Scouting is also rolling out this year's opportunities for south suburban girls, five to 17 years old.

Most Girl Scout groups meet in troops at schools or other convenient locations, and are guided by adult volunteers. Those volunteers are encouraged to take advantage of free training offered by the South Cook County Council to learn about the program and the advantages it offers girls, gain group leadership skills, and get information on other topics.

Some events coming soon are the Midnight Madness Lock-In to tell girls about options for the year, including the chance to apply for national events, a leader-daughter overnight, Family Fun Friendly for Brownie families, weekend events at the council's Camp Palos and Friendship Center, chances to learn about personal safety and financial literacy, and a family evening at Chicago's Field Museum in January.

A trip to see "Wicked" at the Ford Oriental Theater in Chicago in January is already sold out.

Of special interest to girls ages 11 to 17 are STUDIO 2B activities. This is a strongly girl-centered approach, inviting greater girl participation in planning and scheduling.

Proposed activities for this year include scuba diving, live theater, skiing, "How to Be a Millionaire" to learn about entrepreneurship, "Big Rainbow, Small World" for Black History Month, a pajama party murder mystery, a live theater trip, and a dad-daughter event tied to skills related to the food and entertainment industries.

All these events, plus programs at the council's Camp Palos and Friendship Center, are offered in addition to the ongoing activities within troops and in-school groups.

Support for development of the council's programs on behalf of its membership comes from the fall nut and candy sale, the cookie sale program, family contributions, and other local funding sources including United Way.

Girl Scouting is the world's largest organization dedicated to helping all girls everywhere build character and gain skills for success in the real world. In partnership with committed adult volunteers, girls developing strong values, leadership skills, social conscience, and conviction about their own potential and self-worth that will serve them all their lives.

Anyone interested in more information about Girl Scouting in the South Cook County Council is invited to call the Council Service Center at (708) 957-8100.

Juvenile Recidivism Drops By More Than 15%, Marking Largest Decline On Record

Delivering on his promise to fight recidivism, increase public safety and reduce the cost of crime, Governor R. Blagojevich on Sept. 28th announced that juvenile recidivism has dropped by 15 percent, the largest decline on record; more than 50 percent of Sheridan parolees have been able to find and retain jobs; and more incarcerated veterans are receiving the necessary skills and support to help them avoid the cycle of returning to prison again and again for the same mistakes.

The Governor announced that the statewide juvenile parole technical violation rate has dropped by more than 15 percent, the largest one-year decline on record, bringing the number to its lowest rate since FY 2000. The dramatic decline is the result of the Illinois Department of Corrections (IDOC) Juvenile Division's efforts to improve social and educational services for incarcerated youths. The programs target young men and women, who are at risk of going back to prison and provides individualized drug treatments, counseling and education services and skills development to ease their transition back into society.

The Governor has directed the Juvenile Division of IDOC to aggressively find ways to improve juvenile services and reduce recidivism. The early impact of these results is the largest decline in juvenile parole violations on record in Illinois. From FY 2004 to FY 2005, the juvenile parole technical violation rate dropped by 15.8 percent, helping to bring the violation rate to its lowest level since FY 2000. A juvenile is in technical violation of his or her parole when, among other things they do drugs; rejoin their former gangs; skip school or work; or fail to check in with the parole officer.

IDOC successfully restructured all eight juvenile facilities in the state to keep incarcerated young men and women closer to their home areas. This helps the state promote family support systems and better coordinate reentry services.

Lewis & Clark Heritage Days

The Tri-Cities, located three hours south of both Seattle and Spokane WA., is home to a signature bicentennial event, Lewis & Clark Heritage Days. "Down the Great Columbia" This is a four day event featuring the National Park Service exhibit Corps of Discovery II: 200 Years to the Future.

The Celebration, held October 14-17, will now include exhibits and interpretation at both Sacajawea State Park in Pasco and Columbia Park in Kennewick.

Jet boat rides will be offered from Columbia Park to Sacajawea State Park. In addition, arrangement have been made for shuttle bus service between the two locations and are encouraging people to visit both sites, since each will reflect very different displays and interpretation. "Down the Great Columbia" will present compelling and entertaining programs that explore the region's ties to the historic Lewis & Clark Expedition.

Sacajawea State Park in Pasco, WA, will showcase a natural interpretive environment with perspectives and portrayals from both first-person interpreters and traditional tribal members. Organizers expect hundreds of historical re-enactors from across the nation to camp at Sacajawea State Park as they re-create the original expedition's route and campsites. The interpretive center will offer a chance to discover the Native Americans of this region. Planned living history presentations will include portrayals of Capt. Meriwether Lewis, George Drouillard, Patrick Gass, Joseph Whitehouse and John Shields - all of whom were members of the Corps of Volunteers for Northwest Discovery. Mountain Men will rendezvous, and trappers and traders will conduct life skills demonstrations. Tribal culture will also be a focal point of this historic site. (Present-day Sacajawea State Park, located at the confluence of the Snake and Columbia rivers, is where the expedition originally camped from Oct. 16 to 18, 1805.)

Columbia Park in Kennewick will host the National Park Service's traveling exhibit, Corps of Discovery II. Corps II components include an exhibit tent with audio tour, a keelboat replica, a teepee, and the Tent of Many Voices. The Tent of Many Voices is a venue for living history presentations, cultural arts demonstrations, folklore, music slide shows, panel discussions, interpretation of the journals, and more. Programs reflect a spectrum of nature, culture and historical topics of interest along the Lewis and Clark Trail in Washington State. On Saturday, Oct. 15th and Sunday, Oct. 16th, Columbia Park will also host commercial vendors who are expected to offer Lewis & Clark related books, mementos, souvenirs, and historical ephemera. Food vendors will provide a variety of treats and goodies.

The Dude Ranchers' Association Eyes 80th Anniversary

On the verge of its 80th anniversary, The Dude Ranchers' Assn. continues its heritage of assuring a quality and authentic dude ranch experience.

Ever since the late 1800s, working ranches have opened their doors to friends and families and shown them what Western hospitality is all about. The Dude Ranchers' Assn. dates to the birth of an organized group of dude ranches in Montana and Wyoming that began accepting paying visitors as a normal part of their operations.

The first organizational gathering of these dude-ranch pioneers occurred in Bozeman, Montana in 1926 at the urging of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which saw the dude ranches of the area as natural partners in the burgeoning tourism industry of the West. This meeting of ranchers from the Yellowstone area led to the formation of The Dude Ranchers' Assn. currently headquartered in Cody, Wyoming.

Since its inception eight decades ago, The Dude Ranchers' Assn. has overseen quality control for its industry and provided invaluable assistance in pointing guests toward a suitable ranch. The screening process to become a DRA member is rigorous and demanding, including references from guests, on-site inspections, and a probationary period for new members of at least a year.

Each of the association's 114 member ranches across the western United States and Canada have passed its tests for safety, proper care of horses and equipment, clean rooms in good repair, and dedication to the preservation of the traditional dude ranch experience.

The Dude Ranchers' Assn. publishes a free directory of member ranches, neatly organized to help guests narrow down their vacation options. Trip planning information is also available online, and telephone inquiries are encouraged. For more information, call (307) 587-2339, visit www.duderanch.org, or email info@duderanch.org.

Popular Hotel Booking Program Expands In Seattle

Seattle, WA. Convention & Visitors Bureau (SCVB) has announced that its popular Seattle Super Saver hotel booking program will operate year-around.

Running from mid-fall through March for its first 13 seasons, Seattle Super Saver has been expanded and is offering hotel savings throughout the city's high tourism season for the first time. With the program's summer success, perennial appeal to travel consumers and endorsement by Seattle's hotel community motivated the move toward year-around operation.

The SCVB overhauled the program's website, spending $100,000 on the construction of an online booking engine which has helped position the program as an alternative to the web-based hotel booking companies.

Book travel at the redesigned www.seattlesupersaver.com or call (800) 535-7071. Phone reservationists personally inspect each property and can advise callers of hotel features and location, as well as make bookings.

On The Autumn To Do List

The thermostat is turned to "heat." Shorts and tank tops are replaced by sweaters and jackets. The car gets winterized. And you plan to get a flu shot. The Cook County Dept. of Public Health is reminding residents that a flu shot should be a top priority this fall.

Influenza, commonly called the flu, is caused by a virus that infects the nose, throat and lungs. Generally, the flu includes symptoms such as fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, headache, muscle aches and fatigue. Flu is highly contagious and spreads easily from person to person, primarily when an infected person coughs or sneezes. The flu can be particularly dangerous to the elderly or people with chronic illness who can't fight the debilitating effects of the virus.

Disparities in health care have been well documented in recent decades across a broad range of medical conditions and for a wide range of populations, particularly African-Americans and Hispanics.

Because of the highly contagious nature of the flu, Dr. Stephen Martin, Jr., CCDPH chief operating officer, is reminding residents that a flu shot protects not only the person receiving the immunization, but it protects others from getting sick too.

The flu kills almost 36,000 people yearly, and hospitalizes 200,000, 90% of them age 65 and older. Healthy children aged 6 months to 23 months, and caregivers of children younger than 6 months are also encouraged to receive flu shots because children younger than 24 months may be at higher risk for complications from influenza.

Typically, flu shots are given in the autumn months so that protection can last during an entire season

(December through March). Because the influenza virus changes from year to year, it is important to get vaccinated with a new flu vaccine every year. Contrary to what some may believe, people cannot get the flu from a flu shot.

The flu vaccine will be available at CCDPH immunization clinics through the end of March and are provided at no cost to eligible suburban Cook County residents. In addition to the clinics operated by CCDPH, the health department is providing vaccine to the American Lung Assn. (ALA) as well as several local Cook County health departments, townships and senior agencies.

CCDPH is recommending flu shots for:

- People 2-65 with chronic illness (heart, lungs, kidney disease, asthma)
- Residents of long term care facilities
- People 65 years of age and older
- Infants 6-23 months of age and anyone who lives in a household with an infant between 0-23 months of age and/or
- Anyone who lives in a household with a person with chronic disease or cares for a person with high risk medical conditions
- Health care workers who provide direct patient care
- Pregnant women

For information on clinic days and hours, call the district office that serves your area: Southwest-Bridgeview: (708) 974-6160; South-Markham: (708) 210-4500.

For complete information on CCDPH flu clinics, log onto www.cookcountypublichealth.org, or call (708) 492-2000.

Priceless Ceiling Mural Saved In Bloomington Mansion

What do you do when the ceiling falls in, and the repair bill will put your budget through the roof? If it's the 102-year-old painted canvas ceiling at the David Davis Mansion State Historic Site in Bloomington, you let the experts fix it - for free.

The saga began July 21st, in the middle of the hottest summer in recent memory, at the 1872 vintage David Davis Mansion, one of Bloomington's most popular historic tourist attractions. A malfunctioning air-conditioning unit in the second floor of the Victorian mansion spilled 20 gallons of water that seeped through the floor and saturated the ceiling of the formal parlor below. An original, intricately painted canvas mural adorns the ceiling.

The estimated cost to repair the ceiling was $30,000. The work requires special knowledge and techniques that are rare and expensive. Unfortunately, the budget to fix the ceiling was in the basement; tight state finances allowed little leeway for repairs of this magnitude.

But the word got out concerning the mansion's predicament. Soon, craftspeople and businesses in the Bloomington-Normal area began offering to donate the skilled labor and materials to repair the ceiling. Marc Svensson, owner of the painting and wall-covering business in Bloomington that bears his name, reinstalled the canvas, prepared it for painting, and applied the solid background color that encompasses most of the canvas. Svensson is a graduate of the American School of Paperhanging Arts. Decorative artist Richard Schaad of Normal assembled the restoration team and did the fine-arts repainting of the floral artwork in the mural. Mel Wollenschlager, master plasterer from Bloomington, removed and re-plastered the mildewed areas of the plaster substrate. John Svensson, Marc's brother, and Michael Henning, decorative artist from Normal, assisted with the canvas reinstallation.

Experts from across the country in wallpaper hanging, historic adhesives and other technical crafts, inspired by the local labor and materials donations, offered to provide free advice and guidance so the project would follow approved historic preservation and conservation methods. Mansion officials even received assistance from the man who installs period wallpapers at the White House. "The result is more than just a repair," said Young. "It's the accurate and appropriate restoration of a one-of-a-kind, hand-painted piece of art."

The donated labor and materials did not stop at the ceiling. Associated Constructors of Bloomington donated the painters' scaffolding and Don Smith Paint and Wallpaper of Bloomington donated the metal bracing system. In addition, employees of a local corporation have donated their personal time to survey the mansion's climate control systems and make recommendations for retrofitting and maintenance to prevent leaks from happening in the future. Plumbers and Pipefitters Union Local 99 is donating the services of skilled craftsmen to repair the moisture-soaked insulation and leaking valves that partly contributed to the problem.

The Davis Mansion canvas, made of hemp and covered with six layers of paint, is a 1903 post-fire replacement of the original 1872 ceiling, a decorative mural painted directly on plaster by St. Louis artist August Becker. Becker's original artwork can still be seen on the other plaster ceilings of the mansion's first floor. The 1903 replacement is a 400-square-foot canvas that was glued to the ceiling and then painted in place by a Bloomington painting contractor, C.E. Russell. The decorative design consists of a border of multi-colored stripes with corner floral motifs.

The David Davis Mansion State Historic Site is located at 1000 E. Monroe in Bloomington, and is open Wednesday through Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for free public tours. It was built in 1872 for U.S. Supreme Court Justice David Davis, a close friend and associate of Abraham Lincoln, and Davis' wife Sarah.

Statement From Rev. Michael Boland

I wish to update the public on Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago's continued efforts to assist the evacuees coming to us from areas stricken by Hurricane Katrina.

To date, Catholic Charities has provided emergency assistance to 450 evacuees who have come to Chicago in the wake of the storm. Because Catholic Charities has eight emergency assistance centers in Chicago and its suburbs, our agency was able to begin assisting evacuees as soon as they reached the Chicago area.

We have provided shelter to 250 individuals - 47 families - both in traditional shelters that we were able to prepare with the help of local parishes and volunteers and in apartments that many parishes in the Archdiocese of Chicago helped us to sponsor. These individuals have also received food, clothing, shelter, counseling and financial assistance from our agency, as have another 200 evacuees who came to live with family members in Chicago but came to Catholic Charities in need of other emergency help.

To date, Catholic Charities has received $110,000 through the generosity of our donors, which we have sent to Catholic Charities USA for direct assistance to Catholic Charities agencies in the Gulf. We estimate that another $500,000 has been collected by archdiocesan parishes.

Catholic Charities is still in need of funds, gift cards, food and winter coats for our evacuees, who will have ongoing needs in the coming months. Those who wish to donate can call Catholic Charities' Disaster Relief Donation Hotline at (312) 655-7174. The donation hotline is updated daily to inform our donors of our evacuees' most pressing needs.

I am extremely grateful to the Archdiocese of Chicago and its parishes for their donations and volunteer efforts, which have assisted us in helping these 450 evacuees. We are blessed in Chicago to have a community of faith that is willing to do so much to help its brothers and sisters in need.

Safety Officer Event

The Public Safety Officers Fund began as a glimmer of an idea after Jack DeHeer was awarded duty-disability from the Chicago Police Department. As a highly decorated Chicago Police Officer, Jack was assigned to Tactical Units and the Gun Task Force. Jack was permanently disabled in March of 2000.

Since then, Jack and his cohorts at Public Safety Officers Fund have been coming up with ideas for raising funds with fun. Proceeds benefit families of policemen and firemen who are either deceased or were disabled in the line of duty.

One such event that is upcoming is the seven day Carnival Victory Cruise of the Eastern Caribbean on Sunday, Jan. 22nd, 2006. Set sail from the port of Miami to San Juan where you will enjoy the nightlife enroute to St. Maarten and, finally, St. Thomas and the duty free shops of Charlotte Amalie.

Tickets are $549 for interior, $699 for oceanview and $799 for balcony accommodations. A $250 deposit is required. Contact Patty at (866) 362-8822 or visit www.PSOFF.org. Hurry! Time's a wasting.

Tribute Gift Cards Available

What is a tribute? Webster's dictionary defines a tribute as "a gift or service showing respect, gratitude or affection."

Among all living memorials which one can bestow on present and future generations, none is greater than the gift of health. That is the purpose of the St. Francis Hospital Auxiliary Tribute Gifts.

Contributions become a part of the living hospital, and the deceased are memorialized as a permanent record in the Auxiliary's beautiful Memorial Book. Tribute Gift Cards are available in the St. Francis Gift Shop, and an acknowledgment will be made to the donor and to the family of the enrolled.

In addition, Tribute Gift Contributions can be made to the St. Francis Auxiliary when someone is a hospital patient, ill at home, has a birthday or an anniversary, and for any other eventful occasion.

For more information about Tribute Gift Contributions, visit or call the St. Francis Hospital Gift Shop in Blue Island at (708) 597-2000, ext. 5265.

Illinois Principals Association 34th Annual Statewide Conference

The Illinois Principals Association (IPA) is holding its 34th Annual Principals Professional Conference Oct. 16-18 in Springfield. Approximately 850 principals, assistant principals and deans from throughout the state will gather together to hear outstanding educational leaders and participate in educational sessions on how they can better serve their schools. This year's theme is "Simply the Best."

The kick off event will be a reception Sunday evening at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum, which honors IPA Past Presidents. Dr. Mike Schmoker, a nationally renowned speaker, will keynote the opening session on Monday with "First Things First: 'Big Levers' for Creating the Best Schools We've Ever Had." Dr. Randy Dunn, Illinois State Superintendent of Schools will update attendees on the state of education in Illinois at the Second General Session. Dr. Douglas Reeves, founder of the International Center for Performance Assessment, will present the Third General Session on Tuesday on "Leadership for Learning: Transforming Research into Action." The closing session hosted by the Illinois High School Association and Illinois Elementary School Association has Stephen Bargatze, an internationally acclaimed comedian and motivator presenting.

Legal and legislative updates, technology demonstrations and small group sessions on topics affecting school administrators and schools will also be offered over the course of the two days. This year's topics include ISAT and PSAT Testing, Leadership Practices, Hazing, Student Performance, Academic Improvement, "No Child Left Behind," Performance Excellence, Curriculum Alignment, Emergency Response Plans, Child Nutrition, Student Activities, and much more.

One of the highlights of the conference will be the Awards Program where recognition is given for excellence in school administration. The IPA "Awards for Excellence" recognizes outstanding achievement in the areas of Innovative Education, Partners in Education, Community Service, and Friends of Education. In addition, outstanding educational leadership is recognized through the Illinois Principals Association and National Association of Elementary School Principals and National Association of Secondary School Principals with the Herman Graves, Assistant Principal of the Year, Principal of the Year and National Distinguished Principal award programs.

Additionally, on Monday the conference offers one of the largest educational exhibitions in Illinois for attendees to see the latest in educational products and services. An Internet Café will be available in the exhibit hall, which provides a venue to learn more about computers, websites and the Internet. Another exciting feature is the Virtual Conference and Tradeshow that will run through March 2006 located on the IPA webpage at www.ilprincipals.org. Opportunities are also available for attendees to purchase resource materials on site at the Bookstore. The Illinois Association of School Administrators will have a Job Fair on Tuesday to facilitate career advancement opportunities for principals.

Dear Editor:

With so many causes competing for a person's time, energy and financial contributions, we know it can be difficult to choose where to direct support. We wish to thank the thousands of people who chose to direct their support to the 4th Annual ALS Walk4Life, which was held on September 10th along the Chicago lakefront. Their positive spirits made the event a warm and welcoming celebration of life. Community and courage and their generosity helped raise nearly $700,000 for programs that benefit people affected by ALS (Lou Gehrig's disease).

Funds raised through the ALS Walk4Life support the Les Turner ALS Foundation, which is one of the nation's largest independent non-profit ALS organizations, serving more than 650 patients annually. The Foundation funds research programs, a patient clinic, in-home services, a tissue bank, support groups, communication and equipment banks and educational programs.

ALS is a fatal neuromuscular disease that attacks the motor neurons, making even the simplest movements - walking, speaking, and gesturing - nearly impossible. For people with ALS, the body deteriorates, often to the point of total paralysis, yet the mind usually remains unaffected. Currently, the causes of ALS are only partially understood and there is no cure.

Again thank you to everyone who supported this important event. To learn more about the Les Turner ALS Foundation, call 847-679-3311 or visit www.lesturnerals.org.

Whenever people come together, join in common cause, there is hope.

Sincerely,

Wendy Abrams
Executive Director

Cook County Jail Garden Harvest Festival

More than 6,000 pounds of fresh vegetables have been produced by a garden kept by Cook County Jail inmates as part of a unique co-operative effort by the Sheriff's Office and the University of Illinois, officials announced at the jail's 11th annual Harvest Festival.

Ten inmates who worked on the garden this year were awarded Master Gardener certificates during a ceremony held recently at the jail. They were honored for completing a 60-hour University of Illinois Extension gardening program. Sheriff Sheahan (right) and Ron Wolford of the University of Illinois Extension present a diploma to a jail inmate who completed the Master Gardener program.

In 1994, the Cook County Sheriff's Office began a joint project with the University of Illinois Extension to create a small garden on property located immediately south of Cook County Jail. Each year since that time, non-violent inmates from the jail have sowed, planted and harvested from Spring through Fall, resulting in a bounty of fresh vegetables that are provided to local charities. This year's crop is being donated to two local nursing homes.

Since its inception 11 years ago, the garden has produced more than 50,000 pounds of fresh produce that have been donated to dozens of charities. This year's crop includes zucchini, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, peppers, lettuce and eggplant.

The 10,000 foot garden is tended by inmates who are remanded to a substance abuse treatment program for drug addicted offenders in the Sheriff's Department of Community Supervision and Intervention (DCSI). The inmates are awaiting trial or serving short sentences for mostly drug-related charges and are held in a specialized facility on the jail compound adjacent to the garden.

IDOT Urges Drivers To Focus On Safety During Their Daily Commute

Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin announced a national, state and local effort to increase safety and driving awareness while commuters drive to and from work. Secretary Martin called on Illinois drivers to participate in the Drive Safely Work Week, a national campaign designed to emphasize the importance of driving safely, both on and off the job.

IDOT's Division of Traffic Safety urges motorists to be ready to make critical driving decisions, be set for the unpredictable behavior of other drivers, and be focused so that you can react quickly and correctly in any situation.

The Network of Employers (NETS) sponsors Drive Safely Work Week for Traffic Safety. NETS is working to address the environmental, mental and physical distractions that drivers engage in and encounter on our nation's roads.

Employees spend more time on the road than ever before and have unprecedented access to mobile and in-vehicle technologies. If not managed and used responsibly while driving, these new technologies could impair a driver's focus and result in a crash.

It is estimated that a driver makes 200 decisions for every mile of driving. The IDOT Division of Traffic Safety strongly urges Illinois residents to buckle up every time, every trip. Increasing the overall safety belt usage rates helps IDOT and DTS achieve the goal of reducing injuries and fatalities on Illinois roadways.

Here are a few tips for drivers to keep in mind before getting behind the wheel: plan your route ahead of time, ensure that your car is in good working order, and keep your trunk stocked with essential items for an emergency.

Dear Editor:

Vice President Cheney says the war on terror is going to take decades—decades mind you.

This morning, President Bush gave a rousing speech reaffirming his war on Iraq and I'm moved. I want to fight for my country, spread some democracy, occupy foreign lands, shoot and awe the insurgents, stay the course and let those Muslim fundamentalists know that I'm not a sissy.

I told my wife, "Wife, I'm going to enlist. I want to head straight for Baghdad and fight the terrorists."

"You're too old," she said.

"I'm only 61," I retorted and "Who better than an old fart like me? Some 18 or 25 year old with a whole life in front of him and a family to support?"

"You're not physically fit for active duty," my wife saliently pointed out.

"Fitness isn't the issue. Fit or unfit if your driving a Humvee down a road in Iraq to deliver supplies, young or old, when an improvised incendiary device blows up, you are history or a disabled casualty of war. Age has nothing to do with it. Like I said—better me than some youngster in his prime who had little hand in making the decision to invade Iraq all over himself."

"It's my generation that got Bush into the White House and America in to Iraq. I should have known better than to give Bush a second term once he shocked and awed me with "Bombs for Baghdad," once he choose The Patriot Missile over the preservation of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, once he rejected the Kyoto Protocol despite global warming, once he declared victory in fighter-pilot costume before the war even started. Need I go on?"

"Honey, you're potbellied, over-the-hill and need an afternoon nap in order to have the energy to catch the 9 o'clock news in a prone position," my wife taunted.

"I'm going. Even my Democratic congressman says we gotta stay the course, just like Bush says. There must be something to this Middle East war I'm missing."

"But Honey."

"Honey nothing, I'm a killer. Well, I could be a killer. I'm no sissy. I can stay the course. Candy for the kids, bullets for the dads. I'm up for it. To hell with Jane Fonda. Give women the vote but off their fundamentalist old man. Let's kick some ass. Bush has me fired up for war."

"Bush wants to borrow a half trillion more to finance the war another two years. What do you say to that? Your Social Security payments could be on the line."

"What's a half trillion dollars when democracy is at stake. (Who's he gonna borrow it from?) The terrorists will be bombing our subways, shootin' down Fun Jets and taking laps in our backyard pool unless we face 'em in Fallujah. Better in the sands of Iraq than on the deck of our pool, I say."

"Now Jim, you're just being silly," my dear wife summarized.

"Gimme a gun and a uniform, and I'll show you how silly I am. Bring 'em on. Like Bush—I got a 2S-student deferment out of Vietnam and I've always felt a bit guilty. The service is hard up without a draft and—Bush wants me. Donald Rumsfeld will be lucky to have me."

"Assuming you get to Baghdad, Dear—would you put more Muslims in Abu Ghraib prison or let some out?"

"All depends—Dear. First things first. First I have to pass my physical, get my shots and update my passport. But I'll bet you health care, balanced budgets, tax cuts for the rich and the United Nations—more war's a coming."

What will they have longer, their trophies or their injuries?

Physical activity is a great way for kids to build strength and stay healthy. Unfortunately, it can sometimes lead to injury. Proper bone repair is immediate. What's the solution? The answer is simple: use the right equipment.

St. Linus Students Celebrate International Day For Peace

Third graders at St. Linus School recently celebrated International Peace Day. Under the guidance of teachers, Mrs. Geri McGovern and Mrs. Therese Moran, students made pinwheels and decorated them with peace prayers they wrote after classroom discussions regarding the need for each to work for peace and harmony in their own individual way. The students joined in song and prayers for peace as they planted their windmills in the grounds by the school entranceway.

Flood Damaged Cars Coming Into Illinois

Free Carfax Flood Checks (www.carfax.com/flood) are now available to help prevent consumers from unknowingly buying a flood-damaged car.

Carfax also has developed an advisory that identifies any vehicle last registered in a Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) disaster area. The advisory will appear through the Flood Check and Carfax Vehicle History Report for applicable vehicles.

Current estimates are that 571,000 cars may have been destroyed following Hurricane Katrina and could be significantly higher because of Hurricane Rita. Over the coming months, Carfax will be working with law enforcement, state agencies and private companies to make sure all of these vehicles are properly branded.

LEGAL NOTICE

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

Cook County Assessor James M. Houlihan, in an effort to provide taxpayers with more information, is publishing this list of the 2005 proposed assessed values of residential property in Worth Township.

Residential property owners in Worth Township were recently mailed a "Notice of Proposed Assessed Valuation" for their properties. If you are a residential property owner in this township, your assessment notice and this publication will allow you the opportunity to check the accuracy of your proposed assessed valuation.

For your convenience, the Property Index Number (PIN), of each property is matched to its address where available. Each property's neighborhood code and classification is also provided to serve as a guide in finding comparable properties to your own. The property's classification is determined by our office and is an indicator of the type and style of your home. It is not necessary to research and find comparable properties in order to file an assessment appeal with our office. Our analysts will check properties comparable to yours to see if your value is out of line. If you do wish to find comparable properties however, you may examine the assessments of properties in your neighborhood, which are of the same classification and type as your home. This will indicate if your property is uniformly assessed.

You should consider filing an assessment appeal with the Assessor's Office if you think your new proposed assessed valuation is too high compared to similar properties in your area. You may also file an appeal if you believe there is an error in the description of your property, which is found on your notice. However, a minor error does not necessarily indicate an incorrect assessment. Finally, you may also consider an appeal if you believe your new proposed assessed valuation is too high for any other reason. All appeals for Worth Township must be filed with the Cook County Assessor's Office by November 18, 2005.

The Cook County Assessor's Office is in the process of completing an extensive project of matching property addresses with property index numbers. The Assessor is seeking help from the public to correct addresses and complete the project. If you find any errors in our property address, please report them by calling (312) 443-7550.

If you have not received your "Notice of Proposed Assessed Valuation" in the mail, have any questions regarding your notice, or need assistance filing an assessment appeal with our office, please contact our Taxpayer's Information Department at (312) 443-7550.

Furry Forecaster Fitted with "Braces" To Straighten Teeth

What would you do if a woodchuck couldn't chuck wood because of crooked teeth? You would fit him with braces. At least that is what Brookfield Zoo's chief veterinarian, Dr. Tom Meehan, did for Stormy, a 5-year-old groundhog. And it appears to be working!

Groundhogs have two bottom and two top incisors that continuously grow throughout their lives. As the teeth grow, they are naturally worn down when the animal gnaws on wood and other objects. However, for unknown reasons, Stormy's bottom incisors began growing in crooked about 10 months ago, and thus not wearing down on their own. Every several weeks, Stormy has had his teeth trimmed so he is able to chew his food properly.

To find a "fitting" solution for Stormy's situation and hopefully to eventually reduce the number of trimmings, zoo veterinarians consulted with Dr. John Sheels, a dentist from Milwaukee who also specializes in animal dentistry. One option was to extract the teeth, but the procedure would be quite invasive. The teeth start back under the groundhog's ears and come through around to the lower jaw, forming a semi-circle to the front. Only about 10 to 20 percent of the teeth are visible. Another alternative, and the one that was chosen, was to fit him with a wire brace and continue to monitor the angle the teeth are growing - sort of like going to the orthodontist.

This past August, Dr. Meehan wired Stormy's bottom incisors together to help correct the crookedness. To keep the brace in place, notches were filed on the outside of each tooth. After several checkups, it appears the teeth are beginning to straighten. Although this procedure has not been attempted before at the zoo, veterinarians are quite optimistic that Stormy will not be called "metal mouth" or "tinsel teeth" for the rest of his life, nor will he have to endure the dreaded retainer or rubber bands.

Zoo guests can visit Stormy in the Children's Zoo. For now he is being housed separately from his exhibit mates - another groundhog, a skunk and a raccoon. But hopefully he will be able to take center stage on Feb. 2nd as all eyes will be on the zoo's resident meteorologists for their annual weather predictions.

Pumpkin Carving

Pumpkin carving will be featured at the Family Night cookout at The Children's Farm, 12700 Southwest Highway, Palos Park, on Sunday, Oct. 23, at 5 p.m.

Families with members from all generations are invited to attend. After a hayride to the pumpkin patch and a cookout dinner, families will carve jack-o-lanterns and then circle around a campfire with their pumpkins glowing. The evening climaxes with stories, songs, a witch-cackling contest, and marshmallows to roast on the campfire.

The Center's Camp Committee sponsors the family night dinners as benefits for the Camp Scholarship Fund, which enables children to come to summer camp who would otherwise be financially unable to do so.

Family Night programs cost $12 per adult and $6 per child, and require advance registration. For reservations and further information, interested persons should call The Center at (708) 361-3650.

Red Ribbon Week Planned For October

The red ribbon committee is planning the kickoff to their fall event on Friday, October 21st. Youth and their families are invited to join with teachers, business people, and other volunteers from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on the Village green in the center of town. Games and activities are hosted by different schools and other groups. Refreshments are available at a nominal charge.

The theme selected for this year is "I have better things to do than drugs." The kickoff officially begins a weeklong celebration that continues with more activities and programs, sponsored individually by each school. The event coincides with the national red ribbon campaign, featuring drug and alcohol awareness and prevention.

Members of the red ribbon committee have been meeting since the beginning of the new academic year. Volunteering their time are representatives from schools, businesses, social service agencies, and non-profit organizations, including (left to right, seated) Joyce Skuhic of Oak Lawn-Hometown Middle School, Mary Egan of Oak Lawn Community High School District 229, Cindy Julian of Oak Lawn-Hometown Middle School, (left to right, standing) Ann Francis of Simmons Middle School, Maureen Schifferdecker of Saint Linus School, Laura Shallow of Fifth Third Bank, Jim Pacetti of the Oak Lawn Police Department, Kathy Stangel of Oak Lawn-Hometown Middle School, David Downen and Missy Godfrey of the YMCA Network. Congressman Lipinski Raises Alarm About Skyrocketing Home Heating Costs

Congressman Dan Lipinski expressed his concern Oct. 11th over the alarming rise in natural gas prices and the effect they will have on home heating bills in the Chicago area this winter. He joined U.S. Representatives Jan Schakowsky, Bobby Rush, and Danny Davis of Illinois to hear expert testimony on the situation from state and city officials, as well as representatives from the Illinois Commerce Commission, Citizen Utility Board, Nicor Gas, Peoples Energy, and the American Gas Association.

Natural gas prices are increasing significantly and are having a huge impact on heating costs. Even before recent increases, Illinois residents were paying 44 percent more for natural gas than in 1999. And prices are expected to rise an additional 40 to 70 percent this year.

"The dramatic price increases will force some very hard decisions, especially for those on fixed incomes," Lipinski said. "Seniors will be forced to choose between paying for heat and medication, and some families will choose between heat and food. These are proud individuals, hard workers who will suddenly find themselves having to make difficult choices between basic necessities. I fear that the sky-high prices could even prove to have deadly consequences this winter."

"But we will not just feel this impact in our home heating bills," added Lipinski. "As a member of the Small Business Committee I have heard from a number of business owners in my district who are concerned about the impact of increasing natural gas prices. As some businesses pass on these costs, families will face rising prices on everything from milk to clothing. Those owners who cannot pass on the costs may have to lay off employees and possibly face the loss of their business."

"And I don't think that this is a problem that only affects people living 'somewhere else.' Many of those turning to my office for assistance with their heating bills come from communities like La Grange Park, Riverside and Palos Hills."

"I will continue to work with my colleagues in Congress, as well as local communities and businesses, to find tangible solutions to this problem."

Waive Reconnection And Deposit Fee

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Oct. 11th that Illinois' major utility companies - Ameren, Nicor Gas and Peoples Energy - have agreed to his request to waive reconnection fees and suspend deposit requirements for customers receiving benefits through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Commonwealth Edison will waive deposits for LIHEAP customers living in buildings heated entirely by electricity. In September, Gov. Blagojevich requested that the utilities suspend the fees and deposits to ensure that LIHEAP funding was being used directly for heating costs, not administrative add-ons, for low-income Illinois residents coping with unprecedented increases in home heating costs projected for this winter.

Waiving the reconnection fees and suspending deposits will allow disconnected customers to get their home heating service restored with a LIHEAP pledge to pay their past due balance. With LIHEAP funds covering actual usage charges only, and not administrative reconnection fees and security deposits which can add more than $400 to a bill, the state can help thousands more low-income households with their heating costs this winter.

Through LIHEAP, a state and federally-funded energy assistance program run by the Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Service, heating bill payments are made on behalf of households with incomes of up to 150 percent of the federal poverty level. Gov. Blagojevich made LIHEAP funding available on Sept. 1st to households with elderly or disabled members and those currently without home heating due to service disconnection to meet their winter heating needs. On Nov. 1st, all LIHEAP eligible households will be allowed to apply.

For a complete listing of LIHEAP's local administering agencies and additional information about the grant program, go to www.liheapillinois.com, or call the toll-free LIHEAP information line at 1(800) 252-8643.

Congressman Dan Lipinski Announces Re-Election Campaign

U.S. Rep. Dan Lipinski announced on Oct. 12th that he will seek reelection as Congressman for the Third District in 2006.

"Serving as the U.S. Representative of the Third District has been a great honor," said Lipinski, a Western Springs resident. "More importantly, it has given me a tremendous opportunity to help improve the quality of life for the people I represent."

Although a Member of Congress for only nine months, Lipinski, a former educator, has already built a reputation as a public servant who is accessible to his constituents — he has held more than a dozen town hall meetings, roundtables, and other similar events — and who can work with his colleagues to help his constituents and for the good of the country. For instance, Lipinski was able to obtain $126 million in funding for transit improvements in and around the Third District in the recently enacted Transportation Bill.

Illinois General Assembly Speaker Michael Madigan called Congressman Lipinski a public official who keeps his word and gets the job done, especially on projects like CREATE.

"I am proud to endorse Dan because he understands that a public official's first priority is to work with the people in his district to help make their lives better," said Madigan, who also serves as Chairman of the Illinois Democratic Party. "His leadership, especially on the CREATE program and other transportation projects, will mean a better quality of life for his constituents."

State Sen. Louis Viverito of Burbank pointed to Congressman Lipinski's push to move the Central Avenue Overpass Project forward in endorsing his reelection.

"The Congressman has really hit the ground running in pushing for this vital project that will make life much easier for those who live, work, shop and commute in our region," Viverito said.

Cook County Commissioner John Daley said another project championed by Congressman Lipinski — authorizing funding to extend the CTA's Orange Line Elevated Train down Cicero Ave. to Ford City — will mean more economic opportunity for the entire Chicago area.

"With the Orange Line extension, people from all over the region will be able to easily access the booming area around Midway Airport without putting more cars on the roads," Daley said.

As a member of the Committee on Small Business and the Committee on Science, Rep. Lipinski has been a leader in preserving and creating the jobs that built the American middle class. He sponsored and guided through the House of Representatives the Steel & Aluminum Act, which would help the metals industry research and invest in new technologies to remain globally competitive. Lipinski also has worked diligently to level the economic playing field with countries like China, and recently brought to Bedford Park a Field Hearing of the Committee on Small Business to discuss preserving American manufacturing jobs.

Lipinski has also been a leader in the fight to improve our health care system. The Congressman's Hospital Price Disclosure Act would make the costs of common medical procedures available on the Internet to help consumers become better educated about medical costs and to inject more competition into the health care industry. Working with Republican colleagues, he co-sponsored the Fair

Care for the Uninsured Act, which provides tax credits for individuals to purchase health care coverage.

Gerald Bennett, the mayor of Palos Hills and a health care executive, said Congressman Lipinski's proposals were an "excellent approach to helping American families become better health care consumers."

"The Congressman should be lauded for working with colleagues in both parties to craft initiatives that will not only improve health care availability and delivery, but also have a great chance of being enacted," Bennett said.

Lipinski has also responded quickly to the challenges facing the communities in his district, from skyrocketing gasoline prices to an Army Corps of Engineers plan to dump dredging from the Cal-Sag Channel in the Village of Worth.

"When you are facing an organization like the Army Corps of Engineers, it is good to know your Congressman is in your corner with you," said Worth Village President Ed Guzdzio.

Lipinski thanked the 3rd District leaders for their endorsements.

"I am gratified that this broad cross-section of elected officials, many of whom have decades of service to their communities, believe I am doing a good job and deserve another term in Congress," he said. "I will continue to work diligently to meet their expectations, as well as to improve the quality of life for the people of the Third District and our nation."

Marshall Field's State St. Store Soon To Become A City Landmark

Mayor Richard M. Daley recently introduced an ordinance into the Chicago City Council seeking to designate the world-renowned flagship store for Marshall Field and Company at 111 N. State St. as a Chicago Landmark.

The Marshall Field and Company Building has long been the "grand dame" of department store buildings in Chicago known for its famous clocks which proudly adorn both State St. corners of the structure, its holiday window displays and Christmas tree, and elegant Walnut Room restaurant.

The mayor noted that the popularity of the Field store extends well beyond the city and that it was often prominently featured in films and books about Chicago. The store's most celebrated feature, the great clocks, serve as a popular meeting place and were immortalized by celebrated artist Norman Rockwell on a 1945 cover of the Saturday Evening Post.

In 1881, Marshall Field I commissioned one of Chicago's leading architectural firms, D.H. Burnham and Company, to design the building which boasts finely detailed design in the Classical Revival style. The importance of the building's architecture has long been recognized. This past August, the Chicago Commission on Landmarks unanimously voted to grant the store preliminary Landmark Status. In 1978, it was listed as a National Historic Landmark. It is also listed in the Chicago Historic Resources Survey. Field's new owner, Federated Retail Holdings, Inc., has consented to the designation.

Cook County Property Tax Rate Drops For Tenth Consecutive Year

Recently released tax rates by the Cook County Clerks Office reveal that for the tenth consecutive year, the property tax rate for Cook County Government has declined. Between 1995 and 2004, Cook County's property tax rate has declined 40.3%.

"When I was first elected, I pledged to reduce the reliance on property taxes to fund Cook County Government and the tax rates demonstrate that we have accomplished that. While other governments have increased the burden on property owners, we have done everything imaginable to reduce our portion," said Cook County Board President, John H. Stroger. "This deliberate financial strategy has saved property owners in Cook County more $1.8 billion over the past 10 years."

Officials noted that the County continues to represent a small portion of the average property tax bill—approximately 8.5% of the 2004 taxes. When the Forest Preserve District is considered, these two units of government combined account for less than 10% of the average property tax bill. The local school districts continue to constitute the major portion of the average property tax bill.

Property tax revenues continue to represent a declining share of the County's total revenues. In fiscal year 1995, property taxes represented 32.2% of total revenues, while in FY2005 property tax revenues represented only 23.7% of total revenues, yet they fund one of the nation's largest court and public health systems as well as the country's largest single site jail which houses on average 10,000 detainees daily.

The decline in Cook County's property tax rate in 2004 from 2003 was 5.9%. This decrease was the largest year-over-year decline of any other major taxing body within the City of Chicago. The Equalized Assessed Valuation (EAV) of Cook County increased 8.2% in 2004 to $121.7 billion. Suburban Cook County, which represents 54.5% of the total EAV, increased 11.8% in 2004 to $66.3 billion, while the City of Chicago EAV increased 3.9% to $55.3 billion.

"Faced with rising assessments, the County has been sensitive to residential and commercial property owners by not raising our property tax rate," Stroger said.

Picnic Permits

Last Wednesday (10/5) Cook County Forest Preserve District Board President John Stroger announced that the Forest Preserve District of Cook County's internet-based picnic permitting system – designed and developed in conjunction with Cook County government's Bureau of Information Technology and Automation (BITA) – has been awarded the Center For Digital Government's 2005 "Best of the Web" designation in the Government-to-City County category.

In 2004, the District approached BITA to develop an online process for submitting picnic permit applications. The two organizations worked closely together and, just over four months later, a small, three-member BITA development staff opened the site to District staff for administrative setup. Two weeks later, the site was launched to the public. On the first day of the 2005 permitting season, the District sold over 800 picnic permits, 60% of which were purchased online. To date, the District's internet picnic permit sales of 3,548 represent just over 47% of the 7,526 sold for the year.

The District encourages picnic permit seekers to utilize their web site to purchase permits. To visit the site, go to www.fpdcc.com and click on the picnic permit link.

One of the joys of being a sport's fan is getting the opportunity to sing the praises of one's favorite team. The 2005 Chicago White Sox have provided their fans with the premier stage to showcase their season-long achievements by earning a spot in the 2005 World Series. How Sweet It Is! After waiting 46 years for a return date to the big dance, this year's White Sox team has revitalized the city and state. Not since the "Go-Go White Sox" of 1959, have the Southsiders been so dominant, eliminating each foe which stands in their way of winning a world championship.

The 2005 White Sox are not your father's team. They sport a different look...silver and black and play in a new stadium...U.S. Cellular Field. However, they play with the same intensity and purpose that the '59 White Sox showed those of us old enough to experience that magical season. We had an indelible impression burned into our hearts and minds and it has taken 46 years to once again savor the sweet taste of World Series nectar with our own White Sox.

The series final begins here in Chicago this Saturday (10/22). As of this writing, the White Sox, champions of the American League, will face the winner of the Houston Astros vs. St. Louis Cardinals National League finals.

We are proud of the great season that the White Sox have achieved to date and encourage all of Chicagoland to get behind them in their quest for the 2005 World Championship.

All Points has learned that Governor Rod Blagojevich has proclaimed October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Illinois, and the Illinois Department of Labor (IDOL) has launched a statewide program on VESSA, the Victim's Economic Security and Safety Act, which provides at-work support to employees who are victims themselves or who have a family or household member who is a victim of domestic or sexual violence.

VESSA provides employees who are victims of domestic or sexual violence or who have a family member who is a victim of domestic or sexual violence with up to 12 work-weeks of unpaid leave from work, without fear of being fired by their employers. VESSA requires employers to help a worker who has been a victim with accommodations that may include a modified work schedule or transfer to a different location or department. VESSA went into effect on Aug. 25th, 2003.

People interested in learning more about VESSA can call IDOL at (312) 793-6797.

The Catholic High School Honor Roll has announced the second annual selection of its best 50 secondary schools in America. By recognizing the nation's top 50 high schools, the Honor Roll promotes quality Catholic secondary education.

Among this year's top 50 is Chicago's Brother Rice High School (www.brice.org). The all-male, 1,200 student school is run by the Congregation of Christian Brothers, and is a repeat honoree from last year. Further, Brother Rice is also listed as a category leader (top 20 in the country) in both its Catholic identity and in academics. It is truly a distinct honor for Brother Rice to be considered among the top 50 Catholic high schools in the country.

Brother Rice APEX Honors Director, Br. P.B. Martin, said of the school's selection, "We were the only school in the Archdiocese of Chicago and Diocese of Joliet to receive the honor."

The primary goal of the Honor Roll is to encourage schools to educate students as effectively as possible, in a way that integrates Catholic faith and prepares students for active engagement with the world. In promoting rigorous education, the Honor Roll desires to better prepare students for fruitful vocations in politics, business, and the Church.

Messages From Katrina's Aftermath

By Dennis Heaney, President, The Christophers

Much like the images of 9/11, the scenes most of us saw on television of the devastation from Hurricane Katrina are probably etched forever in our minds. In the years ahead many of us will hear "New Orleans" or "Biloxi" and be taken back to the television coverage of those days when the waters were rising in those beautiful cities to levels we could not even imagine. However, I hope that whenever I recall the aftermath of Katrina I'll also think about the unbelievable way that so many people reached out to help those who lost everything in that catastrophic event.

We saw the shelters, big and small, that housed so many, but I also read of people as far away as Salt Lake City, Utah opening their homes to the evacuated from New Orleans. On one blog someone wrote that they had a home in Mississippi for sale and empty but they would take it off the market so that a family who lost their home in the hurricane could live in it for a couple of months.

On a Catholic Press Association blog people from cities as far away as Baltimore, Cincinnati and St. Paul opened their homes to colleagues in Louisiana and Mississippi who needed housing. A woman from the Midwest saw a story on television about a Comfort Inn in Atlanta, Georgia, that was housing people evacuated from New Orleans. She called the motel, gave them her credit card number and told them to charge her for housing a family for one month. She then asked the motel clerk to have the family call her collect and let her know what other personal items they needed.

Health care personnel, public safety professionals and others went into areas where they were needed, and the best they could hope for was cold food to eat and a tent to sleep in. Pilots of small aircraft from around the U.S. flew their own planes - and bought very expensive aircraft fuel - into regional airports near New Orleans to help evacuate the sick and elderly.

Madigan Files Lawsuit Against Natural Gas Provider

Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed a lawsuit on Oct. 13th in Cook County Circuit Court alleging a natural gas supply company providing service to 15,000 customers in northern Illinois has reneged on its fixed-rate, long-term contracts, a move that could force consumers who thought they had locked in rates for the winter to pay much higher prices for natural gas.

Santanna Natural Gas Corporation, doing business as Santanna Energy Services, is a Texas corporation with local offices in Hinsdale. The company sells natural gas to northern Illinois consumers participating in the Nicor Customer Select program and the People's Energy Choices for You program. The programs allow commercial and residential customers in eligible service areas to select alternative, non-regulated utility gas suppliers.

Madigan's lawsuit charges Santanna with violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act for allegedly misrepresenting its fixed rate offer during the course of making telemarketing solicitations to consumers to enter into contracts with the gas supply company. The telemarketing campaign, which promoted Santanna's fixed price program, solicited consumers through Aug. 13th, 2005.

Santanna allegedly has begun to notify customers that effective Oct. 1st, 2005, it will no longer provide gas at the fixed price that many consumers signed up for during its recent telemarketing campaign. The letter of notification gave customers the option of remaining Santanna customers at a fluctuating market rate for gas or discontinuing with Santanna and going back to Nicor or People's Gas.

Santanna's fixed price program allegedly offered consumers the opportunity to buy lower-priced gas during the summer for use during the winter months. During calls from independent telemarketing representatives, interested consumers orally agreed to participate in the program.

Consumers were then contacted by a third-party verifier and enrolled in the program. Finally, the interested consumers received a Welcome Letter that set forth the terms and conditions of their agreement. According to Madigan's lawsuit, there was no modification clause included in either the oral or written agreement that would allow for a change in the fixed price agreement.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendant from advertising or offering an advanced payment and storage-based natural gas supply program and from further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The lawsuit also seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 per violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud.

Ten Free Trees

Ten free trees, autumn classics, will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during October.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are two Sugar Maples, Scarlet Oak, Sweetgum, Red Oak, Silver Maple, White Dogwood, Washington Hawthorn and two Red Maples.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between Nov. 1 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

To receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Autumn Classic Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 684-10, by Oct. 31 or go online at arborday.org.

The graduates of our Christopher Leadership Course in the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston got together and visited shelters around their area, focusing on those with victims who spoke only Spanish and needed translation help.

I read of a number of organizations and churches collecting clothing for shipping to victims that were so inundated that they had to ask donors to stop dropping off items for a day so that the volunteers could catch up with the packing.

While it is almost impossible for most of us to imagine the extent of the devastation or to grasp the emotional toll it takes on victims, when we see the personal response to the pain there is a message that comes through loud and clear: we are a caring people and we do respond when our brothers and sisters are hurting.

The pain of Hurricane Katrina will be with all of us for a long time. The challenge the victims face in trying to rebuild their lives is mind-boggling, and we know that there will be much needed discussion about the pros and cons of official relief efforts. However, I hope and pray that we do not forget the overwhelming response made by organizations and individuals when the call for help went out. We tried to bring God's hope and love to those who needed it, asking nothing in return except that others know we care!

Police Seek Robber

Armed with a sawed-off shotgun, an unidentified man committed eight robberies since Aug. 20th, hitting Orland Park, Midlothian, Glenwood, Homewood, Merriotte Park, Matteson, Monee and Naperville. The police departments of these municipalities are looking for the suspect. He has robbed gas stations, convenience stores, electronic stores and hardware stores on main roads according to authorities and in recent robberies has taken money from patrons of the stores. When he began his robberies, the man wore a ski mask over his face. Since then, he has not tried to hide his identity. He has been caught on video surveillance tapes during his crimes. According to authorities he has threatened to kill anyone who doesn't cooperate with him.

The suspect is described as being black, in his late 20s or early 30s, about 6 feet tall with a heavy build. During each robbery, he took the shotgun out of a black bag that has the Chicago Art Institute in white lettering. He was seen driving a maroon and tan, mid-1990s, four-door Ford Explorer with damage to the front end and right front fender. It was observed that the right front tire might be a spare and was much different from the other tires. The window was tinted and the vehicle has a black luggage rack.

It was stated that the Orland Park police are offering a $500 reward for information that leads to an arrest. Anyone with information is encouraged to call (800) 973-9212.

In addition to jokes, Leno describes how he discovered his own "funny," his first "professional" gig, what makes the best jokes, how to build a routine, what to do when being heckled, how to combat stage fright—not to mention sidebars full of information on other famous comedians and legendary acts, mini-routines and words to live by.

Jay Leno has quietly assisted surviving law enforcement families in California for many years. After talking with Andy Powell, President of the Southern California Chapter of COPS, Jay made the decision to support law enforcement survivors nationwide by donating proceeds from his newest book to COPS.

A RUMOR THAT WE ALL HOPE ISN'T TRUE: A usually reliable source called to tell me he heard that four fishermen on four different occasions saw 'big head carp' leap out of the water at Wolf Lake. Wolf Lake has an outlet to Lake Michigan, which means the dreaded carp are in the "Big Pond."

The second electric barrier that's supposed to keep the big head and silver carp from entering the Great Lakes via the Chicago River and Cal Sag Canal is still under construction. In previous columns I gave many reasons why the barriers would not keep the Asian Carp out of the Great Lakes.

Eddie Landmichl, Sr. and Perch America are concerned enough about the sightings at Wolf Lake to attempt to raise enough money to sponsor a carp bow-fishing tournament on the lake and other waters. The carp are taken by bow on the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers. It is the only way to take those fish, netting can work on occasion.

The tournament would hopefully attract those bow-fishermen, who make the taking of carp a sport. The Asian carp, when excited by the sound and turbulence in the water by the outboard motors, leap out of the water, and often leap into the boat. The bow-fish hunters have to shoot the carp in mid-air.

To contact Landmichl or Perch America, call (708) 594-1164 or (773) 734-6720.

CELEBRITY QUAIL HUNT: Hunters and other supporters of the youth hunting programs are invited to participate in the 12th Annual Illinois Conservation Foundation Celebrity Quail Hunt from Nov. 6th to 8th at Rend Lake Resort.

The hunting package includes lodging, meals, refreshments, hunting guides, shells, gifts, and a sporting clays, trap and five-stand competition. Individual hunt packages are just $500.

Celebrities who have attended the event include Kurt Becker, Mark Clark, Danny Cox, Jackie Smith, Whitey Herzog, Mike Shannon, Tim Norman and Jim Thome. All proceeds benefit the ICF's extensive youth hunting programs and activities. For reservation information, phone Bob Ruff at (217) 782-7181 or go online at www.ilcf.org.

BUT THIS WAS BEFORE KATRINA AND THE NEW ORLEANS DISASTER: The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has proposed an $8.3 billion plan to build seven new locks to ease shipping congestion and improve local ecosystems in the Mississippi River region.

The plan was the latest recommendation by the Corps in the last decade to upgrade the 70-year-old lock and dam system on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. Congress must approve the Corps report.

An earlier Corps draft was criticized after it predicted that grain exports shipped on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers would rise between 1995 and 2000, but they fell. The National Research Council, part of the National Academy of Sciences, has said the Corps plan is flawed and lacks credibility in large part because of its optimistic grain predictions.

MISSOURI APPROVES FISHING WITH BARE HANDS: It will now be legal to plunge into some Missouri rivers and grab catfish by hand-fishing that is not for the faint of heart.

Known as noodling or hogging, hand-fishing has long been a misdemeanor, punishable by fines, because state officials fear it depletes breeding-age catfish. It can also be dangerous: Noodlers hold their breath for long periods under water and sometime come up with fistfuls of agitated snakes or snapping turtles.

That does not discourage enthusiasts who insist there is great sportsmanship in fishing with their bare hands. So, after years of urging by noodlers, and lopsided legislative support for easing up on hand-fishers, the Missouri Conservation Commission has approved an experimental hand-fishing season next summer. Forms of hand-fishing are already legal in 11 states, including Oklahoma, Arkansas and Illinois. Credit: Great Lakes Basin Report.

TURKEY HUNTERS BENEFIT FROM SAFETY TASK FORCE: When the National Wild Turkey Hunting Safety Task Force met recently, members were reminded just how safe turkey hunting has become: "When this Task Force first met in 1991, the incident rate for turkey hunting was 8.1 injuries per 100,000 hunters. Today, that rate has fallen to 2.95 per 100,000 hunters, even though numbers of turkey hunters have increased," said Rob Keck, CEO of the National Wild Turkey Federation. "Turkey hunting is one of the safest outdoor activities whether you're talking about team sports, other types of hunting or outdoor hobbies such as mountain biking."

The task force featured specialists from a broad range of backgrounds including wildlife agency administrators, hunter education coordinators and instructors, International Hunter Education Assoc. Reps. hunting/shooting industry experts, biologists, educators, wildlife law enforcement officers, and NWTf volunteers.

SXU Sports News Buchmeier Named All-Tourney

Junior Jessica Buchmeier (Steger/Bloom Trail) was one of just six players named to the Cornerstone University (Mich.) Golden Eagle Invitational All-Tournament Team Saturday as the Saint Xavier University volleyball team split its four matches at the Invite over the weekend picking up wins over St. Ambrose University (Iowa) and Indiana Tech in Grand Rapids, Mich. With the 2-2 outing at Cornerstone, the Cougars improve to 13-13 overall this season.

In Friday's first match against Urbana University (Ohio), SXU played well behind a team-high 20 kills from Buchmeier, but fell in the end losing the match in 5 games 26-30, 30-27, 26-30, 31-29, 11-15. Sophomore setter Traci Looby (Orland Hills/Andrew) finished with 52 assists for the Cougars, while senior libero Stephanie Huppenthal (Cedar Lake, Ind./Hanover Central) recorded 21 digs. Senior Carrie Mockovak (Burbank/Queen of Peace) also played tough defense for Saint Xavier with a team-high 15 total blocks (four solos).

Saint Xavier came storming back in the next match Friday defeating St. Ambrose University (Iowa) in four games 30-26, 27-30, 30-22, 30-21. Buchmeier led the Cougar offensive attack again with 18 kills, while junior Paige Pedigo (Chicago Ridge/Queen of Peace) turned in 15 kills for SXU. Looby finished with 43 assists and Huppenthal was solid as well on the defensive side with a team-high 23 digs.

On Saturday, SXU got off to a hot start in the morning winning the first two games of its opening match with Spring Arbor College (Mich.) 30-27 and 30-24. However, the Cougars could not sustain the momentum dropping the final three games 24-20, 29-31 and 17-19. Pedigo led Saint Xavier both offensively and defensively with 24 kills and 32 digs, while Buchmeier stayed hot on the weekend with 20 kills and 25 digs. Looby tallied 64 assists on the match, while junior Danielle Keller (Worth/Alan B. Shepard) recorded five service aces.

The Cougars avenged the loss to Spring Arbor in its next match Saturday with a three-game win over Indiana Tech 30-23, 30-21, 30-28. Buchmeier finished with a team-high nine kills in the winning effort, while Mockovak tallied seven kills and seven total blocks (three solos). Huppenthal led Saint Xavier in digs with 26, while senior setter Amy Stephens (Bowen, IL/Camp Point Central) had 32 assists and 23 digs.

Players Of The Week

St. Xavier University senior libero Stephanie Huppenthal, junior outside hitter Jessica Buchmeier and sophomore setter Traci Looby all received CCAC Player of the Week honors in their respective positions when the awards were announced by the league office in Joliet recently. In addition, Huppenthal and Looby also received NAIA Region VII Libero and Setter of the Week honors, respectively, for their parts in leading SXU to a 4-2 record last week.

Huppenthal played at the libero position in all six of St. Xavier's matches last week. In five of the six matches, she finished with dig totals of 20 or more, while also averaging less than one reception error (0.96) per game in the 23 total games the Cougars played on the week.

Playing in five of SXU's six matches on the week, Looby was the primary setter in those five matches leading the Cougars with 216 assists on the week. Looby also finished with 60 digs and nine total blocks (eight assisted) which showed her versatility around the court.

Buchmeier earned the CCAC Volleyball Player of the Week honor after being named to the Cornerstone University (Mich.) Golden Eagle Invitational All-Tournament Team over the weekend. She played in all six matches for St. Xavier and recorded 91 kills, 85 digs and 15 blocks (eight solo) on the week.

Sports Valve

By Brad Allen

Once again, leave your troubles behind and join me inside this week's Sports Valve. Remember to shut the valve behind you. This week, I have wallpapered the valve in white and black in honor of the White Sox.

In the valve cupboard is an unopened bottle of champagne, but it isn't for impending celebration as you might think. It's to beat myself over the head with ... because I'm a Cub fan.

Pro Sports Valve: As I am typing this column, I have the radio on. Suffice to say that the Rally Monkey may be looking for a new job in the off-season. Konerko has just fielded the final out in the LCS, thereby clipping the wings of the Angels. The White Sox are in the World Series!

I am viewing this White Sox glory-run, of course, through the eyes of a Cub fan. Therefore, comparisons between the two teams are inevitable in my mind.

Managerial Comparison: With a 3 games to 1 lead in this 2005 LCS, the White Sox played with the intensity and focus of a team for whom there was no tomorrow. Therefore, they created their own tomorrow. Killer instinct is another way to put it. With a 3 games to 1 lead in the 2003 LCS, the Cubs seemed to play laid back. Therefore, they got laid out! Doesn't that describe the managers?

Also, Ozzie plays the hot hand regardless of how fair or unfair it is to certain players. I refer you to Jenks and Hermanson. On the other side of town, the player who seems to have earned the most loyalty plays - period.

Further, Ozzie goes with his gut feeling. He's wrong sometimes, but you always have the sense that he manages hands-on and treats each situation as unique from the last. On the other side of town, there seems to be this pre-prepared list of general baseball theorems, which the manager dully applies to specific situations, i.e. taking a pitcher out after he's reached a certain pitch count - even if he's still fresh and effective that specific day.

Organizational Comparison: Kenny Williams took a chance on a supposed troublemaker, A.J. Pierzynski, because he figured his fire, intensity and talent might lead to more victories. If any trouble would have ensued, Ozzie Guillen was entrusted with the task of keeping the peace.

The 2005 Cubs, on the other hand, got rid of anybody who was supposedly considered to be a potential hothead. I guess they decided that the loss of Kent Mercker's 2.54 ERA and Moises Alou's 100+ RBI were small prices to pay in order to achieve the ultimate goal of having a warm and fuzzy fan-friendly ticket-selling team. I thought Dusty was supposed to be a clubhouse guru at handling players.

Finally, if he's the best guy for the job at the moment, the White Sox will play a player even if he's a little banged up. That player will be put on the shelf only as a last resort. Witness Frank Thomas. During the brief stretch of the season when he played, he played wounded, but the Sox bagged an extra few wins because of the temporary offensive boost he provided.

The players on the Cubs, on the other hand, are deactivated at the drop of a hat especially if they happen to be fan favorites who may put future butts in the seats. Don't tell me that the Cubs' primary goal has more to do with financial investments than winning ballgames.

Before my blood pressure raises any further, I'll congratulate the Sox one more time before hurrying off to the purer-natured amateur section of the sports valve.

Amateur Sports Valve:

So, you say there's not enough scoring in soccer! It came to my attention that Mount Carmel recently tallied an insane total of 22 goals in one game. I had to contact the school to verify this one. Responding to my interrogation, they insisted that: a) It actually happened; b) The other team's goalkeeper was there; and c) The other team's players' shoes were not tied together.

In football last week, Mark Williams of Richards High School, not only scored six touchdowns (narrowly missing a seventh), but he amassed 347 yards despite carrying the ball only 16 times. That's 1041 feet - with big, angry testosterone-filled teenagers trying to stop him! I haven't run that far since I chased that noisy ice cream truck down the street after it woke me up from a nap with its incessant jingle - and the only people in my way were a couple of small sobbing children with ice cream cones conspicuously missing from their little hands. If that happens again, I'll just turn Mark Williams loose.

Sports Tip Valve:

I guess this week's tip should be run to first base even if the catcher catches a strike three on the fly! Ha! Just kidding, Sox fans. We all know that ball hit the dirt! Truth be told, it was one of those magic baseballs that can hit the ground at 90 MPH without kicking up any dirt!

Seriously, since it is still baseball season (for some people) let me tell you how I learned how to teach kids the art of hitting an off-speed pitch. Most batters who sit dead-red on a fastball transfer their weight forward too fast to have chance of hitting that surprise change-up.

Well, I always knew how to deliver a change-up - basically, you just keep the same arm speed, but lift your fingertips off the ball which delays release and slows pitch speed. However, I never knew how to combat against a change-up until I coached a kid from the projects named Carl. Actually, without knowing it, he coached me! He never had a problem hitting a change-up and I wondered why. So, I studied him until I figured it out.

He was treading time! He would delay his forward momentum by rising upward instead. He rose on his toes. When the pitch finally arrived he wasn't so forward-committed that he couldn't hit the pitch. Thanks, Carl. Na, Na, Hey, Hey. Good Bye. Exit valve.

Hall Of Fame Inductees

St. Xavier University women's volleyball coach Bob Heersema and men's basketball coach Tom O'Malley were both inducted into the 2005 class of the CCAC Hall of Fame on Sunday at the Butler Reception Room on SXU's Chicago campus. With the additions of Heersema and O'Malley, SXU now has a total of six inductees in the CCAC Hall of Fame, which began in 1991.

Heersema is in his 19th season as head coach of the Cougar women's volleyball program. His teams have posted 390 wins during his career. In 1989, 1998 and 2000, Heersema was named the CCAC Coach of the Year. In 1989 and 1998, he was the NAIA District 20 Coach of the Year, and the NAIA Region VII Coach of the Year following the 2000 season. Heersema has coached two NAIA All-Americans and led his squads to three conference championships (1997, 1998 and 2000) and one national tournament appearance (2000).

Entering his ninth year at the helm of the SXU men's basketball program, O'Malley has put together some impressive seasons. However, the 2004-05 season may have been his finest ever with the Cougars earning a school record-tying 30 wins and posting their best-ever finish at the NAIA National Tournament with an Elite Eight appearance. O'Malley has a 212-73 overall record at SXU and his teams have averaged 26 wins a season during his eight-year tenure.

Besides Heersema and O'Malley, six other CCAC coaches made up the 2005 class of CCAC Hall of Fame inductees. These included: Al Bruehl (Robert Morris College men's basketball coach), Denny Fox (Cardinal Stritch University men's basketball coach), Elliot Johnson (Olivet Nazarene University baseball coach), Rich Panella (Cardinal Stritch University women's basketball coach), Ritchie Richardson (Olivet Nazarene University softball coach) and Brenda Williams (Olivet Nazarene University volleyball coach).

The previous four CCAC Hall of Fame members from SXU were former softball coach Lynn O'Linski (1991), former baseball coach John Morrey (1991), former men's basketball coach Mike Keasler (1992) and current baseball coach Mike Dooley (2002).

Moraine Valley Men's Golf Team On Par To Compete This Season

The Moraine Valley men's golf team is "driving" forward in competing for a Skyway conference championship this year. With four returning players and five competitive first-year school players on board, the Cyclones are poised for success.

Bob Freudenthal, the golf team coach, is excited about the potential of his team and the efforts of its individual performers.

Team members this year include James Carrick, a long driver who's distance makes him a threat to shoot low every outing; Kevin Farrell, a consistent freshman player who sprung up from a great program at Lockport Township High School; Jesus Erik Hernandez, a mature freshman from Mexico with a sound swing; Stevyn Holdefer, a first-year, highly motivated player with a constant eagerness to improve; Jeff Shunick, a second-year player from Carl Sandburg High School who brings experience, talent and power to the tee box; Pat VerSchave, a good team player from Oak Lawn High School whose work habits will contribute to his continuous improvement; Andrew Walter, a first-year player from Kennedy High School whose experience in the golf industry consistently helps his contributions; Tom Williams, a freshman power-hitter whose long game always sets him up in score low and Rich Zubek, a veteran from Stagg High School with a very consistent game.

Player Of The Week

Saint Xavier University senior quarterback John Perryman (Oak Lawn/Richards) was one of two NAIA football players named National Offensive Player of the Week in the latest issue of Don Hansen's National Weekly Football Gazette released Wednesday. Perryman was instrumental in the No. 6 ranked Cougars' 35-16 road win over William Penn University (Iowa) Saturday in Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Perryman completed 24 of his 36 pass attempts for 298 yards, three touchdowns (one rushing) and one interception. Both his touchdown passes came in the first half of Saturday's win to help the Cougars build a 16-9 halftime advantage. Perryman also finished the game with six carries for 13 yards and a fourth-quarter score on the ground. Dakota State University senior quarterback Art Solis was the other National Offensive Player of the Week recognized this week by the Football Gazette.

October Programs

Camp Sagawau, Environmental Education Center, in Lemont, is offering a variety of free interpretive nature programs on weekends in October. The meeting place for most programs is the red farmhouse at Camp Sagawau, located at Il. Rt. 83, 100 yards E. of Archer Ave. (171).

Camp Programs will include a visit to the only rock canyon in Cook County. Be prepared to get your feet wet in varying levels of water as you wade the creek. Bird banding demonstrations will help you learn as the Chicagoland Bird Observatory researchers, trap and band migratory and resident birds.

Other programs include a fall color tour where you can learn why trees turn color in the fall; a fall prairie tour to see the seasons' last flowers; a restoration work day where you can help revive our ailing ecosystems; a fall and winter bird feeding to learn how to attract a variety of birds by the feed you offer.

Off-site programs include a waterfowl watch at McGinnis Slough and a fossil hunt.

For more information or to make reservations for any of the camp programs, call (630) 257-2045, weekdays between 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Moraine Valley Women's Soccer Team Heads For Conference Title

With one-third of the 2005 women's soccer season complete, the Lady Cyclones are off to a good start.

This year's team has a strong nucleus of returning players, led by last year's All-Conference selections Rachel Corsi (Lemont High School) and Sonia Navejar (Argo H.S.). Also returning for their second year are experienced sophomores Megan Connolly (Stagg H.S.), Nicole Fitzgerald (Maria H.S.), Alicia Mauricio (Eisenhower H.S.), Chelsea Peglow (Sandburg H.S.) and Lucy Wodziak (Oak Lawn H.S.).

First year players who are looking to make an immediate impact with their speed, precision and stamina include Jacqueline Arenas (McAuley H.S.), Karen Depke (Argo H.S.), Ashley DeValk (Reavis H.S.), Claudia Esparza (Eisenhower H.S.), Jillian Griffith (Queen of Peace H.S.), Reina Hernandez (Argo H.S.), Cecelia Nunez (Maria H.S.), Vanessa Vazquez (Maria H.S.), and goalkeeper Monica Pacheco (Richards H.S.).

This year's Lady Cyclones have a strong defense to build on, but also have potential for some offensive output with new coach Jim Knawa at the helm. Knawa replaces Jim Harkness, who ran a successful soccer program at the college for the past five seasons. Knawa has been actively involved in coaching various youth sports since 1983 in several capacities. He began coaching soccer on a recreational basis in 1990 and has been associated with high school competitive teams in their off-seasons, as well as being involved in several youth athletic boards and councils.

Knawa is assisted this year by Alfonso Carillin.

Senior Matt Alvin of Burbank (standing, right) and Clark were recognized as AP Scholars in the Advanced Placement Program of the College Board. Ksiazek was named as an AP Scholar with Honors in the same program.

Principal Muting commented, "We are extremely proud of these young men and their accomplishments. It is wonderful to see their hard work and diligence being recognized by these programs. These seniors are fine examples of our motto - St. Laurence is the school 'Where Leadership Begins.'"

Funding for this year's productions will mostly be derived from Wesleyan's "Silent Auction and Italian Dinner" on Friday, Nov. 11th at 6:30 p.m., also at 8844 S. Austin. The dinner is free, but business owners and individuals in the area are donating items to be auctioned off at the silent auction.

He is the Meteorologist in Charge at the National Weather Service office in San Diego, California. James supervises 25 people, including meteorologists who issue weather and water forecasts and warnings in an area serving over 9 million people in Southern California.

James has been with the National Weather Service since 1982. He has received numerous awards including both Gold and Silver Medals for meritorious service from the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. These are the highest awards a civilian can receive from the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. James has appeared as a weather expert on numerous national and local news programs as well as documentaries on The Weather Channel, The Learning Channel (TLC), IMAX Theater Presentations, and the History Channel.

Interestingly enough, James' interest in weather was influenced by the Oak Lawn tornado of April 1967. As a result, he spent 15 years in Oklahoma training thousands of volunteer observers to spot and report tornadoes and other severe storms.

Timothy Purpura graduated from Oak Lawn Community High School in 1976. He received a bachelor's degree in psychology from Loyola University of Chicago and a law degree from Thomas Jefferson School of Law in San Diego.

On Nov. 1st, 2004, Tim was promoted to General Manager for the Houston Astros. Prior to his promotion, Tim served as the assistant general manager and directed the operation of the club's player development system and six minor league affiliates. He assisted with all aspects of Major League operations, including player trades and free-agent acquisitions, contract negotiations & coordination of Major League scouting efforts.

Tim joined the Astros after spending two seasons as a founding staff member of the Arizona Fall League, a successful development league operated by Major League Baseball that serves as a finishing school for top prospects. In 2003, Tim was elected to the Board of Directors for the National Association, the governing board of minor league baseball.

The Oak Lawn Community High School Alumni Hall of Fame Committee was pleased to honor James & Timothy Purpura. The Oct. 14th Alumni Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony was open to the public.

Home Invasion Investigated

On Saturday, Oct. 15th at 1 a.m., a home invasion began at a home around 97th Place and Kilpatrick in Oak Lawn. A husband and wife were held captive.

Seven hours later, the wife was allowed to leave the house. She went to her job at Charter One Bank on Pulaski and 120th Street and removed a large sum of money.

She then set the money outside the bank where somebody picked it up and left.

Oak Lawn Police and the FBI are still sorting through this apparent home invasion/bank robbery and will release information as they are able.

THE NICKEL ALLERGY

Ever find your eyes suddenly becoming swollen and itchy, or an annoying rash on your tummy around your belly button? You are not using cosmetics, and you have not changed your soap, lotion, medical cream, or jewelry...so what is this?? It could be a nickel allergy!

NICKEL—A BRIEF HISTORY

Nickel is one of the most abundant elements in the earth's crust, and comprises about 3% of the composition of the earth. In 1751, the Swedish chemist AF Cronstedt isolated nickel and denoted it as the element number 28 on the Periodic Table of Elements (for all you scientists) where it is referred to as Ni. The name nickel comes from the German word kupfernickel meaning devil's copper or false copper. Historically, this silver-white metal has been used by man since antiquity for many reasons—for example, as a natural alloy for weaponry and armor.

Back in the 19th century nickel was found in Flying Indian Head cents and three-cent pieces. Since then, five cent nickels have contained nickel, except for those issued during some of the World War II years.

ALLERGY PRESENTATION

Clinically a nickel allergy can present as an itchy, raised, and/or red dermatitis (skin inflammation), sometimes having little red vessels. In children, the allergy classically appears on earlobes, the neck, wrists, and in the area of blue jean snaps. Women are more prone to nickel allergies than men, due to jewelry, hair underwires, etc. Sweat can readily dissolve nickel, along with pressure, moisture and friction, creating a nickel rash. When compounded as stainless steel, however, nickel is so firmly bound that it does not leach out at levels significant enough to cause dermatitis.

Today, nickel is widely used for producing nickel alloys and nickel cast iron. As a result, potential exposure sources include: zippers, safety pins, door knobs, keys, scissors, bracelets, eyelash curlers, belt buckles, metal eyeglass frames, razors, thumbtacks, coins, tools, appliances, household utensils, alkaline batteries, and many more. Ear piercing is a major source of nickel sensitization, first through the piercing process and then through the use of nickel-containing jewelry.

DIET AND SMOKING/INHALATION

Diet and smoking, along with industrial inhalation, also represent huge sources of nickel exposure. In sensitized patients, nickel in the food you eat can cause a relapse of dermatitis. In fact, in a recent study I have come across involving nickel-sensitive persons, a low nickel diet was effective in controlling the symptoms in almost half of them.

To aggravate the situation, food processing and storage methods apparently add to the nickel levels already present in food, as do the leaching of nickel from kitchen utensils, cookware and water pipes.

Smoking also represents a significant form of nickel exposure, since a typical cigarette contains a notable amount of nickel. When you factor in that many Americans smoke almost a pack of cigarettes per day, you are talking about twenty times that.

In room air, the level of nickel inhalation is small, but there are higher levels present in contaminated air, such as sewage incinerators, diesel fuel-burners, recycling products, and output from glass and ceramic factories. The presence of nickel in some orthopedic prostheses can be as high as 35%, according to the medical journal Skin and Aging, May, 2005. This is sufficient to induce a rash in nickel-sensitized persons and medical personnel working with these items.

Dermatologists can patch test for a nickel allergy, if you are suspicious of a recurring rash, or one that just won't go away. Process of elimination on your own, however, is one way to start your investigation into a nickel allergy. There are also foods you can avoid which contain nickel, (see list below) if you want to try testing by the trial and error technique. However you proceed, it is wise to find the culprit of your rash if you want to put yourself out of terrible, itchy misery!

SOME FOODS TO AVOID WHICH CONTAIN NICKEL

Asparagus
Baking powder
Beer (sorry)
Cocoa and dark chocolate
Dry legumes
Gelatin
Hazelnuts
Oatmeal
Oysters
Soy beans and products
Sunflower seeds
Wine (red)

Top Five Travel Destinations For Seniors

Peripatetic seniors can gather terrific ideas at a presentation by travel experts Kathleen Gaffney and Aggie Lewis at the Smith Village Information Center, 10400 S. Western Ave. in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood on Tuesday, Oct. 25, at 1 p.m. These popular experts will provide insiders' perspectives about the "Top Five Travel Destinations for Seniors."

Owner of Gaffney Travel since 1969, Gaffney and her colleague Aggie Lewis, an agent with 14 years of experience, have extensive experience servicing local seniors and promise insights about planning hassle-free adventures from personal experience and those of these discriminating clients.

Their presentation will include great ideas for vacations in the United States and abroad. They'll explore wonderful excursions like European river cruising and luxury train travel that allow travelers to have one, wonderful home base from which to visit many sites.

Also, many seniors enjoy organized bus tours, but there are tips that can help select the best one. "Look for tours that spend a few nights in each location," says Gaffney. "That way you get to enjoy each place more and you're not constantly on the move. Also, some bus companies pick you up right at your home which makes departure a breeze."

While at the Smith Village Information Center, visitors may enjoy complimentary refreshments, view a scale model of Smith Village, and learn more about the community that will reinvent retirement living in Beverly and the surrounding area.

Smith Village will provide independent living, assisted living, memory support and skilled nursing care. Its newly constructed campus will feature nine different spacious floor plans to choose from and a host of services and amenities.

Smith Village is one of the highly-regarded Smith Senior Living communities in the southwestern region of metropolitan Chicago. Smith-sponsored communities make it possible for seniors to enjoy a vibrant, active lifestyle. The not-for-profit organization established its first community in 1924.

To make reservations for the "Top 5 Travel Destinations for Seniors" presentation, or for more information about how Smith Village can help seniors enjoy their retirement, call (773) 881-4950 or visit www.SmithVillage.org.

Historic Health Care Hearings Kicked Off

Struggling under the burden of ever-increasing health care costs citizens are being given a chance to get involved and speak out on the need for a comprehensive health care plan that would open the door to affordable health insurance for all by 2007. Everybody IN and Nobody OUT was the consensus being aired by consumers, providers and others at this first public hearing.

A wide range of testimony occurred from working families unable to afford comprehensive health insurance, self-employed individuals, small businesses and a growing number of individuals who are underinsured. Nearly 1 in 3 Illinoisans (3.6 million) under the age of 65 were uninsured for all of 2003 and 2004 or for a large period of that time. The vast majority of the uninsured were workers and members of working families.

Over the next seven months, public hearings to assist the State Legislature implement the innovative Health Care Justice Act will be held in all 19 Congressional Districts. "This is the culmination of years of effort by people and organizations all across the state," said Jim Duffett, a member of the State Health Care Task Force. "A broad coalition of organizations and consumers throughout the state will be mobilizing for each of these public hearings and forming local groups to hold our elected officials accountable for the implementation of the Health Care Justice Act."

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

Great Lakes Naval Hospital and North Chicago VA have been combined to become the nation's first joint Navy-VA hospital. North Chicago VA and Great Lakes Hospitals have been operating for years about one and a half miles apart. The Navy hospital will close and a new $100 million naval hospital will be built next to the North Chicago VA Medical Center. The plans state construction will begin sometime in 2007 and be finished in 2009. The old Navy hospital will be torn down.

There will be separate entrances for veterans and naval personnel but everything else will be shared. The operating rooms are to be in the VA building. It is estimated the renovation will cost about $13 million.

The Naval Hospital will serve military personnel and their families and the VA hospital will serve veterans but the two merged hospitals will share the same doctors.

Governor Blagojevich and Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn met with U.S. Secretary of the Army, Dr. Francis J. Harvey, on Oct. 12th to describe problems Illinois families have had with the Army's procedures for notifying next of kin when a soldier is killed. The two also presented recommendations for improving the Casualty Assistance protocol in Illinois, which is the program for providing death notification and follow-up support for families of fallen Illinois soldiers. The Governor and Lt. Governor requested the meeting with the Army's highest official after hearing from several Illinois families who encountered insensitive casualty assistance officers, delays in notification and other problems after their loved ones were killed in the line of duty.

Blagojevich and Quinn specifically asked the Army to implement the following changes: Better officer training for grief counseling for families, including dealing with distraught relatives and carefully managing local media; Better organization to ensure proper body transport from overseas to the family, military, and local funeral home; Complete and prompt delivery of all the service member's awards and decorations to the family; Better training to secure all state and federal benefits/programs available to the family; And, create a mentoring program to allow officers to volunteer and learn "on the job" rather than be assigned to the Casualty Assistance Program.

Our "Outdoors" columnist Jim Kirby and I received the same communication from the Illinois Department of Resources regarding a special pass being available to military members who live in Illinois and who have served abroad, including guard or reserve members called to active duty. The special pass provides camping, fishing and hunting fee exemptions for qualified military members. Guard and reserve members can apply if it is within two years of their return from abroad or release from mobilization.

The pass also offers a combined Sportsman's License and Habitat Stamp for hunting and fishing, and an archery or firearm deer permit if requested and available. Military members are eligible for free sport fishing, hunting and camping for one year for each year (and portion of one year) served.

To receive an Armed Forces Special Pass from the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, qualifying military members must appear in person at the IDNR Headquarters, One Natural Resources Way, Springfield, within two years of their return from abroad or release from mobilization, provide verification of dates of service, and provide a photo ID.

Since Mr. Kirby is our sports specialist I will quote his comment on having to go all the way to Springfield in person to receive this special pass. "It seems unreasonable to require these returning heroes to have to travel all the way to Springfield to receive these passes. Why can't this be done at local IDNR regional offices throughout the state?" I will follow this up with Kirby and let you know how we are doing in the future to possibly get someone in this area to issue the passes.

We express our deepest sympathy to the family of Army National Guardsman James T. Grijalva of Burbank who died in Iraq last week. Grijalva, 26, died from a noncombat-related injury, according to the Military Affairs Department. He was a part of the Urbana based 2nd Battalion 130th Infantry. He enlisted in the Army in 1999 and is a graduate of Curie High School in Chicago. May God bless his family and loved ones during this time of deep sorrow.

Cadet Adam Friedrich Werner, son of Kevin and Debra Werner of Worth, completed Cadet Basic Training at the U.S. Military Academy. Werner entered the Academy on June 27, 2005. He graduated from Alan B. Shepard High School in 2004. Werner plans to graduate in 2009 from West Point and be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Navy Seaman Todd V. Eskra, son of Terry Phillips of Palos Hills, participated in Hurricane Katrina and Rita relief efforts while assigned to Naval Mobile Construction Battalion (NMCB) 40 home-based in Port Hueneme, California. Eskra is a 2004 graduate of Amos Alonzo Stagg High School in Palos Hills.

Navy Seaman Apprentice Lucyna Mol, daughter of Maria and Andrzej Mol of Burbank, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes. Mol is a 2000 graduate of Curie High School in Chicago.

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Edreal L. Evans, son of Tawanda Adams of Dixmoor and Edward Evans of Chicago, returned from a four-and-a-half month deployment while assigned to the amphibious assault ship USS Boxer, home-ported in San Diego. Evans joined the Navy in December 1994.

Good-bye until next week and God bless you and God bless America.

ExxonMobil Settlement

Attorney General Lisa Madigan Oct. 11th joined the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in announcing that a settlement has been reached with ExxonMobil to reduce air, water and land pollution at the oil company's refineries nationwide, including its Joliet refinery.

ExxonMobil has agreed to install and implement innovative control technologies at its seven U.S. oil refineries to reduce the refineries' annual emissions of harmful air pollutants, including nitrogen oxide and sulfur dioxide. The company also will upgrade its leak detection and repair practices, minimize flaring of hazardous gases, reduce emissions from its sulfur recover plants and adopt strategies to ensure the proper handling of hazardous benzene wastes at each refinery.

The expected cost for ExxonMobil to implement the emission control improvements at the Joliet refinery is $180 million. It is estimated that the improvements will decrease the amount of nitrogen oxide emission by approximately 1,800 tons per year and the amount of sulfur dioxide emissions by 24,000 tons per year.

In addition, ExxonMobil will provide $9.7 million nationwide for supplemental environmental projects (SEPs), including $2.2 million for projects in the Joliet area. ExxonMobil also will pay $8.7 million in state and federal civil penalties, including $275,000 to the Illinois Attorney General's State Projects and Court Ordered Distribution Fund, $275,000 to the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency's (IEPA) Special State Projects Trust Fund and $100,000 to the Illinois Environmental Protection Trust Fund.

The $2.2 million designated for SEPs in the Joliet area will fund projects including: the retrofitting or replacement of municipal bus fleets in the communities surrounding the Joliet refinery to reduce diesel emissions from those vehicles; the installation of air control technology on heaters at the Joliet refinery to reduce the plant's carbon dioxide emissions, which is not otherwise required by law; the creation of the Midewin National Tallgrass Prairie Restoration Project to conserve and restore the native populations of fish, wildlife and plants; and the purchase and upgrade of emergency response equipment for the Will County Emergency Management Agency.

This proposed settlement resolves many pending civil claims for environmental violations at ExxonMobil's seven U.S. refineries, including the Joliet refinery and refineries in California, Louisiana, Montana and Texas. For a period of 30 days, the public may submit comments on the proposed consent decree. These seven refineries represent approximately 11 percent of the total refining capacity in the United States.

The Office of the Illinois Attorney General filed two lawsuits against ExxonMobil in the past seven years alleging numerous air pollution violations at the Joliet refinery. In August 2005, Madigan's office reached a settlement with ExxonMobil for violations alleged in the second lawsuit, filed in 2002. That lawsuit alleged that on two separate occasions, in 1999 and 2002, dangerous contaminants were released into the air from the refinery's coker unit.

Congressional Ratings

The Council for Citizens Against Government Waste (CCAGW) recently released its 2004 Congressional Ratings. Since 1989, CCAGW has tracked roll call votes to separate the good stewards of taxpayer dollars from the politicians who support wasteful programs and pork-stuffed spending bills. For the 108th Congress, second session, both Republicans and Democrats were rated at their lowest levels ever. The entire House had an average of 39 percent and the Senate averaged 40 percent. The number of Taxpayer Heroes (a score of 80 percent or higher) dropped from 68 in the House in 2003 to 59 in 2004 and in the Senate from 11 to 10.

"In 2004, Congress wasted tax dollars like never before. Very few members of Congress are working to ease the tax and regulatory burden of a cumbersome, bloated federal government," CCAGW President Tom Schatz said.

CCAGW rated 40 key votes in the House and 16 key votes in the Senate. Senate votes ranged from reducing the cost of the highway reauthorization bill by $62 billion to maintaining the moratorium on Internet taxation. In the House, votes included a one percent across-the-board reduction on several appropriations bills and permanently eliminating the marriage tax. Of special note are the House votes on budget reform.

"The budget process is in shambles, devoid of accountability, transparency, and enforcement measures," Schatz continued. "A vote for the status quo is a clear sign of contentment with the spending explosion in Washington."

The average score for Republicans in the House was 63 percent and for House Democrats was 11 percent. In the Senate, the average was 63 percent for Republicans and 16 percent for Democrats. All categories are rated lower than the previous year.

In 2004, two House members attained Superhero status (a score of 100 percent): Reps. Tom Feeney (R-Fla.) and Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.). There were no Superheroes in the Senate for the third year in a row. For Senate Republicans, the high score went to Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz.) with 94 percent. The lowest rated Republicans in the Senate were Olympia Snowe (R-Maine) and Lincoln Chafee (R-R.I.) at 31 percent. In the House, the lowest rated Republicans were Reps. Rodney Alexander (R-La.) and Ray LaHood (R-Ill.) and Billy Tauzin (R-La.) at 29 percent. For House Democrats, the high score of 47 percent went to Rep. Gene Taylor (D-Miss.). Twenty-four House Democrats, including Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.), had a rating of zero. For Senate Democrats, the highest score went to Sen. Zell Miller (D-Ga.) at 80 percent, while four senators had a rating of zero.

"Until Congress sets priorities and restrains all spending, members will continue to get failed ratings for protecting the interests of taxpayers," Schatz concluded.

CCAGW's web site features the complete 2004 Congressional Ratings: Vote descriptions, vote tallies, highest and lowest rated, historical comparisons, and averages by chamber, party, and state delegation. Visit www.ccagw.org.

New Report Finds Toxic Chemicals In Baby Products

Toxic chemicals can be found in common baby products, according to a new report released by Illinois Public Interest Research Group (PIRG). "The Right Start: The Need to Eliminate Toxic Chemicals from Baby Products" documents toxic chemicals, including phthalates and polybrominated diphenyl ethers (PBDEs), in teething, bath books, and sleep accessories.

Illinois PIRG tested 25 commonly used baby products and found 18 of them high in these toxic chemicals. Seven of the products tested were infant sleep accessories, such as mattress pads and sleep wedges. They were tested for the presence of PBDEs or toxic flame retardants, which is found in foam materials. The other 18 products were commonly found items such as bath books and teething. They were tested for the presence of a set of chemicals known as phthalates, often times found in plastic to improve flexibility. Illinois PIRG found that three of the seven infant sleep accessories tested contained toxic flame retardants in the form materials. One product, Sassy's "Who Loves Baby? Photo Book," was labeled "phthalate-free." Illinois PIRG research discovered two types of phthalates, DEHP and DBP, in this product. These two chemicals are banned in children's products in the European Union. Fifteen of the 18 bath books, teething, bath toys and other products tested for phthalates contained these chemicals in their materials. For example, a teething made by Gund contained DEHP, a type of phthalate classified as a reproductive toxicant and banned in the European Union.

Illinois Teenager Scholarship Pageant Accepting Applications

The 36th annual Illinois Teenager Scholarship Pageant is now accepting applications for the junior and senior competition to be held on March 3rd and 4th in Wheaton.

America's National Teenager Scholarship Pageant recognizes young women ages 12-18 for their academic achievement, community and school involvement, and communication skills. Contestants will also compete in evening gown and casual wear competitions. There is no swimsuit competition.

The pageant organization features competitions for titles of Miss Illinois Junior Teenager (ages 12-15) and Miss Illinois Senior Teenager (ages 16-18). Winners and runners-up are selected in both age divisions. College tuition awards and cash scholarships are awarded to both division winners. The state winners go on to compete at the National Teenager Pageant in Nashville, TN. Ashley Kramer of Wheaton won the National Pageant in 2003 and won over $11,000 in cash scholarships, and Dianna He of Peoria was named 1st Runner-Up at the National Pageant in 2005.

"We are searching for teens that exhibit a positive attitude towards family and community and who are not afraid to express their individuality and teen spirit!" says Rick Crooks, state director.

There are optional categories for talent, public speaking and modeling. Winners will receive cash awards. Courtney Sturgeon of Green Oaks, IL, won the National Public Speaking Award this year in Nashville.

For information about participating in the Illinois Teenager Scholarship Pageant, contact Rick Crooks at (319) 339-4793.

"Merging Magic" Workshop

Lewis University will host a workshop entitled "Merging Magic" on Friday, Nov. 18 and Saturday, Nov. 19 on the Lewis main campus on Route 53 in Romeoville. Offered for one hour of academic credit, this workshop will present the terminology related to and fundamental concepts necessary for a successful mail merge. The workshop is scheduled for 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, and 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday in Room S119 of the Academic Building on campus.

A mail merge allows computer users to combine information from separate documents to create many final documents, with each containing customized or personalized information. Mail merging users can create their own data in MS Word, Excel, Access, or Outlook Contacts, as well as form files in MS Word to expedite repetitive word processing tasks. It also can be used to generate letters, mailing labels, envelopes, distribution lists, certificates, personalized invitations, name tags, and much more.

In this workshop, one of the fun components will be learning how to use Microsoft Word to create a personalized holiday letter to send to friends and family, in addition to mailing labels for the mass mailing.

For more information, contact Melissa Eichelberger at (815) 836-5583. To register for the workshop, call (815) 836-5133.

Polybrominated diphenyl ethers, or PBDEs, are a set of chemicals used to slow the spread of fire. These chemicals have been linked to a host of health concerns, including impaired learning and memory, reproductive defects, cancer, and impaired immune systems. In addition, levels of these chemicals found in the breast milk of American women and some fetuses are approaching levels shown to impair learning and cause behavior problems in mice.

Phthalates are a family of chemicals used in many plastic products to improve flexibility and in personal care products to bind fragrance to the product. These chemicals have been linked to premature birth, reproductive defects, and early onset of puberty. People are exposed to phthalates through everyday contact with household and personal care products, as well as through contact with indoor air and dust.

Buddhist Monks To Visit Lewis University

Lewis University will welcome Buddhist Monks to campus on Monday, Oct. 31st for the creation of a mandala sand painting. An opening ceremony will be held at noon in the University Dining Hall located in the Academic Building on the Lewis main campus in Romeoville. Free and open to the public, the ceremony will consecrate the site of the sand painting with chants, music and mantra recitation, making it conducive for creating the mandala.

The mandala sand painting is a Tibetan circular design containing deities, geometrical forms, and symbols that represent totality, the self, or the universe. It will take approximately three days to complete, and the public is welcome to view the work in progress throughout the monks' visit.

The design for the sand painting is based on sacred geometry as presented in ancient Buddhist scripture. Throughout the creation of mandala, the monks will deposit millions of colorful grains of sand from traditional metal funnels, called chakpur. The finished mandala is approximately five feet by five feet in size.

On Thursday, Nov. 3rd at 3 p.m. the monks will conclude their creation of the sand mandala with a closing consecration ceremony, requesting the continuous blessings of the invoked deities of the mandala. The monks will dismantle the mandala, sweeping up the colored sands to symbolize the impermanence of all that exists. Half of the sand will be distributed to the attendees in small bags. The remainder of the sand will be carried in a procession by the monks, accompanied by the public, to a flowing body of water into which it is ceremonially poured to disperse the healing energies of the mandala throughout the world.

The Buddhist Monks' mandala ceremony and "Creating Your Mandala" is offered through Lewis' Arts & Ideas program, which offers cultural and educational activities for students and the community, free of charge or at a nominal fee. Events include concerts, films, lectures, performances, plays and seminars. For more information or a free listing of all upcoming Arts & Ideas events, call (815) 836-5482.

The new Medicare Prescription Drug Plan will be explained at the NAMI educational meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 27th in the Church of Christ, 206th and Crawford Ave. (Pulaski Rd.) in Matteson.

West Nile Virus Latest

Dr. Eric E. Whitaker, state public health director, on Oct. 13th announced the death of a 74-year-old man from suburban Cook County who had been hospitalized with West Nile neuroinvasive disease.

The man, who had not yet been reported as a case, died on Oct. 3rd after being released from the hospital. His physician indicated that other conditions contributed to his death.

In addition, six other new cases of West Nile have been identified in the state, bringing to 218 the number of cases reported so far this year.

West Nile virus is transmitted through the bite of a mosquito that has picked up the virus by feeding on an infected bird. Most people with the virus have no clinical symptoms of illness, but some may become ill three to 14 days after the bite of an infected mosquito.

Only about two persons out of 10 who are bitten by an infected mosquito will experience any illness. Illness from West Nile disease is usually mild and includes fever, headache and body aches, but serious illness, such as neuroinvasive disease, and death are possible.

Neuroinvasive disease is the most severe form of the West Nile virus and affects a person's nervous system. Specific types of neuroinvasive disease include: West Nile encephalitis, West Nile meningitis or West Nile meningoencephalitis. Encephalitis refers to an inflammation of the brain, meningitis is an inflammation of the membrane around the brain and the spinal cord, and meningoencephalitis refers to inflammation of the brain and the membrane surrounding it. Persons older than 50 years of age have the highest risk of severe disease.

Additional information about West Nile virus can be found on the Department's Web site at www.idph.state.il.us/cvhealth/wny.htm or people can call the West Nile Virus Hotline at (866) 369-9710 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.
